Omar Yahya is a 20th-century Indonesian painter known for his realist style and highly detailed works. Many of his paintings are collected by senior collectors in Indonesia and abroad, with some even part of President Soekarno's collection.

Fighting to Survive is Omar Yahya's masterpiece and his largest work at 200 x 300 cm. This dramatic scene depicts a bull locked in a fierce struggle against a leopard and a snarling hyena. The painting is filled with motion and intensity, as the bull bucks and kicks while its opponents claw and bite. The blood, dust, and raw expressions of pain heighten the impact. Through dynamic composition and expressive realism, Omar Yahya captures the brutality and grandeur of survival in nature.

This painting is often compared to Raden Saleh's "Boschbrand" (Forest Fire), which also portrays wildlife in distress. In Forest Fire, tigers, deer, and wild boars flee from raging flames, their fear and instinct for survival vividly depicted. Both artists create grand, intense wildlife scenes, blending realism with drama and spectacle. Fighting to Survive stands as a worthy counterpart to Saleh's masterpiece, making it an ideal choice for collectors who appreciate bold, expressive, and action-packed paintings.

Affandi

Affandi (1918–1990) was one of Indonesia's most influential modern artists, celebrated for his expressive and emotional style. He developed a spontaneous and raw approach, often applying paint directly from the tube and using bold, swirling strokes to channel pure emotion onto the canvas.

Perahu Jukung (Jukung Boat) captures Affandi's signature expressive style, depicting a traditional Indonesian jukung boat with bold, swirling strokes and vibrant colors. The boat appears almost alive, its bow forming a grinning face, adding a surreal touch. The bright yellow sky and Affandi's signature sun contrast sharply with the darker, heavier tones of the sea and boats below, creating a striking visual balance.

Abdul Aziz was born in Purwokerto on March 27, 1928. He graduated from the Indonesian Fine Art Academy (ASRI) in 1959 and then continued his studies at the Accademia di Belle Arti in Rome, Italy. He exhibited his works several times in Italy, as well as in Jakarta, Yogyakarta, and Bali.

Prince Diponegoro by Abdul Aziz is a powerful depiction of the legendary Javanese prince and national hero who led the Java War (1825–1830) against Dutch colonial rule. The painting captures a dramatic moment, with Diponegoro at the center, mounted on a rearing black horse, surrounded by his loyal warriors. The fiery background, painted in deep oranges and reds, evokes the intensity of battle, while the contrast between the dark silhouettes of the soldiers and the glowing sky enhances the painting's emotional impact.

Dullah

Dullah (1919–1996) was a renowned Indonesian realist painter, celebrated for his photo-like precision and historical significance. Born in Surakarta to a family of batik makers, he was immersed in art from a young age. As a member of Seniman Indonesia Muda (SIM), he trained under masters like S. Sudjojono and Affandi. His contributions extended beyond painting, as he also refined the Garuda Pancasila emblem under Soekarno's guidance.

Balinese Dancer is a masterpiece of realism, showcasing Dullah's extraordinary attention to detail. The dancer is portrayed with lifelike precision, from the texture of her golden costume to the soft glow on her skin. Her graceful posture and expressive gaze capture the elegance and fluidity of Balinese dance. The dimly lit background, featuring traditional Balinese elements like umbrellas and temple structures, enhances the dramatic contrast, making the subject stand out.

With its rich textures, vibrant yet natural colors, and meticulous lighting, this painting feels almost photographic, solidifying Dullah's legacy as a master of realism in Indonesian art.

I Gusti Ayu Kadek Murniasih

I Gusti Ayu Kadek Murniasih (1966–2006), known as Murni, was an Indonesian artist recognized for her bold depictions of sexuality, trauma, and female identity. Born in Bali, she worked as a domestic worker before studying art under Dewa Putu Mokoh, developing a style with clear outlines, minimal shading, and vivid colors. Despite resistance to her explicit themes, she challenged societal norms, bringing female experiences and taboos into focus. Her impact on contemporary Indonesian art continues to grow, with her works now collected in major institutions like Tate Modern, UK, The Centre Pompidou, France, and the National Gallery Singapore.

Lelah Sekali (Very Tired) is a surreal and symbolic representation of exhaustion and struggle. The painting features a distorted orange elephant with exaggerated and deconstructed anatomy, set against a green background. The elephant appears worn out, with its trunk twisted, mouth jagged, and eye weary. Part of its body is split open, revealing organic, almost human-like inner structures, a signature of Murni's introspective and visceral approach. The dripping liquid further emphasizes a sense of depletion and fatigue.

Through bold colors and unsettling imagery, Murni transforms this piece into a powerful expression of resilience, suffering, and emotional turmoil.

Widayat

Widayat (1919–2002) was a celebrated Indonesian painter known for his "magic decorative" style, blending folk elements, nature, and intricate patterns. He studied at the Indonesian Fine Art Academy (ASRI) in Yogyakarta and later pursued ceramics and landscape studies in Nagoya, Japan. Throughout his career, he received numerous prestigious awards, including the BKPM Award (1953), a cultural award from the Indonesian government (1972), and the ASEAN Award in Brunei Darussalam (1993).

In Ikan Laut Dalam (Deep Sea Fish), Widayat presents a rich, textured composition of marine life, creating an intricate and almost dreamlike underwater world. The painting is filled with various fish, each uniquely detailed, while the deep, dark blue tones give the scene an ancient, almost mythical atmosphere.

The fish, with their carved-like scales and expressive eyes, appear both natural and fantastical, blending reality with artistic imagination. A sharp-toothed predator lurking among them adds tension, symbolizing the fragile balance of survival beneath the sea. The dense foliage and fluid background patterns enhance the sense of depth and mystery, making this work a stunning representation of Widayat's signature decorative style.

Ivan Sagita

Ivan Sagita (b. 1957, Malang) is a key figure in Indonesia's surrealist and magic realism movement, known for his haunting compositions that blur reality and illusion. A graduate of the Indonesian Art Institute, Yogyakarta (1979–1985), his works have been exhibited internationally, including in the U.S., Australia, the Netherlands, and Singapore.

Eternal Transience (Kefanaan Abadi) explores the fleeting yet cyclical nature of existence, portraying a surreal, almost ritualistic scene. Two aged figures stand over a well, their heads linked by a wooden beam, suggesting an inescapable connection. A limp body draped in red hangs over the well's edge, symbolizing mortality, while another figure in the background is lost in their own isolated task.

The dark, apocalyptic sky, muted earthy tones, and elongated forms heighten the sense of impermanence and inevitability, reinforcing the painting's existential themes. Sagita's signature magic realism transforms an ordinary scene into a metaphor for the fragility of life, leaving viewers with a lingering sense of unease and contemplation.

Fish by Sunaryo is a unique and abstract interpretation of aquatic life, depicting five fish in a way that goes beyond conventional representation. Each fish possesses its own distinct form and pattern, blending abstraction with organic movement.

Set against a background of black, white, and earthy tones, the composition creates a sense of depth and mystery, as if the fish are suspended in an undefined, ethereal space. As a renowned Indonesian artist from Bandung, Sunaryo is known for his innovative approach to contemporary art. His experimental use of form and composition in this piece showcases his ability to transform ordinary subjects into visually compelling works.

In this painting, Sunaryo shows his signature approach to contemporary abstraction. The painting features an intricate arrangement of lines, geometric forms, and layered textures, creating a dynamic interplay of structure and spontaneity.

The earthy color palette—dominated by warm browns, beige, black, and hints of red—evokes a sense of organic materiality, as if the forms are emerging from an ancient surface. The use of scratched lines and rough textures adds depth, making the painting feel tactile and raw, yet refined in its balance of chaos and control.

Handrio

Handrio was born in 1926 in Purwakarta and began his painting career under Basuki Abdullah. During the Japanese period, he studied with Sudjojono and Agus Djaja at Keimin Bunka Shidoso and Poetera in Jakarta. Initially, his works reflected realism and surrealism, but by the 1950s, he shifted to a semi-abstract style, breaking shapes into geometric planes. This approach set him apart from Yogyakarta painters of the time, who focused on populist themes. His semi-abstract works often analyzed still life objects and musical instruments.

By the late 1960s, these forms evolved into dynamic and complex geometric spaces. In the 1980s, Handrio's abstract style reached its peak, characterized by a masterful use of space, planes, and color. His works from this period convey rhythm, complexity, balance, and a dynamic visual harmony.

Richard Winkler

Richard Winkler, known for his distinctive artistic style, was born in Norrköping, Sweden, where he studied graphic design and illustration. After working as an illustrator for advertising and magazines, he relocated to Ubud, Bali, in 1997 to focus on painting full-time. His works are characterized by soft curves, exaggerated human forms, and flawless brushwork that convey balance and precision.

In Woman in the Night Market, the female figure merges with the surrounding fruits, her curved limbs echoing the shapes of bananas and melons. The smooth shading and precise gradation of tones enhance the sculptural quality, making the forms appear almost three-dimensional. Winkler's mastery of light and shadow gives the painting a tactile, sensuous feel, emphasizing the fullness and fluidity of his shapes.

Henk Ngantung

The Indonesian painter and one-time governor of Jakarta, Henk Ngantung, born in 1921 as Hendrik Hermanus Joel Ngantung. He was a self-taught artist with a profound impact on Indonesian art and politics. Between 1960 and 1964, Sukarno appointed him as vice-governor of Jakarta for his vision of transforming the city into a cultured capital. His brief tenure as governor from 1964 to 1965 marked his contribution to the nation beyond the canvas.

Resting Boats by Henk Ngantung captures a serene coastal scene, reflecting his skill in atmospheric realism. The composition showcases a tranquil beach with boats gently resting on the shore, surrounded by rugged cliffs and lush greenery. This piece embodies his vision of blending art with emotion, inviting viewers to immerse themselves in the peaceful yet dynamic beauty of Indonesia's coastal scenery.

Nashar

Nashar was known as a controversial "suffering" artist in Indonesia, yet his writings often reflected optimism and a fascination with the romanticism of struggle. His abstract depictions of stones, fish bones, and plants showcased his deep artistic sensitivity. Many regarded him as a "genuine artist", painting not for financial gain but as a lifelong devotion to art.

Deeply involved in Jakarta's art scene, Nashar studied at Seniman Indonesia Muda before joining Gabungan Pelukis Indonesia in 1949. He later played a key role in founding Institut Kesenian Jakarta (IKJ), where he began teaching in 1970. His contributions extended to the Dewan Kesenian Jakarta (Jakarta Arts Committee), where he served as a member from 1973 and as daily administrator (1981–1984).

Tio Tjay

Tio Tjay was an Indonesian painter who spent much of his life in Brazil, blending Southeast Asian and South American influences in his vibrant, expressive works. Originally trained in Chinese painting and calligraphy, his artistic journey took him across São Paulo, Rio de Janeiro, Brasilia, and Paraguay, where he absorbed the rich colors and dynamic compositions of Latin American art.

Flower Market bursts with life, capturing a traditional Indonesian market overflowing with colorful flowers. The painting is rich in texture and detail, with women in colourful batik and kebaya gathering among baskets of fresh blossoms in vivid shades of yellow, pink, red, and white.

Hints of South American influence appear in the bright contrasts and energetic brushstrokes, creating a fusion of cultures. This piece not only showcases a traditional Indonesian market but also reflects Tio Tjay's global perspective, blending Asian heritage with Latin vibrancy.
