Lee Man Fong

Lee Man Fong (1913–1988) was a master painter celebrated for his ability to fuse Chinese and Western artistic traditions with elegance and precision. Born in Guangzhou and raised in Singapore, he later settled in Jakarta, where his refined style brought him acclaim as the first non-Dutch artist to exhibit with the Dutch East Indies Association. His international experiences, from the Netherlands to major European exhibitions, deeply influenced his work, as did his tenure as palace artist for President Sukarno.

A work portraying his son, Abang Rahino

Maestro S. Sudjojono is a well-known painterfor his honesty and sincerity, reflecting colors, shapes, and proportions as he observes them. To truly value his art, we need to grasp his dedication. Since the times of struggle, he boldly portrayed realistic situations or actual conditions in Indonesia using his distinctive impressionist style. When painting an object, Sudjojono always understands the character and momentary characteristics of the object being painted.

In this present lot, S. Sudjojono painted his son, Abang Rahino. Prior to the final exam at grade six elementary school in 1969, Abang Rahinowhose nickname is Rino-studied religion subject. As his father S.Sudjojono saw him, he invited Rino to his studio and painted the present lot within ninety minutes. S.Sudjojono asked Rino to wear his sarong, while the black cap was borrowed from Thamrin Dilapanga, one of their relatives from Manado. S.Sudjojono took the "ngaji" terminology as he thinks it is more precise than the common term "belajar" in Bahasa Indonesia for learning or studying.

This painting shows Rino in a white shirt with a hint of white, grey and blue hue, and black peci (cap), smiling widely while holding a book with both hands. In the background, Sudjojono added trees and plants in dark green and brown shades. Throughout this painting, Sudjojono shows his mastery in his distinctive impressionistic style using spontaneous and bold strokes of paint that form a detailed picture to the eye. Sudjojono also shows his mastery in realistic perception, creating a sense of depth between his subject and its background.

Gerard Pieter Adolfs

Gerard Pieter Adolfs (1897–1968) was a Dutch painter known for his vibrant portrayals of everyday life in the Dutch East Indies. Born in Semarang, Java, and originally trained as an architect, Adolfs later turned to painting, developing a distinctive impressionistic style. His works reflect a deep affection for Indonesia, capturing its people, streets, and markets with energy and sensitivity.

In Market, Adolfs blends European and Indonesian elements into a harmonious scene. The colonial-style buildings evoke European architecture, while the figures—dressed in traditional attire and engaged in daily trade—clearly reflect Indonesian life. This contrast not only captures the cultural hybridity of the era but also highlights Adolfs's ability to observe and portray the layered realities of early 20th-century Indonesia.

Rudy Pranadjaya (1948–2005) was a modern Indonesian painter who skillfully blended contemporary techniques with traditional cultural motifs. Born in Cirebon, he studied under notable artists like Barli Sasmitawinata and Srihadi Soedarsono. His time in Bali and his exposure to wayang kulit from his hometown deeply shaped his visual language, while his study tours in Europe enriched his artistic perspective. Rudy exhibited widely, both in Indonesia and internationally, as a member of Kelompok Seniman Bandung.

Nude reflects Rudy's fusion of modern and traditional elements. At the center, a seated nude woman is surrounded by ethereal, colorful figures and set within a decorative frame that recalls wayang kulit and batik patterns. The layered composition, soft pastel palette, and intricate border designs create a dreamlike balance between sensuality, mythology, and cultural symbolism, showcasing Rudy's unique artistic voice.

Alit Sembodo

Alit Sembodo was a bold voice in contemporary Indonesian art, known for his intricate, chaotic compositions that explore themes of destruction, conflict, and human excess. Despite his passing in 2003 at the young age of 28, his legacy lives on through works collected internationally and awards such as the Pratisara Affandi Adhi Karya (1999), Indonesian Art Awards, and Philip Morris ASEAN Art Awards (1999–2000).

In Hunting Mermaids (Berburu Ikan Duyung), Alit constructs a surreal and densely packed scene filled with mythological figures, turbulent crowds, and clashing narratives. Against a dark backdrop, boats drift in midair while human and mermaid forms twist in chaos. On the ground, a bright orange Vespa stands out, adding a jarring touch of modernity. Through this visual overload, Alit critiques the absurdity of social ambition, violence, and consumerism—offering a powerful reflection on the chaos of contemporary society.

Throughout his long career, Qi developed a distinctive style that combined bold brushwork, vibrant color, and a deep affection for nature's simple forms. As head of the Beijing Institute of Chinese Painting, he left a legacy of works celebrated for their vitality and honesty. In 1955, he was awarded the International Peace Award in recognition of his cultural contributions.

Orchid; Poem in Running Script demonstrates Qi's mastery of uniting image and word. The pairing reflects Qi's deep respect for nature and his ability to convey beauty through both painting and calligraphy in a harmonious, contemplative work.

A key figure in modern Indonesian art, Sidik was a lecturer at ASRI from 1961, later serving as Head of the Painting Department (1967–1983) and Assistant Rector (1984–1992). His teachings were enriched by his interactions with senior artists like Hendra, Affandi, and Sudjojono.

In recognition of his contributions, the Indonesian Institute of the Arts (ISI) inaugurated a gallery in his honor in 2017. Today, he is remembered not only as a pioneer of abstraction but also as a transformative educator.

Adrien Jean Le Mayeur De Merpres

Adrien-Jean Le Mayeur de Merprès (9 February 1880 – 31 May 1958) was a Belgian painter who spent his later years in Bali. He was an Impressionist and one of the first Indo-European artists to gain recognition in Southeast Asia. His love for art was influenced by his father, a marine painter, but he took a different path, choosing to paint sunlight and exotic landscapes around the world.

Although he briefly studied engineering, his passion for painting led him back to creating Impressionist-style landscapes in Belgium. During World War I, he worked as a wartime painter and photographer, but after the war, he longed for adventure and beauty, much like Paul Gauguin and his search for paradise.

In the 1920s, Le Mayeur traveled through Italy, North Africa, India, Cambodia, Burma, Madagascar, and Turkey, capturing the beauty of these places in his paintings. In 1929, hoping to find an untouched artistic paradise, he set his sights on Bali, known as the "Island of the Gods." He arrived later that year and was captivated by the island's landscapes and culture.

Today, his paintings are celebrated for their blend of Western Impressionist techniques and a deep appreciation for Balinese beauty and traditions.

I Dewa Putu Mokoh

I Dewa Putu Mokoh was a pioneering Balinese artist who redefined the art of Pengosekan, Ubud, by blending traditional wayang-inspired techniques with contemporary, often personal and emotional themes. Despite limited formal education and early resistance from his family, he trained under his uncles—renowned artists I Gusti Ketut Kobot and I Gusti Made Baret.

Encouraged by Dutch artist Rudolf Bonnet to move beyond classical epics, Mokoh developed a distinctive style marked by gentle colors, clean lines, and intimate depictions of Balinese life. His bold exploration of human emotion and taboo subjects gained international acclaim, including shows at the Venice Biennale (1993) and Fukuoka Art Museum (1995). Mokoh remains a key figure in the evolution of modern Balinese art.

Handrio

Handrio was born in 1926 in Purwakarta and began his painting career under Basuki Abdullah. During the Japanese period, he studied with Sudjojono and Agus Djaja at Keimin Bunka Shidoso and Poetera in Jakarta. Initially, his works reflected realism and surrealism, but by the 1950s, he shifted to a semi-abstract style, breaking shapes into geometric planes. This approach set him apart from Yogyakarta painters of the time, who focused on populist themes. His semi-abstract works often analyzed still life objects and musical instruments.

By the late 1960s, these forms evolved into dynamic and complex geometric spaces. In the 1980s, Handrio's abstract style reached its peak, characterized by a masterful use of space, planes, and color. His works from this period convey rhythm, complexity, balance, and a dynamic visual harmony.
