AFFANDI

Affandi (1907–1990) is regarded as one of Indonesia's most influential modern artists of the 20th century. Born in Cirebon, he was largely self-taught, studying anatomy, perspective, and academic techniques on his own before developing a unique style rooted in expression rather than imitation. His swirling brushstrokes, bold colors, and dynamic compositions became his hallmark, earning him comparisons to Van Gogh.

His career was marked by major recognitions, including a professorship at Ohio State University, an honorary doctorate from the National University of Singapore in 1974, and the International Peace Prize from the Dag Hammarskjöld Foundation in 1977. His works were exhibited widely, from the Venice Biennale to the São Paulo Biennale.

HENDRA GUNAWAN

Hendra Gunawan, born in Bandung, was one of Indonesia's most influential modern painters. He began his career in the 1930s and developed a distinctive style that fused bold, modernist techniques with traditional Indonesian themes. Known as the "people's painter," Hendra often chose everyday subjects—street vendors, workers, and families—and gave them lasting presence through his strong colors and dynamic compositions. His works have been exhibited internationally, including at the Venice Biennale 2024.

"Crab Seller" shows a lively market interaction. A crab seller sits close to her buyers, their figures leaning in conversation and exchange. The women wear patterned batik kain and kebaya, their bodies painted in Hendra's distinctive elongated forms. The scene highlights his way of turning daily life into art, where simple acts of buying and selling become moments full of movement and human connection.

BASOEKI ABDULLAH

Basoeki Abdullah was one of Indonesia's most distinguished painters, known for his mastery of realism. Trained at the Royal Academy of Art in The Hague, he rose to international prominence after winning an art competition to commemorate Queen Juliana's accession. His reputation extended worldwide, with commissions from President Soekarno, kings, and heads of state, including portraits for the Non-Aligned Movement Summit in 1992.

"My Dream Girl" portrays a poised young woman in a luminous golden gown, seated gracefully against a lush, dreamlike landscape. The cascading folds of her dress are rendered with exquisite attention to light and texture, while her serene yet confident expression radiates elegance. The work highlights Abdullah's mastery in capturing fine details, from the sheen of fabric to the natural grace of the woman.

LEE MAN FONG

Lee Man Fong was a Chinese-Indonesian painter whose work bridged Chinese brush traditions and Western modernism. Born in Guangzhou and raised in Singapore, he later settled in Jakarta in the 1930s, where he quickly rose to prominence. A Malino scholarship brought him to the Netherlands from 1949 to 1952, where exposure to Dutch and European art shaped his evolving style. He later exhibited internationally in Paris, Amsterdam, and The Hague.

Returning to Indonesia, he became the leader of Yinhua Meishu Xiehui (Society of Chinese Artists in Indonesia) and served as palace painter to President Sukarno. In his later career, Lee spent years in Singapore, embracing the Nanyang style before returning to Jakarta in 1986.

“Six Goldfish” exemplifies Lee’s lyrical blend of Chinese ink traditions with naturalistic observation. Against a pale, softly graded background, six goldfish drift gracefully through water, their delicate fins painted with fluid, transparent brushstrokes. Subtle touches of vegetation and rock anchor the scene, while the artist’s calligraphy and seals affirm its rootedness in Chinese literati painting.

SRIHADI SOEDARSONO

Srihadi Soedarsono was an Indonesian painter admired for his expressive use of color and form. He is best remembered for his abstract landscapes and dynamic portrayals of Javanese and Balinese dancers. He received numerous awards, including the National Award for Contemporary Art (1971), the Cultural Award from Australia (1973), and a Fulbright Grant from the United States Government (1980). Furthermore, Srihadi contributed greatly to art education through his teaching at Institut Teknologi Bandung and his leadership role at Institut Kesenian Jakarta.

“Legong Condong – The Energy of Love” captures the charged vitality of the Balinese Legong dance, with two dancers frozen mid-motion yet alive with rhythm. Their eyes, marked by the distinctive sledet gaze, dart left and right in harmony with the body and music.

Long, spontaneous brushstrokes convey the fluidity of movement, while the vivid orange background heightens the contrast with the dancers’ ornate costumes in red and green. Srihadi highlights traditional Balinese attire such as the gelungan headdress, songket fabric, and jewelry, anchoring the figures in cultural authenticity.

ARKIV VILMANSA

Arkiv Vilmansa is a contemporary Indonesian artist who creates bold, vibrant works that merge street art, pop culture, and childhood nostalgia. A graduate of Parahyangan University, he launched his career with a solo exhibition in Jakarta in 2010 and quickly gained international recognition through his “art toys” series before expanding into prints and paintings.

His distinctive style, marked by bright colours, organic shapes, and cartoon-like forms, has led to collaborations with global brands, including a partnership with Japan’s BAPE (A Bathing Ape), the first for a Southeast Asian artist.

“Screamers” plays with the visual language of cartoons, with exaggerated gloved hands, rounded shapes, and open mouths that echo the iconic features of characters like Mickey Mouse. The title amplifies this sense of noise and chaos, as if the figures are caught in a chorus of distorted shouts. The painting captures Arkiv’s characteristic style, where pop nostalgia is reimagined through bold colour, playful distortion, and striking contemporary energy.

TRUBUS SUDARSONO

Trubus Sudarsono was a self-taught artist from Yogyakarta whose realist approach in both painting and sculpture placed him among the most respected Indonesian modernists. As a member of Seniman Indonesia Muda and Pelukis Rakyat during the independence struggle, Trubus channeled his art toward themes of nature, daily life, and the dignity of the Indonesian people. Beyond his canvases, he contributed to national projects such as Jakarta's "Welcome Statue" and statues of national heroes.

"Dancer" captures one of Trubus Sudarsono's signature subjects, the elegance of traditional performers. The figure, dressed in ornate attire and crowned with flowers, moves with graceful precision, her body suspended mid-gesture. Shades of green and brown dominate the composition, blending seamlessly to enhance the harmony of the scene.

“The Pink Painter” highlights Abdul Aziz’s ability to render figures with a near three-dimensional presence, as if they emerge beyond the canvas. The painting portrays a Balinese woman dressed in a pink kebaya, her hair wrapped in a towel-like head covering. She holds a brush in one hand and a cup in the other, her gaze intent as though she is painting the very frame that contains her. This clever device creates the illusion of a “frame within a frame”

PUTU SUTAWIJAYA

Putu Sutawijaya is a multidisciplinary Indonesian artist whose practice spans painting, sculpture, and performance. A graduate of SMSR Denpasar and the Indonesian Institute of the Arts (ISI) Yogyakarta, his work bridges Bali's spiritual traditions with contemporary artistic languages and has been widely exhibited across Asia and beyond.

"The Dance of Remembering #4", part of his solo exhibition series The Dance of Remembering in Hong Kong, reflects Putu Sutawijaya's belief that painting and dancing are inseparable acts of living. A vortex of radiant gold pulls countless figures into a spiral of motion, their gestures echoing ritual choreography. Two Barong masks surface within the dance, evoking the spiritual complexity of Balinese performance.

Here, memory takes shape through movement. The repeated figures suggest not only the artist's personal recollections but also the shared cultural memory of Balinese ritual. By weaving these layers together, Putu turns remembrance into a vivid act of dance and painting, where body, tradition, and history meet on the canvas.

"Memory Obstructed by Time" shows a torrent of bodies moving in rhythmic gestures, caught between dance and struggle. The overlapping figures blur into one another, suggesting both the flow of ritual and the way memory becomes fragmented. At the center, a dancer lifts a mask, a familiar motif in Putu's work that symbolizes identity and change. The swirling brushstrokes create strong movement, while earthy tones anchor the scene with intensity.

The title comes to life in the way memory is shown as unclear and shifting. The fractured bodies and gestures reflect how memories are never complete, but shaped by time, absence, and reinterpretation. In this work, personal and cultural memories come together not as still images but as acts of living and remembering.

MOCHTAR APIN

Mochtar Apin (1923–1994) was a painter, illustrator, writer, and educator at Institut Teknologi Bandung (ITB). He studied at the École Nationale Supérieure des Beaux-Arts in Paris (1953–1957) and the Deutsche Akademie der Künste in Berlin (1957–1958), experiences that exposed him to cubism, abstract expressionism, and optical art. His admiration for Victor Vasarely's optical explorations influenced his later geometric works.

“Reading a Book” reveals Mochtar Apin’s characteristic approach of combining figuration with geometric structuring. A young woman sits absorbed with an open book, her form built from overlapping planes of yellow, green, and blue that flatten and fragment the picture space. The batik-patterned cloth grounds her within a local context, while the bold blocks of colour and abstract simplification recall his European influences.

HENK NGANTUNG

Henk Ngantung, born Hendrik Hermanus Joel Ngantung, was an Indonesian painter and political figure who played a unique role in the nation's cultural and civic life. A self-taught artist, he became known for his expressive style and his engagement with Indonesia's visual identity during the post-independence era. Beyond his artistic achievements, Ngantung was appointed by President Sukarno as vice-governor of Jakarta from 1960 to 1964, and later briefly served as governor.

"Village" reflects Ngantung's sensitivity to everyday Indonesian life. The painting depicts a cluster of traditional houses nestled among tall trees and lush greenery, rendered in textured brushstrokes that emphasize atmosphere over detail.

POPO ISKANDAR

Popo Iskandar, born in Garut, was an influential Indonesian modernist painter, art critic, and writer. He began painting in 1944 and later studied at Universitas Indonesia and Institut Teknologi Bandung (ITB), where he also lectured at IKIP Bandung. Popo's works often feature animals, most notably roosters, tigers, and especially cats, which became his most recognizable and iconic subjects. His unique style and artistic contributions earned him an art award from the Indonesian government in 1980.

"Cat" embodies Popo's characteristic way of fragmenting form into abstracted gestures. The presence of the cat is suggested rather than fully described, its red face and elongated body dissolving into bold strokes of color against the dark background. The composition stands out for its striking palette: black as the base, with flashes of red, white, dark blue, and green emerging in contrast.

RICHARD WINKLER

Richard Winkler is a Swedish-born artist who has made Bali his home since 1997. Originally trained in graphic design and illustration in Stockholm, his artistic vision transformed after traveling in Asia, where he found inspiration in tropical light, colors, and culture. He then developed a distinctive style that merges Scandinavian design sensibility with Balinese imagery, creating paintings that radiate balance, clarity, and warmth.

"Afternoon by the Sea" shows Winkler's signature approach, where human figures and landscapes are shaped through rounded, sculptural forms. The composition depicts a woman seated among lush foliage, her curving body and draped sarong echoing the soft geometry of the surrounding plants. The vivid palette of turquoise, orange, and golden yellow heightens the tropical atmosphere, while a serpent weaves through the vegetation, adding tension to the idyllic scene.

XIANG JING

Xiang Jing is a prominent Chinese sculptor who explores the inner lives and psychological truths of women. A 1995 graduate of the Central Academy of Fine Arts, she sculpts figures marked by moments of insecurity, hesitation, and self-discovery, reflecting a deep investigation into the "internality" of human nature.

Xiang's art rejects conventional beauty standards to portray the raw, imperfect nature of women. Her work, including series like "Keep in Silence" and "Naked Beyond Skin", uses subtle yet powerful details—such as a flabby waistline or an awkward stance—to reveal the deeper, existential truths of the human experience. Xiang Jing works from a woman's perspective to explore themes of identity, the human body, and an individual's relationship with the outside world.

XOOANG CHOI

Xooang Choi is a Korean sculptor known for his unsettling and thought-provoking figurative works. He earned his MFA from Seoul National University and, since 2007, has worked on a larger scale to create pieces that unearth dark emotions and explore social issues. His sculptures, which often modify human proportions or isolate body parts, delve into themes of human rights, discrimination, isolation, and loneliness.

Choi's work uses hyperrealistic techniques to capture raw human emotion, but his sculptures are also surreal, with bodies that are distorted, exaggerated, or merged with other forms. Created from clay and resin, his figures have extremely detailed, powerful expressions that reflect feelings of fear, bitterness, and anger. Choi focuses on how modern social systems control people and their emotions, inviting viewers to question their own role in society. He has exhibited in numerous museums and galleries in South Korea and internationally such as in France, Italy, Singapore, and many more.

I NYOMAN TJOKOT

I Nyoman Tjokot (ca. 1886/1888–1971) was born in Jati Village, Tegalalang, Ubud, Bali, where he also served as a pemangku (temple priest). Deeply spiritual, he drew inspiration from sacred Hindu texts on lontar leaves and long meditations at Pura Agung Taro. His sculptures embody a Balinese essence rooted in myth and ritual, often taking the form of haunting beasts and demons. Uniquely, Tjokot never sketched outlines but carved directly, guided by imagination and the natural form of the wood itself.

Tjokot honored nature by never cutting down living trees, working only with abandoned or weathered pieces found near rivers. His originality gave rise to the style later known as cokotisme, characterized by expressive, rough-hewn surfaces and forms that reveal both the rawness of the wood and the spirit within. In 1969, the Indonesian Government awarded him the Wijaya Kusuma Prize, acknowledging his role as a pioneer who transformed Balinese woodcarving into a modern artistic language.

UGO UNTORO

Ugo Untoro is an interdisciplinary artist whose work spans installations, sculptures, comics, paintings, drawings, and objects, often probing the depths of human existence. A graduate of the Indonesian Institute of the Arts (ISI) Yogyakarta, his career highlights include solo shows such as Rindu Lukisan Merasuk di Badan at the National Gallery of Indonesia (2019) and Poem of Blood at the Rome Contemporary Art Fair (2009). His awards include the Philip Morris Award (1994) and Tempo magazine's Man of the Year (2007).

"Sacrifice" shows Ugo Untoro's stark and minimal way of painting, filled with emotional weight. A long figure in green and blue lies stretched across a brown ground, its head resting on a pale form like a stone. The simplified, almost skeletal body suggests both exhaustion and surrender. The empty background makes the figure appear like an offering, as if it is sacrificing itself.

WIDAYAT

Widayat was a pioneering Indonesian painter whose works combined decorative rhythm, mythology, and folk traditions into a distinctively Indonesian modern style. Born in Kutoarjo, Central Java, he studied at the Indonesian Fine Art Academy (ASRI) in Yogyakarta, later expanding his practice with studies in ceramics and landscape art in Nagoya, Japan.

Over his long career as both artist and teacher, Widayat became known for creating paintings described as magical and enchanting, filled with repeated motifs and patterns that evoke both traditional and primitive art forms.

“Toy Seller” presents a lively scene of traditional vendors carrying colorful toys, balloons, and decorations. The figures are flattened into rhythmic silhouettes, their forms blending with the richly textured background. Bright accents of color — painted toys, lanterns, and balloons — glow against the darker tones, creating a sense of festivity and movement. In Widayat’s hands, the everyday sight of toy sellers is transformed into something special and beautiful.

WILLEM DOOIJEWAAARD

Willem Dooijewaard studied at the Rijksschool voor Kunstnijverheid under Roland Strasser and Georg Sturm before embarking on a career marked by travel and discovery. He first visited Indonesia in 1913 and spent six years on a rubber plantation in Sumatra, from 1913 to 1918, before traveling to Bali in 1919. There he developed close friendships with Rudolf Bonnet and Willem Hofker, whose approaches influenced his own.

A restless yet contemplative spirit, Dooijewaard journeyed widely across Asia, including a remarkable trek across the Gobi Desert and the Tibetan highlands, before later working in Southern France, North Africa, and the Netherlands. His work was also included in the painting event at the 1936 Summer Olympics.

“Nude in Front of Mirror” reflects Dooijewaard’s interest in the human form and his refined sense of composition. The woman stands with a quiet, self-contained presence, her body softly modeled in natural tones against the deep blues of the curtain and the reflective surface of the mirror. The intimate domestic setting, with details such as the patterned fabric and wicker chair, grounds the work in everyday reality while emphasizing the subject’s vulnerability and poise.

ANTONIO BLANCO

Antonio Blanco was a flamboyant artist born in Manila to Spanish parents. After studying in New York and extensive travels, including Hawaii, Japan, and Cambodia, he found his artistic haven in Bali in 1952. The King of Ubud gifted him land, where he built his home and museum, immersing himself in the local culture and marrying renowned Balinese dancer, Ni Ronji.

Blanco's paintings primarily focused on women, characterized by a romantic-expressive and dreamy style. His art was deeply influenced by Bali's scenic beauty and rich artistic culture. He received numerous accolades, including the Tiffany Fellowship, Chevalier du Sahametrail of Cambodia, and the Order of Cruz de Caballero from King Juan Carlos I of Spain. His collectors included Ingrid Bergman, President Sukarno, and Michael Jackson.

The Blanco Renaissance Museum opened in 1998 at his residence in Ubud, showcasing over 300 of his works and reflecting his theatrical personality, often compared to Salvador Dalí. Blanco passed away in Denpasar, Bali, in 1999, and received a traditional Balinese cremation.

Chronograph refers to an instrument used to measure intervals of time. Although the innovation has existed since 1820, it was not until the 1920s that Hans Wilsdorf made it known and accessible to the mass market. In 1963, the iconic Daytona was born, distinguished by its three sub-dials and two pushers beside the crown. Closely linked to the endurance race at the Daytona Beach circuit, the model also solidified Rolex's presence in motorsport.

The reference 116518 debuted in 2000 as the gold version, marking the achievement of five years of development in creating a new calibre for the Daytona. This movement offered greater accuracy and, most importantly, a slimmer and more elegant fit, remaining in use to this day.

Rolex created the Sea-Dweller in 1967 to answer the demands of professional divers, and it has conquered the depths ever since. The reference 126603 continues this legacy with a bold two-tone design that blends Oystersteel and 18k yellow gold. Its 43 mm case, black Cerachrom bezel, and luminous dial highlight the model's tool-watch heritage, while water resistance to 1,220 meters and a helium escape valve secure its place as a true deep-sea companion. Driven by the caliber 3235 with a 70-hour reserve, the 126603 combines Rolex's tradition of underwater innovation with contemporary elegance.

Louis Vuitton, one of the world's most iconic luxury brands, is synonymous with high-end leather goods, legendary steamer trunks, monogram handbags, exquisite watches, and cutting-edge fashion. Founded in Paris in 1854 by French craftsman Louis Vuitton, the brand began as a maker of innovative flat-topped, waterproof trunks for travel, including those for Empress Eugénie de Montijo.

Upon Louis Vuitton's death in 1892, his son Georges introduced the signature 'LV' monogram canvas in 1896, featuring the quatrefoil and flower design still emblematic of the brand today. This timeless symbol continues to represent sophistication, style, and the spirit of luxury travel.

CAREL LODEWIJK DAKE JR

Carel Lodewijk Dake Jr. was a Dutch painter known for his impressionistic depictions of Southeast Asia, particularly the Indonesian landscape. He began studying under his father, artist C.L. Dake, and later trained with E. Pieters, A.M. Gorter, and H.M. Krabbe in Laren, the Netherlands. In 1912, he moved to Indonesia, where he lived and worked extensively across Java, Sumatra, and Bali. His fascination with the region's natural beauty became a central theme in his art.

An Indie Mooi painter, Dake also explored scenes from Cambodia and Thailand, but it was Indonesia that most deeply inspired him. He participated in numerous exhibitions in Java and worked in various media including oil, watercolor, and graphic art. In 1915, he was commissioned to create three large dioramas depicting Indonesia for the World Fair in San Francisco.

UMI DACHLAN

A central figure of the Bandung School, Umi Dachlan was renowned for her textured abstract canvases. Rooted in Islamic philosophy, her works reflect a spiritual dialogue with nature and music. She studied under Ahmad Sadali at Institut Teknologi Bandung (ITB), graduating in 1968 as only the third female artist to do so, and in 1969 became ITB's first female lecturer, teaching until 1999. Over time, she moved beyond her mentor's influence to establish her own visual language, securing her place in the history of Indonesian abstraction.

"Abstract Composition in Blue" demonstrates Umi's mastery of texture and color as a spiritual expression. A luminous expanse of cobalt blue anchors the composition, against which fragments of gold and earthy tones appear like weathered surfaces or sacred scripts. The interplay of color and texture suggests both materiality and transcendence, embodying her belief that abstraction can distill the essence of nature and faith.

HASAN

Hasan was born in Sumenep, Madura, and currently resides in Klaten, Central Java. He is an artist who earned both his undergraduate and master's degrees from the Indonesian Institute of the Arts in Surakarta. With over two decades of experience in the art world, he has established himself as a prominent figure in contemporary Indonesian art.

Throughout his career, Hasan has participated in numerous prestigious exhibitions, including the KONTRAKSI Nusantara Fine Arts Exhibition at the National Gallery of Indonesia and Sepayung Indonesia at Keraton Mangkunegaran Surakarta. His achievements include being selected for the Grand Art Exhibition organized by the Indonesian Ministry of Education and Culture and receiving a nomination for the BAZAAR Art Award in 2010.

For Hasan, painting is not only a form of artistic expression but also a medium to convey his feelings about various issues affecting the world, both directly and through different media. He addresses profound and personal issues, translating them into imaginative and symbolic visual forms such as symbols of monsters, fire, tree trunks, stones, heads, eyes, mountains, and human figures. Collectively, his artworks create a contemporary surrealistic atmosphere.

ZAF CHEVALLIER

Zaf Chevallier is a multidisciplinary artist whose work spans graphic design, fashion, interior design, and fine art. Deeply influenced by cross-cultural experiences, Zaf moved to the Netherlands in 1977, where he spent 26 years living, studying, and working. After over a decade in the creative industry, he pursued formal studies in Interior Art Design and Architecture at the Leiden Educational Institution (LOI). While studying, he developed his own artistic voice through design and oil painting, with his works exhibited in Roosendaal, Rotterdam, and Amsterdam between 1991 and 1995.

Zaf's art reflects his unique cultural background—rooted in Indonesia's rich history and shaped by colonial legacies from the Portuguese, Japanese, and Dutch. His paintings express a vision of unity and hope, drawing on diverse influences to explore themes of peace and humanity. As Zaf describes it, his work is a meditation on a shared future: "The new world that is our destination, no matter if we are still alive or dead. The message for our future lies in peace."

DIROT KADIRAH

Raised in a fisherman's family along the northern coast of Java, Dirot Kadirah began his painting career after traveling to Bali in 1992, where he learned under maestros Affandi and Sudarso. His early success selling works to collectors and galleries encouraged him to dedicate himself fully to painting, and by the mid-1990s he had developed his own distinctive style through years of experimentation. Dirot's works portray the daily life of Indonesian people as seen through his personal perception, marked by a technique that sets him apart from his contemporaries.

Since 1994, his paintings have been shown in exhibitions in Bali, Jakarta, Singapore, and the United States, with a notable solo exhibition at Galeri Nasional Indonesia in 2008. In 2009, he was the only painter invited to present his work at the United Nations World Ocean Conference in Manado.

IBRAHIM

Ibrahim is a prominent Indonesian abstract artist whose journey began at SMSR West Sumatra before earning his fine arts degree in painting from the Indonesian Institute of the Arts (ISI) Yogyakarta in 2006. That same year, he returned to West Sumatra to teach at ISI Padang Panjang while continuing to develop his practice.

Rooted in abstract expressionism and influenced by artists like Willem de Kooning and Jackson Pollock, Ibrahim works intuitively, guided by emotion and spontaneity. His untitled canvases, rich with dynamic strokes and fluid forms, invite personal interpretation and foster an intimate dialogue between artwork and viewer, offering a renewed sense of connection in an increasingly detached world.

ARIFIEN NEIF

Arifien Neif was born in Surabaya in 1955. A self-taught artist, he became widely recognized for his slightly naïve style and distinctive figurative compositions.

Before pursuing art full-time, Neif worked as a mason. His artistic talent, however, led him to assist with interior design projects for a friend. This experience inspired him to dedicate himself fully to painting in 1980.

Neif's paintings are deeply influenced by everyday life, transforming ordinary moments into imaginative and romantic compositions. His unique style blends impressionism and romanticism, elevating simple scenes with a dreamlike, slightly surreal quality.

He held solo exhibitions at Bin House, Jakarta (1989), and the Lorin & Kristy Art Gallery, Singapore (1995). Since 1989, he has participated in various solo and group exhibitions, including Tresor International Fine Art Exhibition in Singapore (1993 & 1994), Yayasan Seni Rupa Indonesia / Bradbury International Fine Art Exhibition in Jakarta (1994), and Gallery Santi (1995–1997).
