WIDAYAT

Widayat is an Indonesian artist whose artistic journey began at ASRI, now the Indonesian Institute of the Arts Yogyakarta, where he explored various styles, including cubism, abstraction, impressionism, and realism. Eventually, he developed his signature style, inspired by batik techniques from his mother, characterized by short, repetitive lines and intricate details, combined with realism and impressionism to create a decorative aesthetic.

In his 1978 painting "Flora Fauna", Widayat depicts his favorite subjects: plants and animals. Black-colored animals like elephants, deer, birds, tigers, and buffalo stand out, each rendered in varying colors and proportions. The flora, including trees, mushrooms, and grass, is equally detailed, with every leaf meticulously painted in fine, textured strokes.

The brown background creates harmony between the flora and fauna, reflecting nature's balance. Measuring 140 x 210 cm, this large and intricate work exemplifies Widayat's craftsmanship, making it a remarkable piece for any collection.

AHMAD SADALI

Ahmad Sadali was a pioneering figure in Indonesian modern art, known for merging Islamic spirituality with abstract expressionism. A graduate of the Bandung Institute of Technology (ITB) and later a student in the United States, he became a leading educator and artist of the Mazhab Bandung movement. His works are celebrated for their meditative quality, refined texture, and deep spiritual resonance, earning him the Anugerah Seni Indonesia in 1972.

“Deteriorated Plane with Golden Remnants” is another painting that exemplifies Ahmad Sadali’s mature abstract style. Against a dark green background, a textured golden form emerges, its rough and layered surface evoking both decay and endurance. The tactile composition, with traces of gold glimmering through earthy tones, reflects Sadali’s spiritual sensibility as he contemplates impermanence, faith, and the quiet persistence of the divine within the material world.

HENDRA GUNAWAN

Born in Bandung, Hendra Gunawan was a pioneering Indonesian modern artist who began painting in the 1930s. He combined traditional Indonesian themes with modernist techniques, creating expressive works that vividly captured the spirit of everyday life.

Known as the “people’s painter,” Hendra portrayed market scenes, fishermen, and women at work with bold compositions and vibrant colors that celebrated the resilience and vitality of ordinary Indonesians. His works have been exhibited internationally, including at the Venice Biennale 2024, and are housed in major collections such as the Neka Art Museum and the Singapore Art Museum.

“Banana Seller” presents a group of figures gathered in a village market scene. At the center sits a woman holding a bunch of bananas in her lap, her body wrapped in a patterned sarong. Around her are other figures, including a mother carrying a child and two others engaged in the scene. The earthy tones and textured brushwork convey both liveliness and intimacy, reflecting Hendra’s deep empathy for the people and moments of everyday life—a subject he often explored throughout his career.

“My Ten Faces (Dasamuka)”, painted in 1978, marks a powerful moment near the end of Hendra’s imprisonment. The work depicts a hybrid creature with multiple heads, ranging from mythological figures and animals such as snakes, crocodiles, and horses to a serene wayang-like face.

The composition recalls Rahwana, also known as Prabu Dasamuka from the Ramayana story, symbolizing the complexity of human nature and the tension between power and morality. In Sanskrit, dasamuka means “ten faces,” representing the many aspects of the self, including intellect, emotion, desire, and will, each capable of both creation and destruction.

The vivid palette of reds, blues, greens, and golds reflects Hendra’s characteristic style, filled with energy and contrast, turning this mythological subject into a deeply personal reflection on resilience and inner

ANTONIO BLANCO

Born in Manila to Spanish parents, Antonio Blanco was a flamboyant artist known for his romantic and expressive depictions of women. After studying in New York and traveling widely, he settled in Bali in 1952, where the King of Ubud gifted him land to build his home and studio.

Immersed in Balinese culture, Blanco married the dancer Ni Ronji, whose grace deeply inspired his art. His works, filled with sensuality and poetic color, reflect his fascination with beauty and spirit, earning him recognition from figures such as President Sukarno and Ingrid Bergman.

“Ni Bawang II” presents a half-length figure of a Balinese woman holding a fruit against her body. The painting combines loose, spontaneous brushwork with a rich play of color, where shades of green, yellow, and deep blue merge into the background. The figure’s direct yet serene expression captures both vitality and calm. The composition becomes more sophisticated with a gold frame draped with red and blue fabrics, enhancing its visual richness and theatrical presence.

ARKIV VILMANSA

Arkiv Vilmansa is a contemporary Indonesian artist known for his bold, vibrant works that merge street art, pop culture, and childhood nostalgia. A graduate of Parahyangan University, he began his artistic career with a solo exhibition in Jakarta in 2010 and soon gained international recognition through his art toys, prints, and paintings.

His signature style blends cartoon-inspired forms, organic lines, and bright color palettes, creating playful yet thought-provoking visual narratives. Arkiv has collaborated with global brands, including BAPE (A Bathing Ape), becoming the first Southeast Asian artist to do so, and continues to exhibit internationally.

“Darra, Skull, Bones” features one of Arkiv’s signature characters. The central figure, with large expressive eyes and a playful pose, stands against a backdrop of stylized skulls and bones, evoking both innocence and darker undertones. The contrast between cheerful forms and macabre imagery reflects Arkiv’s interest in dualities such as life and death, play and fear. Through this work, he captures the tension between youthful imagination and deeper reflection, a theme that defines much of his art.

FENG DAZHONG

Feng Dazhong, born in Liaoning Province, is well-known as one of China's foremost painters of tigers and a national first-class artist. He is a self-taught master of gongbi painting, a meticulous technique characterized by fine, detailed brushstrokes and carefully layered color.

Feng has spent over six decades refining his depictions of the tiger as a symbol of strength, protection, and majesty in Chinese culture. His lifelong fascination began under the mentorship of Li Xiaoru during his youth and evolved into a career that redefined the tradition of animal painting in modern Chinese art.

In Tiger, Feng captures the animal in a moment of poised alertness beneath a full moon. The brushwork combines the precision of gongbi with expressive tonal layering, giving texture and vitality to the tiger's fur and natural surroundings. The creature's gaze, both fierce and contemplative, reflects Feng's vision of the tiger not only as a symbol of power but also of inner calm and spiritual balance.

ADRIEN-JEAN LE MAYEUR DE MERPRES

Adrien-Jean Le Mayeur de Merprès was a Belgian painter and one of the earliest Indo-European artists to gain recognition in Southeast Asia. He was initially trained as an engineer, but then devoted his life to painting and traveled widely through Europe, Africa, and Asia before settling in Bali in 1932. Captivated by the island's light, colors, and culture, Le Mayeur made Bali his lifelong home, creating luminous Impressionist scenes that celebrate Balinese life. His muse and wife, the dancer Ni Pollok, often appeared as the central figure in his paintings.

In "Pollok on Sanur Beach", Le Mayeur captures Ni Pollok and another woman by the shoreline under a radiant Balinese sky. In the foreground, lush bushes with colorful flowers frame the scene, while in the background, figures can be seen playing along the beach. The soft clouds and glowing sky enhance the paintin

S. SUDJOJONO

Sindudarsono Sudjojono, widely known as S. Sudjojono, was a pioneering Indonesian painter, art critic, and writer, celebrated as the father of Indonesian modern art. He played a central role in shaping Indonesia's artistic identity, co-founding influential groups such as Persagi (Persatuan Ahli Gambar Indonesia) and Seniman Indonesia Muda.

Deeply committed to portraying the truth of his surroundings, Sudjojono championed "the soul of Indonesian art," emphasizing sincerity and emotional depth over idealized beauty. His works, ranging from portraits to landscapes, reveal a profound engagement with humanity and national consciousness.

"Dinosaur" showcases Sudjojono's expressive imagination and departure from conventional realism. The painting features a dark, powerful creature resembling a dinosaur set against an equally shadowy background. Around it, splashes of color seem spontaneous yet harmonious, creating a sense of movement and mystery. On the left side, circular shapes appear like bubbles containing human faces, along with a small sun that adds to the surreal atmosphere. The work invites open interpretation, suggesting something far deeper than the literal subject.

Sunaryo began his career in sculpture before expanding into painting, printmaking, installation, and public art. His works often reflect a harmony between form, texture, and philosophical thought, addressing themes of spirituality, nature, and cultural identity.

In “Flower in the Vase”, Sunaryo explores structure and texture through a stylized still life. The painting presents a vase at the center, placed on a striped surface that curves upward. MOCHTAR APIN

Mochtar Apin was a painter, illustrator, writer, and educator at Institut Teknologi Bandung (ITB). He explored cubism and abstract expressionism, studied at the École Nationale Supérieure des Beaux-Arts in Paris (1953–1957) and the Deutsche Akademie der Künste in Berlin (1957–1958), and later received a Cultural Award from the Australian government in 1974.

Bali Dance reflects Apin's abstract interpretation of Balinese culture through color, texture, and form. The figure of a dancer emerges from layered strokes of green, yellow, and red against a textured dark background. The thick impasto and fragmented shapes recall his engagement with modernist structure while maintaining a distinct sense of cultural vitality.

POPO ISKANDAR

Popo Iskandar, born in Garut, was an influential Indonesian modernist painter, art critic, and writer. He began painting in 1944 and later graduated from Universitas Indonesia and Institut Teknologi Bandung (ITB), where he also taught. His artistic journey was deeply shaped by his brother, a drawing teacher, and by early influences from Hendra Gunawan. He's then known for his expressive depictions of animals, particularly cats, roosters, and tigers.

In “Barong”, Popo reinterprets the Balinese mythological figure through his signature style. The creature, painted in sweeping, textured strokes of black, red, and gold, exudes both power and movement under the glowing orange moon. The rough surface and layered paint give the figure a sense of vitality, as if caught in mid-motion between ferocity and grace.

Born in Surabaya, Fadjat Sidik began his studies in English literature at Gadjah Mada University before pursuing fine arts at ASRI Yogyakarta. His stay in Bali from 1957 to 1961 marked a turning point in his artistic journey, as he shifted from semi-abstract to pure abstraction in response to the commercialization of Balinese art.

In Dynamics of Space (Dinamika Ruang), Sidik expresses his philosophy of abstraction as an intuitive response to the balance between technology, nature, and tradition. The composition is built from geometric shapes and rhythmic patterns arranged within earthy tones of brown, red, and black. UMI DACHLAN

A key figure in the Bandung School of painting, Umi Dachlan was renowned for her textured abstract canvases, often layered in deep maroon, gold, and her signature purple. Rooted in Islamic philosophy, her works reflect a spiritual connection to nature and music. She studied at Institut Teknologi Bandung (ITB) under Ahmad Sadali, a leading figure in modern Islamic art in Indonesia, graduating in 1968 as only the third female artist to do so.

In 1969, she broke barriers by becoming ITB's first female lecturer, teaching there until 1999. Over the years, she moved beyond her mentor's influence to establish her own iconography, earning a place in the discourse of Indonesian abstraction alongside artists such as Mochtar Apin, Popo Iskandar, and A.D. Pirous.

Her abstraction distilled forms from nature into symbolic rather than representational elements, allowing religion and nature to become her strongest creative impulses. Through abstraction, she found the freedom to express the sensations of spiritual reflection and the beauty of the natural world.

IVAN SAGITA

Ivan Sagita is a leading figure of Yogyakarta surrealism, a movement that arose in the 1980s as a reaction to the dominance of decorative and realist styles. A graduate of the Indonesian Art Institute (ISI) Yogyakarta, his works combine Javanese mysticism, symbolism, and psychological depth, often exploring themes of life, death, and spirituality.

Procession II reflects Sagita's ongoing exploration of mortality and transcendence. The figures, wrapped and intertwined in cloth, appear caught between ritual and transformation. Their calm yet distant expressions evoke both mourning and acceptance, suggesting a passage between the physical and spiritual realms. The muted tones and solemn atmosphere invite contemplation on the fragility of existence and the thin veil separating life and death.

ARIE SMIT

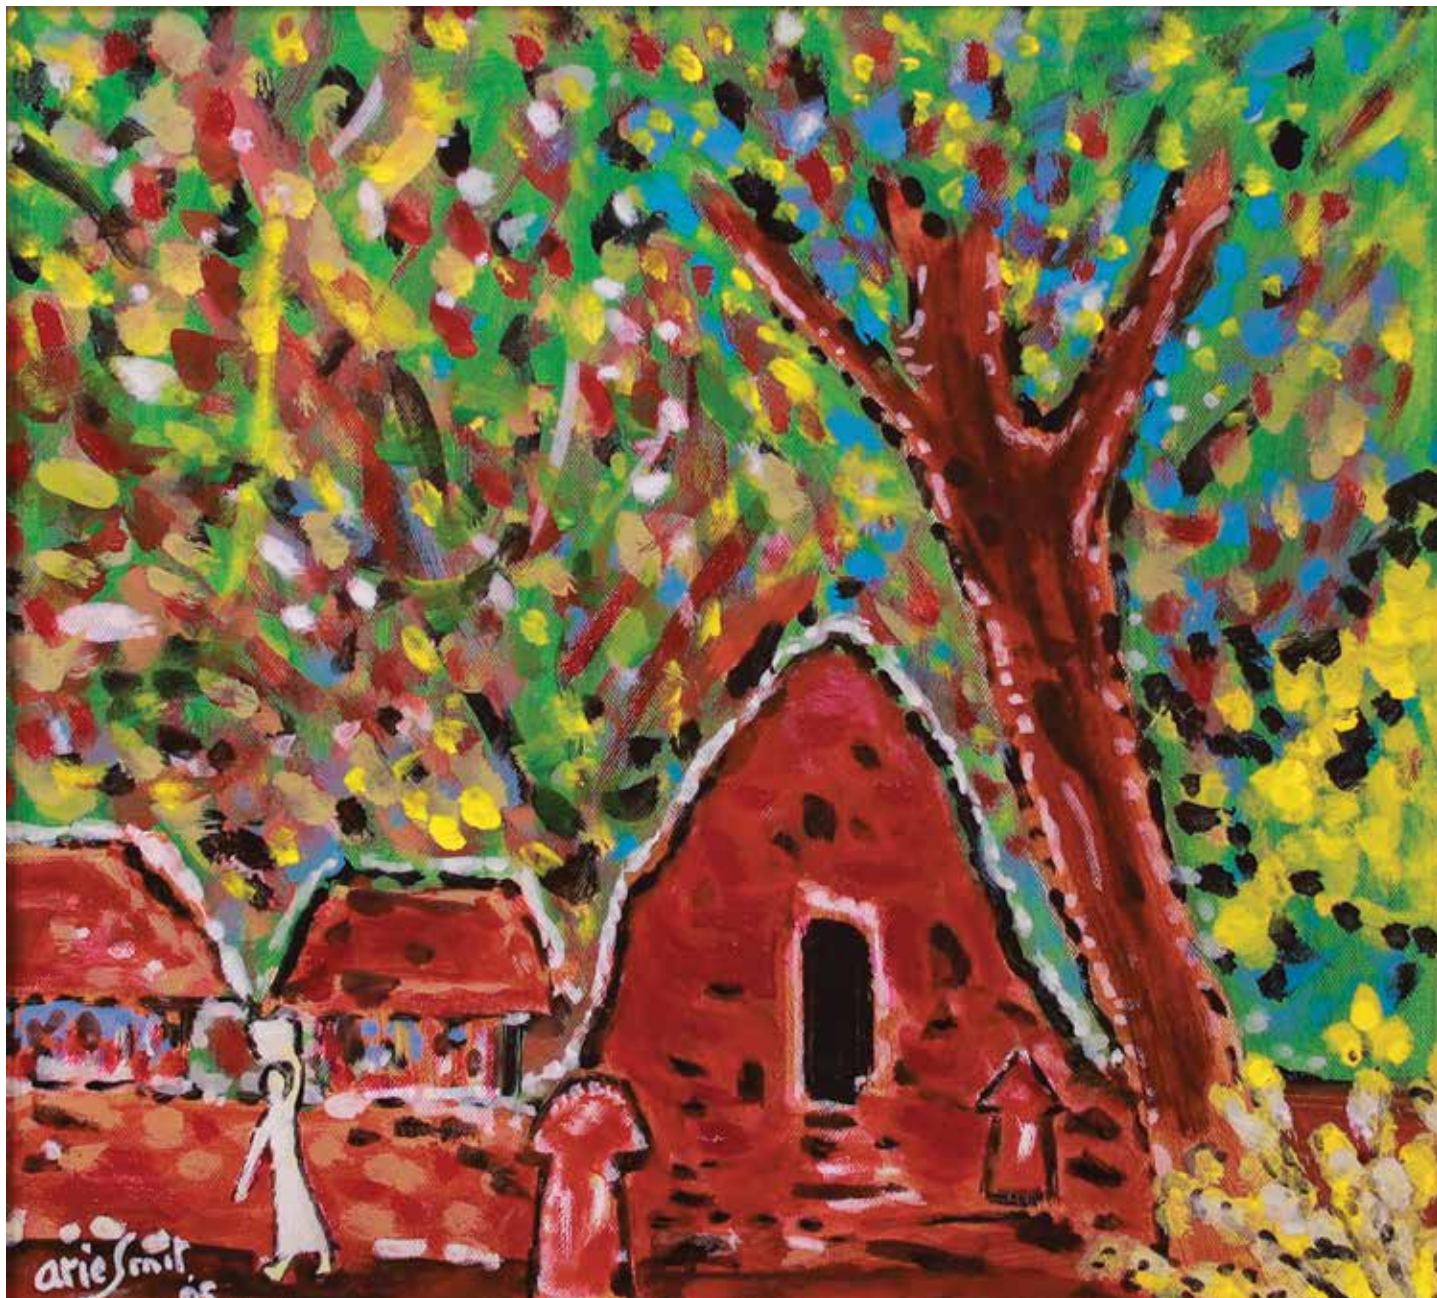

Arie Smit was born in Zaandam, the Netherlands, in 1916. He studied at the Academy of Arts in Rotterdam before working as a lithographer for the Dutch Colonial Army in the Dutch East Indies before World War II.

In 1956, he moved to Bali to fully dedicate himself to painting and later became an Indonesian citizen. He also taught painting at the Bandung Institute of Technology (ITB), inspiring many young artists.

His contributions to Indonesian art were recognized with the prestigious "Dharma Kusuma" art award from the Bali provincial government. HANDRIO

Handrio was born in 1926 in Purwakarta and began his painting career under Basuki Abdullah. During the Japanese period, he studied with Sudjojono and Agus Djaja at Keimin Bunka Shidoso and Poetera in Jakarta. Initially, his works reflected realism and surrealism, but by the 1950s, he shifted to a semi-abstract style, breaking shapes into geometric planes. This approach set him apart from Yogyakarta painters of the time, who focused on populist themes. His semi-abstract works often analyzed still life objects and musical instruments.

By the late 1960s, these forms evolved into dynamic and complex geometric spaces. In the 1980s, Handrio's abstract style reached its peak, characterized by a masterful use of space, planes, and color. His works from this period convey rhythm, complexity, balance, and a dynamic visual harmony.

AUKE CORNELIS SONNEGA

Auke Cornelis Sonnega was a Dutch artist deeply influenced by Indonesian culture, particularly Bali. Educated in Amsterdam, he became renowned for his spiritually-charged paintings.

Arriving in Indonesia in 1935, Sonnega eventually settled in Ubud, Bali, after World War II, taking over Rudolf Bonnet's former studio. His style, initially Art Deco-influenced, evolved dramatically after 1951 following spiritual visions, leading to emotionally heightened works inspired by Balinese music and portraits.

UTAGAWA KUNISADA (TOYOKUNI III)

Utagawa Kunisada was one of the most prolific and celebrated masters of ukiyo-e woodblock prints during the Edo period. He was born in Edo (now Tokyo) to a well-off family and apprenticed under Toyokuni I around 1800 and adopted the name Kunisada in the Utagawa tradition. Financially secure from his family's ferry business, Kunisada could devote himself fully to art, producing an immense and varied body of work that included portraits of beautiful women (bijin-ga), Kabuki actors, warriors, legends, and literary scenes such as The Tale of Genji.

By the 1820s, Kunisada had become one of Japan's most successful printmakers, admired for his bold color, refined composition, and dramatic style. He later took the name Toyokuni III and led the Utagawa School for nearly four decades, mentoring artists such as Kunichika and Kunisada II. His collaborations with Hiroshige, notably the "Two-Brush Tokaido," and his late series such as A Contest of Magic Scenes by Toyokuni (1861–64), reflect both innovation and technical mastery.

After joining Seniman Indonesia Muda and later Gabungan Pelukis Indonesia, he built his reputation through regular solo and group exhibitions from 1956 onward. He also worked as an illustrator for Mimbar Indonesia under HB. Jassin.

Renowned for his abstract depictions of stones, fish bones, and plants, Nashar was seen as a "genuine artist" devoted to art over commercial gain. He taught at the Jakarta Institute of Arts (IKJ) from 1970 and served on the Jakarta Arts Council, including as daily administrator from 1981 to 1984. His reflections on life and art were compiled in Surat-Surat Malam ("Night Letters"), revealing his optimism and fascination with the romanticism of struggle.

EMIRIA SOENASSA

Emiria Soenassa, often regarded as Indonesia's first female modern artist, lived an adventurous and unconventional life that defied the expectations of her time. Born in Tanawangko, North Sulawesi, to the royal family of Tidore, Emiria initially trained as a nurse and later managed a plantation before devoting herself to painting. A free spirit, she traveled widely across Europe, studying ballet in Brussels, Amsterdam, and Vienna, before returning to Indonesia, where her artistic journey began in earnest. Her work was first recognized in the late 1930s when she joined PERSAGI (Persatuan Ahli Gambar Indonesia), Indonesia's pioneering modern art movement founded by S. Sudjojono and Agus Djaja.

Emiria's paintings are expressive, spontaneous, and deeply personal, often depicting scenes of everyday life, ethnic traditions, and strong, independent women. Rejecting idealized beauty and academic rules, she painted with raw emotion and bold color, presenting subjects from across the archipelago such as Dayak brides, Balinese dancers, and Papuan landscapes. S. Sudjojono once called her a "genius" for her courage to paint as she lived, freely and honestly. Emiria Soenassa passed away in Tanjung Karang, Lampung, in 1964, leaving behind a legacy that continues to inspire generations of Indonesian women artists.

ADIT BARLI

Adit Barli, the eldest son of the late Agung Wikekaputra and grandson of the renowned painter Barli Sasmitawinata, inherited a strong artistic lineage that shaped his life and work. Growing up in the environment of Sanggar Lukis Rangka Gempol, one of Bandung's oldest art studios founded by his grandfather, Adit developed a natural sensitivity to art from an early age. Though he never received formal art education, his lifelong experience surrounded by art and artists became his foundation as both painter and educator. In 1996, he began teaching drawing to children and adolescents, pioneering a creative learning approach that emphasizes psychology and emotional expression over technical instruction.

Today, Adit serves as the Head of the Barli Museum and runs the Barli Art Studio in Bandung, continuing his family's legacy in art education and creation. His paintings, rooted in abstraction, reflect his concern for the balance of life and humanity. For Adit, abstraction is not a departure from form but a deeper process of maturity and exploration. It is an effort to translate the unseen energies and emotional movements that exist behind every human experience.

TENG NEE CHEONG

Teng Nee Cheong was renowned for his richly coloured oil paintings and charcoal drawings of the human figure. Influenced by Balinese mythology, Hinduism, Buddhism, Asian mural traditions, Persian miniatures, and the gilded works of Gustav Klimt, Teng developed a distinctive style that fused Asian cultural themes with decorative modernism. His early works featured semi-abstract frangipani treetops before evolving into the figurative works for which he became best known.

A graduate of the Nanyang Academy of Fine Arts (1968), Teng received awards including the Ministry of Culture Special Award (1978), Tan Tsze Chor Art Award (1991), and the Philip Morris Singapore Art Award (1993, 1995, 1996). He held four solo exhibitions—in Singapore, Jakarta, and internationally—and participated in numerous group shows at venues such as Le Grand Palais, Paris (1987), the Hong Kong Arts Centre (1998), and the Tropenmuseum, Amsterdam (1998). His works are represented in collections including the Singapore Art Museum, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Singtel, and the Neka Museum, Bali.

Originally trained in business, Harijadi began painting while working as a movie poster artist and later as a commercial artist in Jakarta (1940–1941). To support his family, he also worked as a teacher at a girls' school.

WILLEM VAN DER DOES

Willem van der Does (1889-1966), born in Rotterdam, was a Dutch painter, illustrator, and draughtsman known for his accurate impressionistic style. He arrived in Indonesia around 1918 as a civil servant, a role that allowed him to travel extensively across the archipelago and capture its diverse landscapes.

During his time in Indonesia, from 1918 to 1939, van der Does actively participated in various group exhibitions in cities like Jakarta, Medan, and Surabaya. His artworks frequently depicted harbor scenes, city views, and landscapes of the region. After decades in the East, he returned to the Netherlands in 1946, settling in Zeist, where he passed away in 1966.

ADAM LAY

Adam Lay was born in Wonosobo, Central Java, on September 25, 1949. He began painting during his elementary school years and is celebrated as a self-taught artist. His first solo exhibition was held in 1979 at Hotel Indonesia, Jakarta, and he went on to participate in numerous exhibitions in Indonesia and Australia.

Known for his animal paintings, particularly doves and horses, Adam Lay often depicted wild horses running freely across vast landscapes, symbolizing unbridled freedom. After suffering a stroke in 2005, he decided to stop painting horses, expressing a desire to break free from any creative constraints. Just as his horses embodied freedom, he believed the artist should also be free to explore subjects without limitation.

KARTIKA AFFANDI

Kartika Affandi, the only daughter of Indonesia's legendary painter Affandi, is one of the most prominent female expressionist artists in Southeast Asia. She studied art at Tagore University in Shantiniketan, India, under the guidance of Nandalal Bose and other masters. In 1958, she held a touring exhibition in Vienna and has since exhibited widely around the world.

Kartika has received numerous international recognitions, including an Honorary Doctorate in Art and Culture from Northern California Global University (2004), an Honorary Maestro Degree in Pittura from Italy, and a Golden Medal from the Accademia di Salsomaggiore, Italy.

Deeply inspired by nature and human emotion, Kartika's paintings are known for their vivid energy, honesty, and spontaneity. She continues her father's legacy of painting directly with her fingers and paint tubes, a method that allows her to channel raw emotion and rhythm into each composition.

YAP HIAN TJAY

Yap Hian Tjay was born in Surakarta, Central Java, in 1927. Between 1950 and 1957, he studied at the Academie voor Beeldende Kunsten in Rotterdam and the Rijksacademie in Amsterdam, The Netherlands. A pupil of Siauw Tik Kwie, Yap built a reputation for consistency and technical excellence, working primarily in a naturalistic style. His works have been collected widely in Indonesia, Vietnam, Poland, and abroad. In Indonesia, his paintings are part of the collection of the Presidential Palace.

Yap was especially drawn to scenes of farmers harvesting rice. He often sought out harvest sites by asking locals, determined to ground his art in authentic observation. This dedication to naturalistic landscapes made his work resonate with a wide audience, including Indonesia's sixth president, Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono, who particularly admired his depictions of rural scenery. During Yudhoyono's presidency, many of Yap Hian Tjay's works were collected.

ERICA HESTU WAHYUNI

Erica Hestu Wahyuni (born 1971 in Yogyakarta) is an Indonesian painter recognized for her distinctively expressive and often described "childlike" style. She began painting early, studying under Suharto P.R. and Herry Wibowo at Sanggar Katamsi, and later graduated from the Indonesian Institute of the Arts (ISI) Yogyakarta in 1996, where she received the Best Work award in 1993.

Erica's paintings are characterized by striking colors with high contrasts and often feature simplistic objects like elephants, doves, and children. While some perceive her style as naive, the true depth of her work lies in its meticulous detail and interconnected narratives, which subtly unveil human complexities. She has held solo exhibitions in Yogyakarta and Jakarta and actively participated in numerous group exhibitions both in Indonesia and internationally, including Singapore, the Philippines, Japan, and Russia.

JASON MONET

Jason Monet was a British painter, sculptor, and environmentalist whose work captured the vibrancy of tropical life and the beauty of nature. Born in Chelsea, London, in 1938, he studied Commercial Art at the Christopher Wren Technical School and graduated from the London School of Printing and Graphic Art, majoring in design. Though he began his career in commercial art, Monet soon turned to painting and sculpture, developing a bold and expressive style that reflected his passion for color, texture, and form.

Throughout his life, Monet lived and worked across England, Australia, the West Indies, Malta, Fiji, and most notably Bali, Indonesia, where he settled in Ubud. The island's light, landscapes, and people became enduring sources of inspiration for his paintings and sculptures, which often incorporated natural materials such as wood and stone.

KOEMPOEL SUJATNO

Koempoel Sujatno (1912-1987) was a prolific Indonesian painter born in Ngawi, East Java. He was a student of Dutch artists Gerard Pieter Adolfs and Willem van der Does, and is associated with the Mooi Indie ("Beautiful Indies") style. His talent was first recognized by his headmaster at a Dutch school, who introduced him to Adolfs.

From 1928 to 1932, Adolfs taught Koempoel realistic representation techniques that would become central to his success. Koempoel had a strong preference for painting outdoors, capturing scenes under natural light. This is reflected in the bright and harmonious colors of his work, which exude a graceful charm. Though many of his estimated 2,500 paintings have been lost or damaged, his legacy as a master of the Mooi Indie style endures. He passed away in Batu, East Java, in 1987 due to severe throat cancer.
