Gallery Preface

Neo Gallery: Reviving Central Javanese Maestro's Legacy

Neo Gallery: Where art never dies–continues to flourish in color, form, and profound meaning.

Jawa Tengah, a region rich in cultural artistry, is the birthplace of Indonesia's maestros who have initiated and breathed life into the nation's arts. Amidst a dark period of colonization, they steadfastly upheld the value of art, their artistic spirit never wavering, remaining actively engaged in their artworks.

Indonesia's first president, Soekarno, wisely supported Indonesian visual arts during his era. He made the arts flourish, building a place for generations of new artists to come. Soekarno gathered the maestros, nurtured their exquisite creations, and showcased Indonesian visual arts on the global stage.

The irony lies in the fact that the greatness of Indonesian maestros' works don't receive recognition comparable to foreign artists. Neo Gallery is here with a determined mission: to ensure that our maestros are not forgotten by the younger generation. We offer a proper platform for artists who have left behind extraordinary works, with the hope that these creations will continue to be appreciated and collected by the youth.

The maestros and their works are invaluable assets to Indonesia. That's why Neo Gallery is here, dedicated to preserving this heritage. Our commitment extends beyond the preservation of these artworks and artists; we aim to breathe new life into them and share their stories with diverse groups and generations.

Through the introduction of these artists and their creations, our goal is to inspire the younger generation and provide support to contemporary artists. We've carefully selected the finest masterpieces from Central Java as evidence that these works of art deserve to thrive and endure.

Abdullah Suriosubroto

(Semarang, 1878 - 1941)

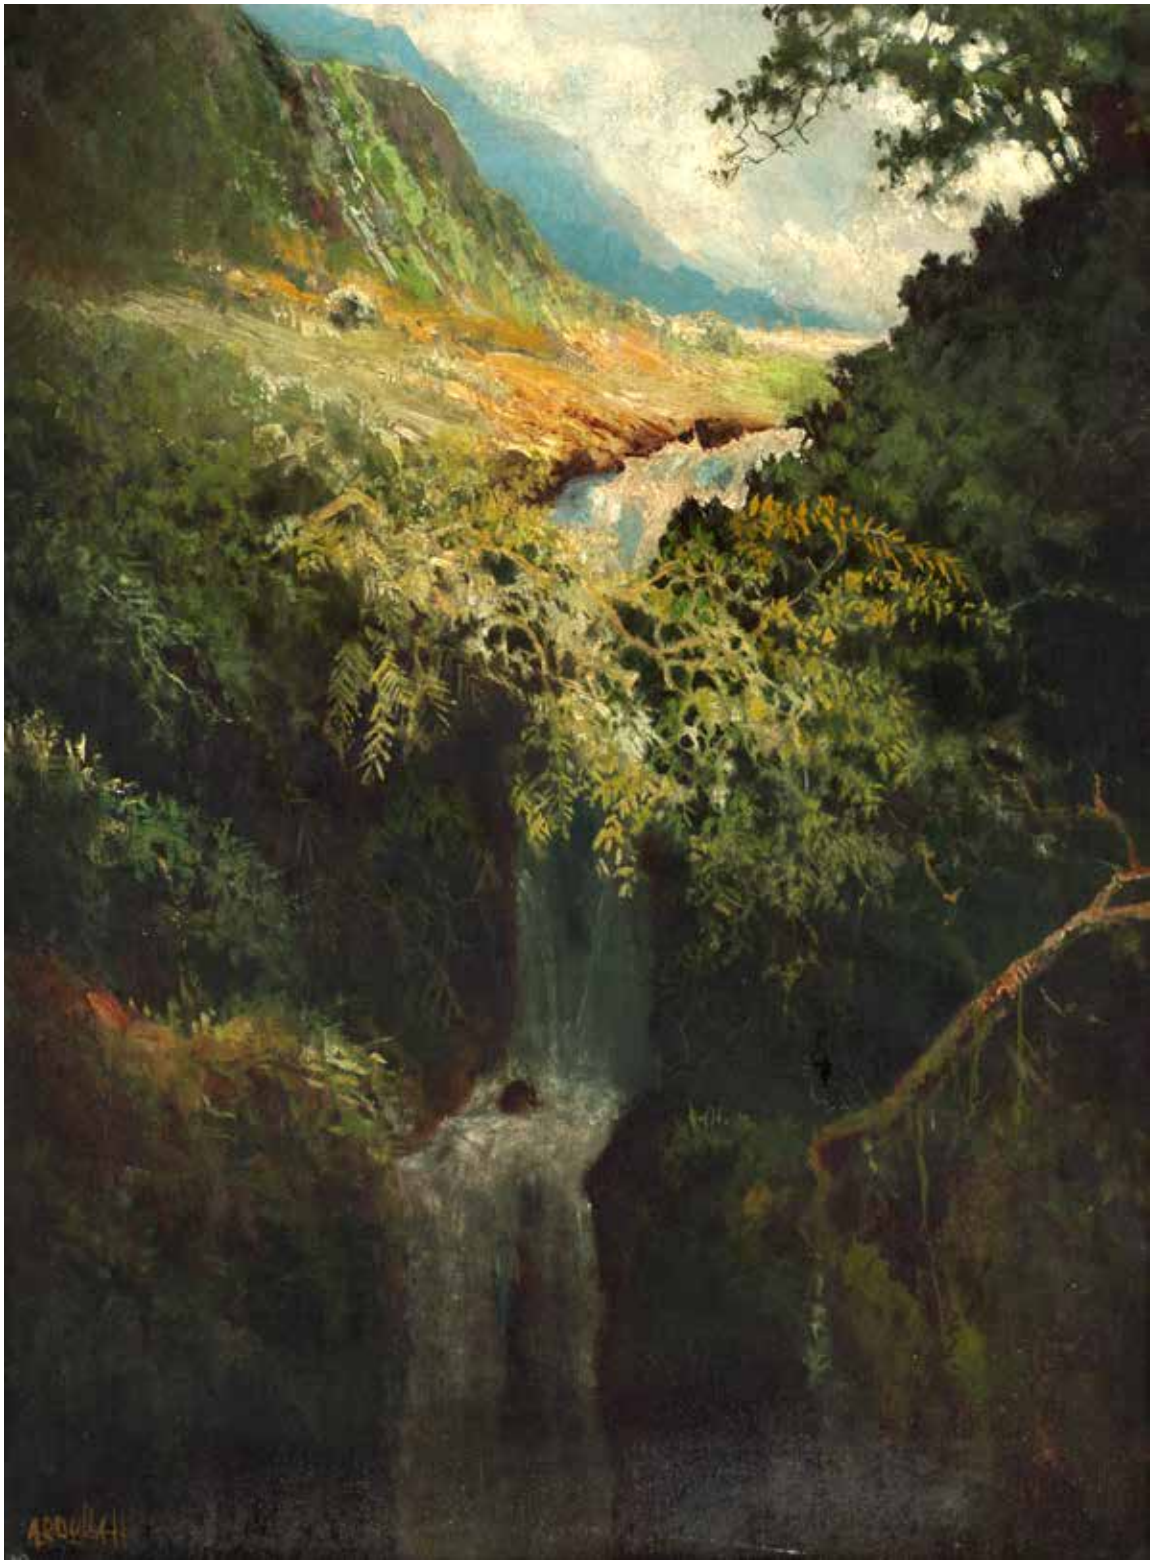

Abdullah Suriosubroto, one of Indonesia's pioneering modern painters from the 20th century. Sent to Holland with a plan of becoming a doctor, he boldly followed his passion for art instead. He embarked on a three-year artistic journey in Leiden, followed by enrollment in the prestigious painting academy in Amsterdam.

Suriosubroto was called "The Mooi Indie Painter" due to his remarkable ability to craft exquisite paintings of Indonesian landscapes. Back in Indonesia, he blossomed into a renowned landscape and village painter, capturing the beauty of Bandung and its surroundings. He also frequently captures the charm of Java's forests and villages in his art.

In this exquisite piece titled "Indonesia Landscape", Suriosubroto's canvases embrace the beauty of nature, skillfully portraying a waterfall enveloped by luxuriant trees, giving this painting a sense of beauty and tranquillity. He is known for his work in the Mooi Indie style, which pays great attention to lighting techniques. His paintings create impressive works of art and highlight the deep meaning of feng shui. In this artwork, he depicts waterfalls and streams as symbols of endless flowing fortune, portraying the harmony between nature and light.

With skillful precision, in his painting titled "Pantai", Suriosubroto captures serene beach scenery, portraying tranquil waves set against a backdrop of towering rock cliffs and thick white clouds.

AFFANDI

Known for his distinctive technique of pouring oil paint directly from the tube onto the canvas and then shaping it meticulously with his fingers, Affandi is considered an Indonesian Artist par excellence.

As a genuine maestro, Affandi adeptly conveys his emotions with profound and vivid expressions in every one of his artworks. This remarkable quality is evident in each of his magnificent creations. Additionally, a distinctive and unique aspect of his work is the inclusion of his classic 'life force' symbol, which consists of a sun, hands, and feet, placed above his signature. This symbol signifies his satisfaction with the final outcome of the painting.

Affandi is celebrated for his spontaneity and firmness in expressing his art. His choice of painting subjects comes from deep meditation on his observations and emotions. In 1978 using oil on canvas, Affandi made "Withered Sunflowers". Sunflower objects are often considered a symbol of happiness. Under the bright light of the sun, which symbolizes the source of life, sunflowers illustrate the beauty and joy that can be obtained from nature.

Bagong Kussudiardja

(Yogyakarta, 1928-2004)

Bagong Kussudiardja is a renowned choreographer and painter who's known as a master of Indonesian art. Had a family background in the Yogyakarta Palace's royalty, providing him with an early connection to the world of art.

Kussudiardja embarked on his formal art education during the Old Order era at the Indonesian Academy of Fine Arts (ASRI). His artistic pinnacle, however, was achieved during the New Order era. During this period, he received numerous commissions for artworks from the government, state-owned enterprises, corporations, and various institutions.

Kussudiardja conducted numerous exhibitions throughout his lifetime, both within Indonesia and internationally. His significant contribution to the Indonesian art scene is exemplified by his unwavering commitment to promoting dance and painting on the global stage.

Created in 1980, using oil on canvas with dimensions of 95 x 147 cm, Kussudiardja crafted "Pejuang I" and "Pejuang II." These two paintings portray ancient Indonesian warriors, armed with firearms, gathered together in conversation. They have the same main goal: fighting for Indonesian independence.

Basoeki Abdullah

(Solo, 1915-1993)

Renowned for his realism and naturalism in painting, Basoeki Abdullah held the esteemed position of Presidential Painter at Istana Merdeka in Jakarta, appointed by President Soekarno. His artistic talents were inherited from his father, Abdullah Suriosubroto, who was both a painter and dancer. Abdullah's artistic journey began at the age of 4 when he passionately painted iconic figures such as Mahatma Gandhi, Rabindranath Tagore, Jesus Christ, and Krishnamurti.

Basoeki Abdullah earned the nickname "Painter of Kings." His art has been highly regarded and collected in numerous countries, including Europe, although it has become increasingly scarce following the maestro's passing in 1993.

His signature style is figurative realism, a technique he mastered to perfection, endowing each of his works with beauty and grandeur. Abdullah's international acclaim was solidified when one of his paintings was crowned the best at Queen Juliana's coronation in Amsterdam.

Abdullah frequently portrayed scenes from everyday life, such as dragon dances and "Liong" performances. With exceptional skill, he captured the sheer joy and vibrancy of these performances through spontaneous brushwork. The focal point of these shows, the dragons, came to life through bold green and red contrasts, creating a visually stunning experience.

Basoeki Abdullah is a famous painter known for his work in the figurative realism style. His subjects often include naked women, which reflects Basoeki's appreciation for the beauty of the female form. Using his exceptional skill in capturing perfect proportions, he created a painting he entitled "Nude."

DULLAH
(Solo, 1919 – 1996)

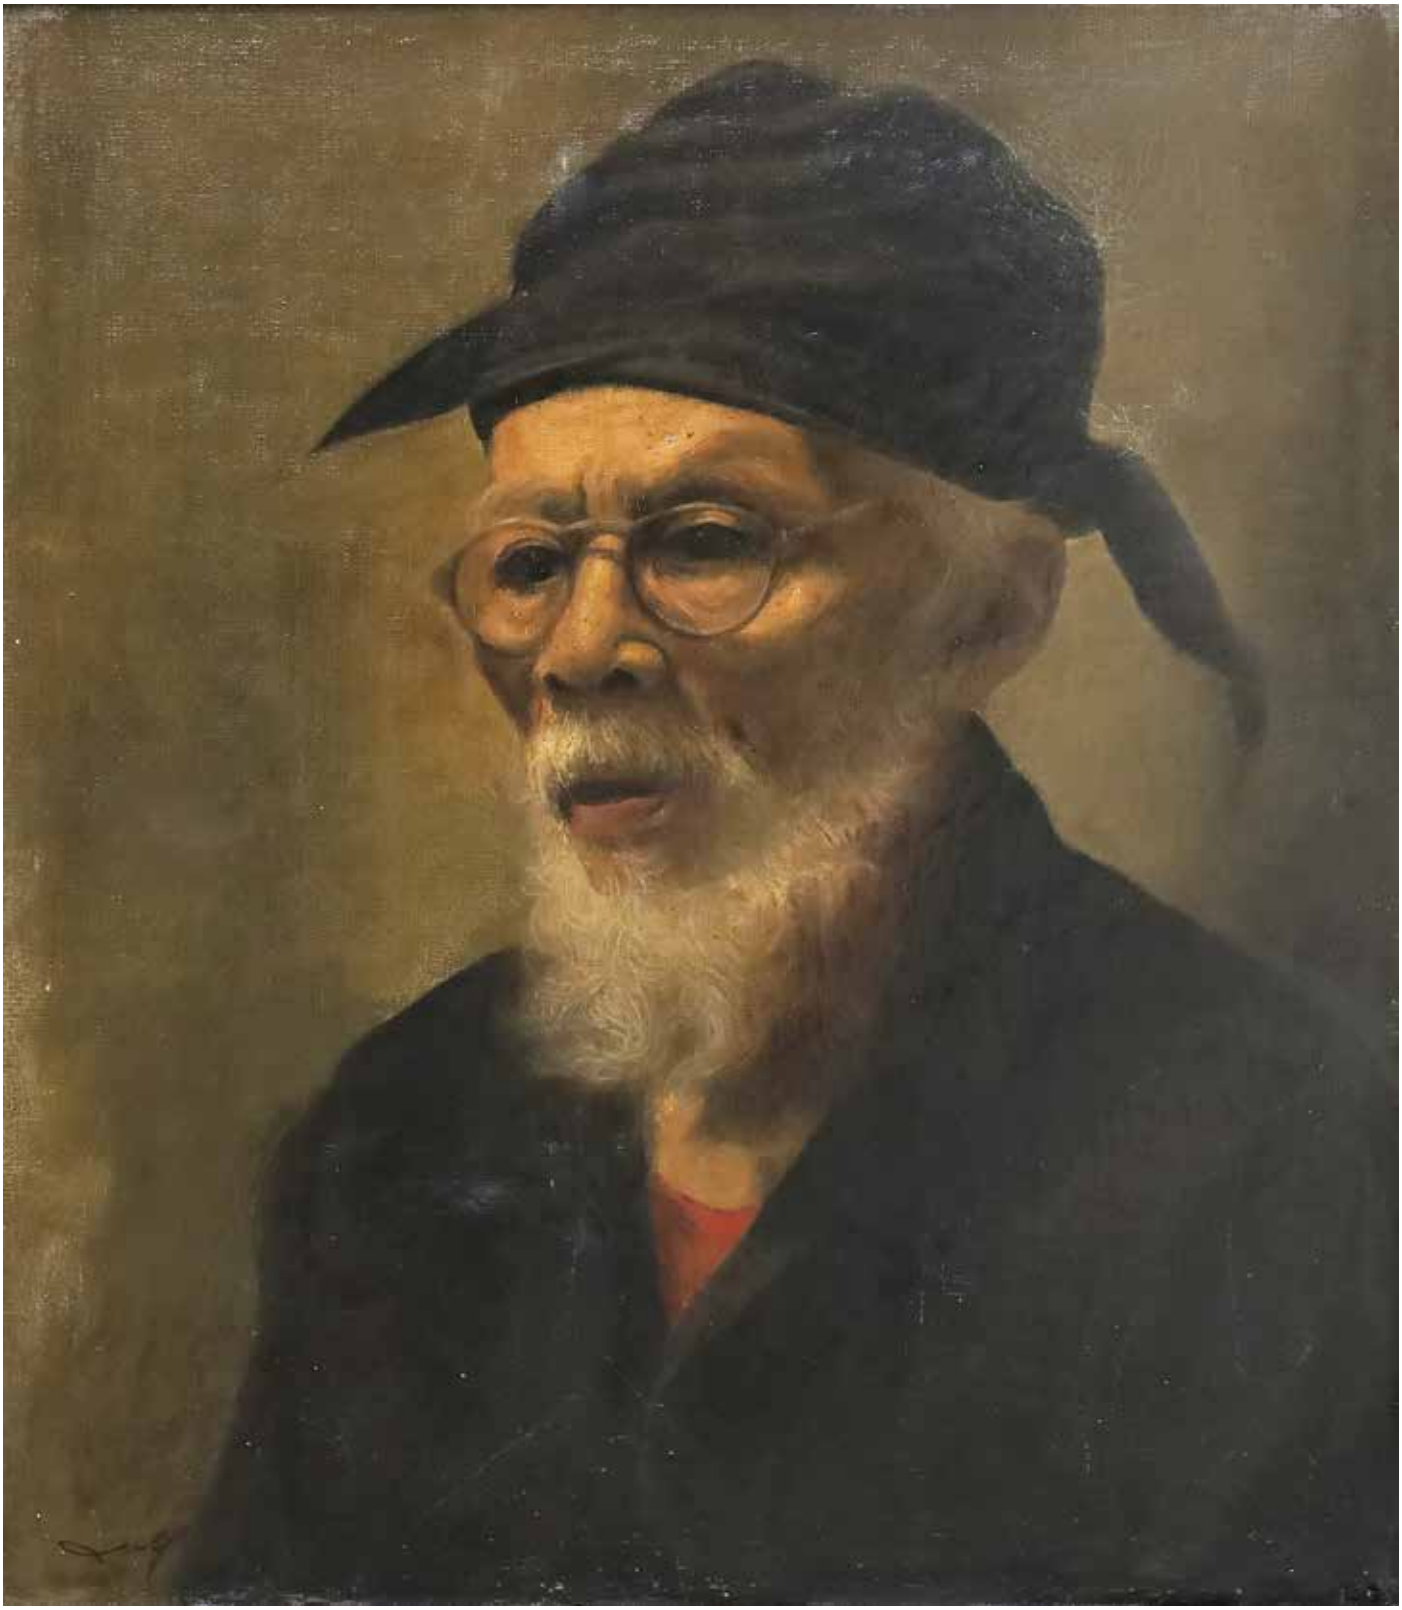

Starting his journey with the brush started at the age of 16, Dullah became renowned for his skill in creating realistic artwork. Dullah's artistic development was under the guidance of esteemed Indonesian artists Affandi and Sudjojono. As one of Indonesia's pioneering realist painters, he gained recognition for his proficiency in depicting landscapes and portraits.

Dullah had a strong relationship with Soekarno, the first President of the Republic of Indonesia. Soekarno appointed Dullah as the custodian of his private art collection, the curator of the national painting collections, and the palace painter.

Dullah was an educator and mentored numerous students within the Pajeng group, a studio he established in 1974 in Pajeng, Bali. He authored the book "Karya dalam Peperangan dan Revolusi " in 1982 and established the Dullah Museum in Solo to collect not only his own works but also those of fellow Indonesian artists.

Dullah is a painter who is very famous for his honesty in representing realism. Each of his works depicts a very real situation without additions or subtractions in any aspect. In this painting titled "Kakek", Dullah depicted the figure of a grandfather in great detail, capturing the wrinkles on his face, his white beard, and the glasses that adorn the elderly face he painted.

Bung Karno frequently encouraged Dullah to pursue his artistic education, which made him study under renowned foreign painters and travel abroad to continue developing his artistic skills. "Burmese Girl" is one of the notable outcomes of Dullah's pursuit of artistic excellence during his time studying abroad.

Djoko Pekik

(Grobogan, 1938 - 2023)

Djoko Pekik's artistic journey took root at the Indonesian Art Academy (ASRI), Yogyakarta, under the mentorship of Trubus and Hendra Gubawan. In the 1980s, he showcased his talent in numerous exhibitions, from the Indonesian Culture in the United States (KIAS) to the Asian Art Exhibition in Japan. His artistry also shone in solo exhibitions held in Jakarta and Yogyakarta.

Djoko Pekik's artistry embodies a realist-expressive style, enriched with the value of everyday life. Within his works, he articulates poignant critiques of the social and political landscape in Indonesia.

One of Djoko Pekik's renowned creations is the painting and sculpture titled "Berburu Celeng" crafted in 1998. At first glance, we may perceive it as two men returning with their hunted boar. Yet, upon closer inspection, these two figures appear to be afflicted by hunger, a puzzling scenario considering their successful hunt of such a massive boar. Why do they still hunger despite their massive catch? What are your thoughts? Could you give alternative "interpretations" within Djoko Pekik's most extraordinary masterpiece?

Edhi Sunarso

(Salatiga, 1932 - 2016)

Edhi Sunarso was a distinguished sculptor and public artist from Indonesia, whose abilities were acknowledged by Bung Karno, and Bung Karno entrusted many very important national monuments to Sunarso. He is known for creating several iconic monuments and landmarks that adorn several cities in Indonesia, including notable works like the Selamat Datang Monument and the Dirgantara statue, which is also known as the Pancoran Monument.

Since the 1950s, Sunarso's work has been exhibited in various local and international exhibitions. Sunarso was also active in the world of art education, serving as a lecturer at various institutions from 1958 to 1990.

His prowess in art has resulted in several awards, including the International Sculpture Competition in England (1953), where he received a gold medal for the best sculpture. He also received recognition for his work in India (1956-1957), the Art Charter (1984), the Art Charter for Monumental Works in Jogjakarta (1996), the Parama Dharma Cultural Star (2003), and the Empu Ageng Sculpture Award by ISI Yogyakarta (2010).

Sunarso believed that knowledge and understanding of realist forms were essential for a sculptor, even though the forms and styles he used changed over time.In one aspect of his work, Sunarso focused on the power of expression and character in his sculptures. Here, he used andesite stone with carving and molding techniques derived from clay, which were later cast in bronze or other materials.

On the other hand, Sunarso created figurines from clay or wax models, which were then cast using materials like glass fiber and bronze. In this type of work, Sunarso emphasized not only expression but also gestures.

Fadjar Sidik

(Februari, 1930-2004)

Fadjar Sidik's artistic journey began at ASRI Yogyakarta in 1954, where he honed his skills under the guidance of Hendra Gunawan and Sudarso. He received recognition from the Indonesian Government with a Contemporary Painting award in 1971, and the Government of Yogyakarta also acknowledged his talents.

Fadjar is a master of form purity, and in his art, he crafts 'expressive designs.' These abstract creations draw inspiration from Color Fields and Spatial Dynamics, forming the heart of his artistic expression.

Fadjar Sidik's abstract works depict arrangements that are not constrained by specific shapes and utilize layers of colors. The harmony achieved through this detachment consistently fills his works with an artistic balance seldom encountered in other artists

Handrio

(Purwakarta, 1926 - 2010)

Handrio started his painting career by studying with Basuki Abdullah. Furthermore, during the Japanese period, he studied with Sudjojono and Agus Djaja at Keimin Bunka Shidoso and Poetera in Jakarta. At first, Handrio's paintings were in the style of realism and Surrealism.

Handrio's artistic evolution: Shifting to a semi-abstract style in the 1950s, he skillfully deconstructed shapes within geometric planes, a very different style from the prevailing Yogyakarta painters of the era. Exploring still-life objects and musical instruments during this phase, his journey continued into the late 1960s, when these forms transformed into dynamic, intricate geometric spaces.

The peak of Handrio's abstract style achievement occurred in the 1980s. The space, field, and color in his paintings represent the characterization of the construction of the elements themselves. In this expression, what is present is dynamics, rhythm, complexity, robustness, balance, or other images

"Membiasnya Komposisi Kuning dan Orange " is one of his masterpieces, made in 1979 – an oil-on-canvas spanning by 86 x 63.5 cm. This creation showcased Handrio's exceptional talent and visionary approach to crafting dynamic geometric spaces with shades of yellow and orange refracting, making another beautiful shades of colour.

Irsam

(Klaten, 1942)

Having graduated from the prestigious Indonesian Fine Art Academy (ASRI) in Yogyakarta, Irsam embarked on his artistic journey with his first exhibition in 1967 in Jakarta. His remarkable talent resonated within Indonesia and gave him prestigious awards from the Philippines, Singapore, and Thailand. In 1980, he set out into the international arena, participating in the renowned Contemporary Asian Art Exhibition at the Fukuoka Art Museum in Japan.

Renowned for the rhythmic and poetic depth of his artworks, Irsam stands as a prominent decorative painter in Indonesia. His creative oeuvre is profoundly rooted in the symbolic essence of agrarian society. Irsam's canvas often unfolds scenes from rural life, explores the genuine bonds between mothers and their children, and delves into the rich tapestry of Javanese mythologies. These themes serve as a reflection of the profound connection between his soul and the traditions that underpin his life.

In his paintings, Irsam employs precise and delicate artistic strokes, adorned with a palette of soft pastel hues. Utilizing oil paint on canvas, his works such as "Kasih Ibu #2" and "Ibu dan Anak" vividly capture the essence of maternal love and family harmony, aspirations cherished by all. These paintings sharply convey the warmth inherent in the affectionate relationship between mother and child, inviting viewers to immerse themselves in the profound emotions they depict.

Irsam's artistry extends beyond the portrayal of the profound bond between mother and child; he also captures the heartwarming connection between animals and humans. In his oil painting on canvas titled "Burung Klangenan", he masterfully depicts a scene in which a woman gazes at a Klangenan bird perched delicately on her hand.

The Klangenan bird holds a special place as a beloved pet, often regarded as a cherished member of the family by its owner. The Klangenan Bird could provide solace during moments of sorrow. Their presence has a comforting and uplifting effect that shows the strong boundaries of this bird and the owner.

Nasjah Djamin
(1924 - 1997)

Coming from a family devoid of artistic talent, Nasjah Djamin stands out as the sole member with an innate gift for painting. At the age of 21, Nasjah embarked on his artistic journey by co-founding the Indonesian Fine Arts Force (ASRI) in Medan alongside fellow visionaries, including M. Saleh, M. Kameil, M. Hussein, Daoed Joseoef, Ismail Daulay, and Tino Sidin in 1945. They hosted their first painting exhibition in Medan in September 1945.

The year 1946 marked a pivotal moment in Djamin's artistic journey as he made the life-altering decision to move to Java and immerse himself in the study of painting. His destination was Yogyakarta, where he joined the Young Indonesian Artists Studio (SIM) under the guidance of maestros like Affandi and S. Sudjojono. Here, he honed his craft alongside fellow painters such as Nashar and Trubus Soedarsono.

Djamin's painting prowess was further refined when Affandi invited him to visit the studio of Soedarso, a prominent member of Sanggar Seniman Masyarakat, to stay and study there.

Throughout his artistic career, Djamin's works served as a testament to the modern art of his era. His distinctive artistic signature was characterized by a profound sense of silence, often exploring themes of portraiture and landscapes. Notably, Djamin frequently focused on single objects within his portrait paintings, while some of them depicted crowds.

Sudarso's journey began when he was still delivering milk to one of his customers, who happened to be Affandi. He found inspiration in Affandi's expertise and started spending hours each day observing Affandi at work near the canvas.

Affandi was impressed by Sudarso's natural talent and generously shared his remaining paint with him. Sudarso continued his training by working alongside several young painters in Bandung, including Affandi, Barli, Wahdi, Hendra, and Koos. Sudarso's painting style leans toward an impressive and realistic approach. He is also renowned as a figurative and nude painter.
