Hendra Gunawan

Hendra Gunawan created paintings conveying his great feelings and deepest emotions for his country and people. He inspired his paintings with sympathy, compassion, and affection for common people. He took the daily lives of people as subjects for his paintings. He explored their everyday lives, capturing them movingly on canvas in his inimitable style. Portrays of women figures, sellers or mother and child were on old themes that constantly revisited throughout the artist's career.

Hendra's typical portrayal of women are not clearly distinguishable individuals, and they are nourishing, nursing, mothering beauties, voluptuous and undulating bodies wrapped in brightly colored cloth. He used exaggerated profiles, with long necks, protruding noses, and large eyes, echoes the stylization of human form found in wayang. He used natural objects such as mountains and beach as background to his main subject, like illustrated in this present lot. Hendra's stylistic figures and landscapes are perhaps influenced by his deep knowledge of rich signs and symbols of Javanese culture. Java's monumental landscapes illustrated in decorative approach of color are also related to the deeper level of traditional artistic expression in Indonesia.

Handiwirman Saputra

Who says that objects without function or artistic value cannot be transformed into valuable works of art? Handiwirman Saputra, an artist from West Sumatra, brilliantly turns discarded items found on river banks, used goods, and leftover items into art objects with significant value. The 'Tak Berakar, Tak Berpucuk' (No Roots, No Shoots) series of paintings is evidence of Saputra's exceptional creativity and innovative ideas as a contemporary artist.

The purpose of creating art from found objects is to redirect the attention of art enthusiasts from the visual aspect of the artwork to the idea or purpose behind it. In this collection, there is a painting from the series Tak Berakar, Tak Berpucuk, titled 'Akhir Pekan dan Projek Organik dari Tak Berakar Tak Berpucuk #7'. When Saputra went to a contaminated stream close to his house, he began to paint the series of Tak Berakar, Tak Berpucuk (No Roots, No Shoots), which became an intense creative process and conversation that captivated him for more than ten years. Tak Berakar, Tak Berpucuk is still evolving and taking on new forms, including both two-dimensional and three-dimensional versions.

During his creative process, objects are crafted from elements that have undergone specific treatment or have been through human experiences, including interactions with people, technology, or nature, as mentioned by Saputra. This artwork presents pieces of debris, set against a turquoise blue backdrop dotted with brown blemishes, capturing the viewer's focus on the significance of the piece on this canvas. Despite Saputra's use of ordinary materials as the focal point in this artwork, he effectively triggers the viewer's recollection of something familiar yet hard to identify. A proof to Handiwirman Saputra's skill lies in this artwork, where he transforms ordinary moments into poetic reflections and unveils beauty within the ordinary thing. Ultimately, this work provides a clear and thoughtful view of reality.

Srihadi Soedarsono

With more than fifty years of involvement in the art world, Srihadi Soedarsono is acknowledged as one of the foremost Indonesian painters. As a Javanese , his upbringing was influenced by the principles of Central Javanese ethics. His life experiences, particularly his time at university, have contributed to his self-discovery as an artist. Beginning his journey in Solo, he gained insight into the aristocratic Javanese society. Subsequently, while studying at ITB in Bandung, he encountered a more Western-oriented educational system. His experiences studying in the United States also played a role in shaping his resilient character and broad perspective as an artist.

Srihadi is known for his dignified and aristocratic demeanor, placing significance on ethical conduct in daily life. He has modest preferences, speaks softly, and carefully selects his words. His artwork frequently depicts scenes of beaches, mountains, rice fields, and the sky. For example in this collection, “Purnama Bulan Kuning,” Srihadi described the night sky over the sea illuminated by the full moon's yellow light. He described the horizon as always being just one continuous horizontal stroke, because, fundamentally, nature and humans must be on parallel paths.

One of the pieces from our collection is "Legong Condong - The Energy of Love" in the dancer series by Srihadi. The dancers are portrayed with an emphasis on their energetic and cheerful gestures. Legong dance is a traditional Balinese dance performed by two or three female dancers. It is characterized by flexible movements on the feet accompanied by music. This painting by Srihadi depicts the vibrant energy of the Legong dance through the dancer's sketches, their expressive eyes, and the striking contrast of colors between the background and the two dancers.

Antonio Blanco

Antonio Blanco, a brilliant painter who spent most of his life in Bali, his beloved island where he intertwined his life with painting, creating reflections of himself through his magnificent creativity. His house and galleries were surrounded by lush gardens, a place where Blanco cultivated a life of fantasy, a space around his paintings where he could channel his creative spirit. Once he started to work, he became wild, pouring all his creativity and fantasy onto his paper and canvas. He was aware of his actions and unafraid of making mistakes. His dominant artwork revolved around painting women, along with children and self-portraits. He placed women on a divine pedestal, portraying all kinds of women, from chubby to slim, European, western to exotic oriental, all of whom posed for Blanco.

Ni Bawang II is depicted in oil on a 71 x 45 cm canvas, making it a rare artwork by Blanco. Since the early 1980s, Blanco has primarily focused on painting on paper, making his canvas works hard to find. This piece is one of the larger works by Blanco, and there are only 2 known records of him using oil on canvas to depict Ni Bawang.

The Ni Bawang Figure is depicted with spontaneous strokes from top to bottom using a gradation of brown color. With just a few lines, the eyes, nose, and mouth are depicted with huge smiles and joyful expressions. Explosions of vibrant color, which are drawn boldly and spontaneously, are found in the top part of the canvas, including green, blue, black, and purple. These explosive colors also highlight the captivating beauty of Ni Bawang, who is drawn holding a huge "Papaya". Sweet and huge papayas can only be grown in tropical countries.

This artwork is equipped with a grandeur frame characteristic of Blanco, where each frame is custom-made for the specific artwork. The frame serves not only to accentuate the painting, but also to extend the painting itself. This is evident in the mat board, which is painted with colors that complement the painting. The golden frame features carvings on each side with "Blanco" engraved on the top, while emerald green surrounds the outer frame. It is adorned with a large shawl in red and blue. The golden color symbolizes the metal gold, the red circle within the inner frame symbolizes a ruby stone, and the green outer frame symbolizes an emerald stone.

This "Ni Bawang II" painting has been exhibited at the Blanco Museum. Every painting showcased at the museum has undergone curation and holds significant value in the artist's legacy. Therefore, having this "Ni Bawang II" painting means owning a rare masterpiece of "Museum quality" that is rarely seen in the market.

Dullah

Dullah is not just an ordinary painter, but also plays a significant role in the history of culture, fine arts, museums, the Presidential Palace, the history of the war of independence, and the life of Bung Karno. Creativity, activity, and loyalty are the three main aspects he upholds in his artistic life. Starting his painting journey at the age of 15, his dedication to the art world for over 60 years has established him as one of the influential figures in Indonesian art. Dullah remains committed to his realist style, even though it was once considered outdated. He once expressed that the realism in his work would endure even after his passing. Indonesia's first president, Bung Karno, recognized Dullah's skill in portraying ordinary people and farmers was second to none. More than 20 years after his death, Dullah is regarded as the most iconic realist portrait painter. Each painting tells a factual narrative, resulting in compelling works.

In this collection, we feature the "Old Man" series by Dullah, in which he paints lifelike portraits of elderly men. Each painting captures the wrinkles, gray hair, white beard, and other details that authentically represent the physical features of old age. Additionally, Dullah includes accessories like farmer's hats, turbans, and cigarettes to enhance the sense of realism.

Mochtar Apin

Not just an ordinary painter, Mochtar Apin was an artist who played a crucial role in the advancement of modern art in Indonesia. He was highly esteemed throughout his life and served as a primary source of information for modern thought, which was often hard to understand. While he frequently discussed the development of modern art in Indonesia, Apin's explanations were often unclear about his art development, making it difficult to comprehend the evolution of his work. The journey of Apin's artistic evolution was constantly surprising and frequently sparked controversy. For instance, in the early 1990s, Apin transitioned from his abstract style, super-graphic sculptures, and geometric patterned paintings to nude paintings.

Nashar

Nashar, a brilliant maestro hailing from West Sumatra, honed his painting skills under the guidance of Affandi and Sudjojono. He played a pivotal role in establishing the Jakarta Arts Institute (IKJ) and subsequently served as a lecturer there. From 1979 to 1992, he held a prominent position as a member of the Jakarta Art Committee (Dewan Kesenian Jakarta). Nashar's artistic journey has taken him to various exhibitions, including the Festival of Indonesia in the USA (1990-1992) and the Gate Foundation in Amsterdam, Holland (1993), along with numerous venues across Indonesia.

Painting is more than just pouring paint on canvas for Nashar; it's a deeper experience, Painting is as essential as breathing. He paints passionately, without concern for whether his art is purchased or not. This mindset reflects his dedication. Nashar exclusively works with total abstraction, fearlessly using vibrant colors in every piece. In the art world, he's known for his Three Nons concept (nonesthetic, nonconcept, nontechnical) in his work. When he paints, his hands move freely, guided by his imagination.

Nashar is a true artist with distinctive ideals, and it is his uniqueness that has propelled him to fame. His work has been featured in a variety of media, including newspapers, magazines, and catalogs. Narratives about Nashar and his art have been penned by a diverse range of circles, including sociologists, cultural figures, art critics, curators, writers, politicians, novelists, poets, and others.

Handrio

Handrio was born in 1926 in Purwakarta. He started his painting career by studying with Basuki Abdullah. Furthermore, during the Japanese period, he studied with Sudjojono and Agus Djaja at Keimin Bunka Shidoso and Poetera in Jakarta. At first, Handrio's paintings were in the style of realism and Surrealism. In the 1950s Handrio has shifted to a semi-abstract style, which is analytically HANDRIO breaking down shapes in the geometric plane. This style was a different expression from the Yogyakarta painters at that time who generally painted populist themes from realism to expressionism and decorative styles. In this semi-abstract style, he analyzes many forms of still life objects and musical instruments. In its development in the late 1960s, these forms disappeared into dynamic and complex geometric spaces. The peak of Handrio's abstract style achievement occurred in the 1980s. The space, field, and color in his paintings represent the characterization of the construction of the elements themselves. In this expression, what is present is dynamics, rhythm, complexity, robustness, balance, or other images
