AFFANDI

Affandi is one of Indonesia's most influential modern artists, known for a bold style that moved away from strict academic realism and focused on raw emotion. Born in Cirebon in 1907, he taught himself to paint and first trained his eye by studying form and anatomy. As he grew more confident, he left traditional methods behind and followed his instincts. By the mid-1930s, he devoted himself fully to painting and developed his signature technique of squeezing paint directly from the tube and shaping it into strong, swirling strokes.

In "Barong and Rangda (1968)", Affandi brings to life two powerful beings from Balinese mythology. On the right, Barong appears as a large, fiery figure shaped by thick, swirling strokes that reflect Affandi's signature style. The darker and heavier background around him gives Barong a strong, almost explosive presence. Barong is known in Balinese belief as the protector spirit, a symbol of goodness and positive energy.

On the left, Rangda emerges in lighter tones, her pale form twisting among bright, restless lines. Rangda is the queen of the leak and a terrifying figure in Balinese stories. She is said to kidnap and eat children and lead an army of evil witches in their battle against Barong. A dark creature crouched at the center adds even more tension to the scene, highlighting the confrontation between these opposing forces of good and evil.

Affandi's painting "The Maestro and Friend (S. Sudjojono)" offers a vivid depiction of the relationship between two influential Indonesian artists, Affandi and S. Sudjojono, who were friends. Their friendship began when Affandi moved to Jakarta and stayed with the Yudhokusumo family, where Sudjojono, Yudhokusumo's adopted son, introduced Affandi to the techniques of oil painting.

In this piece, we can see a fusion of abstract and expressionist elements, though the figures of both artists remain clear. The figures blend into the colorful, swirling background, creating a sense of unity with their surroundings.

The color palette is mixed, offering a vibrant yet subdued impression, featuring greens, reds, blacks, creams, and yellows. Affandi's use of thick, expressive brushstrokes adds spontaneity and freedom to the painting, qualities that define his distinctive style.

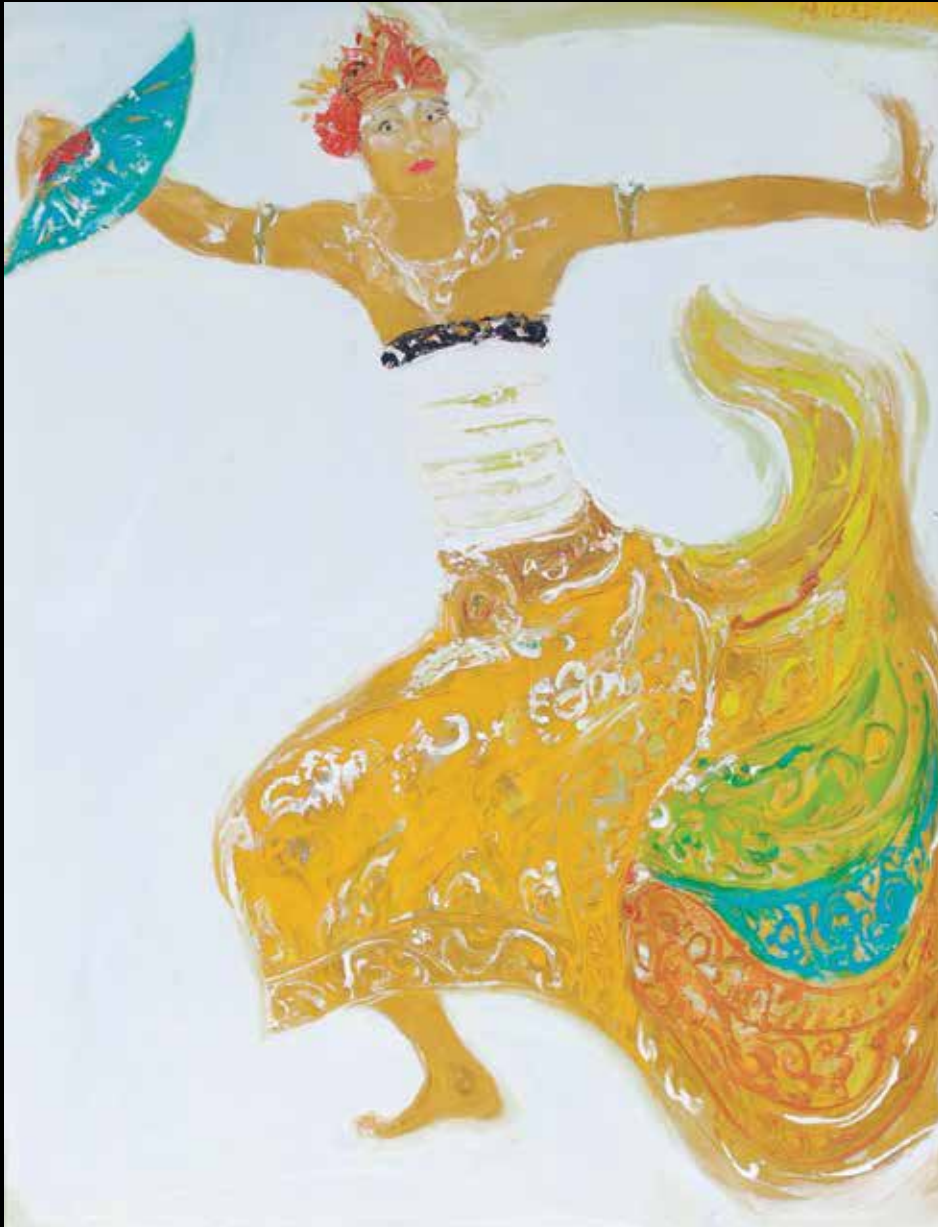

SRIHADI SOEDARSONO

Srihadi Soedarsono was an Indonesian artist known for his abstract landscapes and expressive depictions of Javanese and Balinese dancers. His works often carry a strong sense of rhythm, emotion, and spiritual presence. Over his career, he received several major recognitions, including the National Award for Contemporary Art in 1971 and the Cultural Award from Australia in 1973. Beyond painting, he also helped shape Indonesian art education through his role in developing Institut Kesenian Jakarta and later serving as Chairman of its Fine Arts Academy in 1974.

“Kebyar Dancer (1990)” shows a Balinese dancer captured with vibrant motion. The Kebyar dance is known for its fast, dramatic movements and expressive use of the fan. The dancer wears a bright orange traditional costume with intricate patterns, enriched by touches of green, turquoise, and yellow that create a lively sense of rhythm. His dynamic pose spreads across a pure white background, making the colours stand out even more.

AHMAD SADALI

Ahmad Sadali was a pioneering figure in Indonesian modern art who blended Islamic spirituality with abstract expressionism. Trained at the Bandung Institute of Technology (ITB) and later in the United States, he became an important teacher and a central figure of the Mazhab Bandung movement. His paintings are known for their meditative atmosphere, rich textures, and spiritual depth, earning him the Anugerah Seni Indonesia in 1972.

“Horizon (1976)” shows the qualities that define Sadali’s mature style. The surface is built up with thick, tactile textures that create a sense of geological depth, while touches of gold pigment add a quiet sense of the sacred. Earthy reds, browns, and deep blues form a simplified landscape, suggesting a horizon that feels both physical and contemplative. Through restrained color and subtle shifts of texture, Sadali turns abstraction into a space for reflection and spiritual calm.

HENDRA GUNAWAN

Born in Bandung, Hendra Gunawan was a pioneering figure in Indonesian modern art who began painting in the 1930s. He combined traditional Indonesian themes with modernist approaches, creating expressive works that captured the vitality of everyday life. His works have been shown internationally, including at the Venice Biennale 2024, and are part of major museum collections such as the Neka Art Museum and the Singapore Art Museum.

“Self Portrait” presents Hendra Gunawan in his own unmistakable style. He appears in bright, eccentric colors, wearing dark sunglasses and surrounded by layered shapes and playful forms that reflect his energetic approach to painting. The figure sits atop a stylized mask, while patches of red, green, blue, and yellow create a lively rhythm across the surface.

Rather than aiming for strict realism, Hendra expresses his character through bold color, spontaneous brushwork, and decorative motifs, turning the self-portrait into a vivid statement of personality and artistic identity.

I NYOMAN MASRIADI

I Nyoman Masriadi is one of Indonesian's most influential contemporary artists, recognized for his bold figurative paintings that blend satire, social commentary, and pop-culture imagery. His muscular figures, intense colors, and comic-like compositions create a visual language that is both humorous and critical, offering sharp reflections on politics, identity, and the pressures of globalization in modern Indonesia. Today, his paintings are held in major private and public collections worldwide, including the Singapore Art Museum and the National Gallery of Australia.

"Empty Barrel (2003)" presents a hypermasculine figure lounging by the beach, wearing a floral-patterned swimsuit and a garland of white flowers. His pose is confident yet oddly pensive, set against an idyllic tropical backdrop. The bright blue sea, clear sky, and polished realism of his body contrast with the oversized pink barrel beside him, which he casually leans on. Masriadi's signature style appears in the exaggerated anatomy, saturated colors, and subtle humor woven into the scene.

Beneath its playful surface, the painting carries layered meaning. The "empty barrel" can be read as a metaphor for outward strength that hides inner hollowness—a critique of performative masculinity, consumer culture, or the curated images of leisure that dominate modern life. The figure's sculpted body suggests power, yet his expression hints at restlessness or dissatisfaction. By placing a hyper-idealized man in a postcard-perfect setting, Masriadi questions society's obsession with appearance, status, and the symbols of success.

WIDAYAT

Widayat was born in Kutoarjo, Central Java, in 1919. After graduating from the Indonesian Fine Art Academy (ASRI) in Yogyakarta, he continued his studies in ceramics and landscape art in Nagoya, Japan. He later returned to ASRI as a lecturer and became one of the key figures in Indonesian modern art.

Known for his distinctive decorative style, Widayat often blended mythological, spiritual, and natural motifs into rhythmic, symbolic compositions. His works earned him numerous awards and international recognition, with exhibitions across Asia, Europe, and the United States.

“Decorative Magical Abstraction (2002)” reflects Widayat’s characteristic. The painting is built from interlocking shapes and muted tones of green, brown, and ochre, accented by small yellow forms that suggest leaves or floating petals. These organic elements drift through the composition like fragments of nature or memory. Though abstract, the work carries a quiet sense of movement and mystery, as if the shapes are part of a hidden landscape or spiritual realm.

“The Shocked Girl (Gadis Terperanjat)” presents a female figure cast in bronze, captured in a moment of emotional tension. The sculpture shows a torsolike form with the head tilted sharply upward, as if caught by surprise or sudden realization. Edhi’s signature textural surfaces are visible across the work. The pose feels both restrained and expressive, allowing viewers to sense the inner emotion suggested by the title.

DJOKO PEKIK

Djoko Pekik was born in Grobogan in 1937 and studied painting under Trubus and Hendra Gunawan at the Indonesian Art Academy (ASRI) in Yogyakarta. His career was disrupted due to his involvement with the LEKRA organization, forcing him to stop painting for several years. He returned to the art world in the 1980s and went on to participate in major exhibitions, including Indonesian Culture in the United States (KIAS) and the Asian Art Exhibition in Japan. Alongside his paintings, Pekik also created sculptures that reflect his strong social voice.

“Indonesia 1998 Hunting Wild Boar (ed. 5/6)” continues Pekik’s well-known “Berburu Celeng” idiom. The sculpture shows two men carrying a massive wild boar tied in a large sack, their bodies strained under its weight. The rough surfaces and expressive forms echo Pekik’s commitment to stories of ordinary people and their struggles. In his work, the “wild boar” symbolizes oppressive authorities and corrupt power structures that harmed the common people during the political turmoil of the late 1990s.

WAYAN KASTINA

Wayan Kastina graduated from Universitas Pendidikan Nasional (UNDIKNAS) in Denpasar with a major in Economics and Management, yet his artistic roots began much earlier. Taught by his father, a traditional Balinese painter, he developed a strong foundation in Balinese aesthetics before moving toward a contemporary visual language.

“My Guardian (Penjagaku)” captures a moment of quiet tension as three figures gather around a table with two puppies at the center. The small animals evoke vulnerability, loyalty, and the fragile responsibilities people carry, while Kastina’s black-and-white brushwork and selective touches of color heighten the emotional tone.

Loose strokes and dripping lines create a raw, documentary-like atmosphere, as if the viewer is witnessing an unguarded moment. A Starbucks cup in the foreground anchors the scene in contemporary life, subtly contrasting modern consumer habits with the intimate act of care.

RUSLI

Rusli was an Indonesian artist whose path began unexpectedly. Initially departing for India to study medicine, he discovered his true calling in the arts and shifted his focus entirely. From 1932 to 1936, he studied painting, sculpture, murals, and Eastern art philosophy at Kala Bhavana, Visva-Bharati University, Santiniketan, where Rabindranath Tagore's holistic ideas deeply shaped his artistic outlook.

Upon returning to Indonesia, Rusli joined the struggle for independence before dedicating himself to art education. He later taught at ASRI Yogyakarta and exhibited internationally.

"Barong" showcases Rusli's distinctive style, where sweeping, colourful lines gather into a vibrant, energetic image. Here, the swirling strokes build up the face of Barong, a protective spirit in Balinese mythology. Layers of red, yellow, green, and blue seem to dance across the canvas, creating a lively sense of motion. The result feels spontaneous yet intentional, giving the mythic figure a fresh and modern presence.

The Rolex GMT-Master II, first introduced in 1982, is a development of the original GMT-Master, designed for pilots and travelers needing to track multiple time zones. It features an independently adjustable 12-hour hand, allowing for easy adjustment of local time without affecting the other timekeeping functions. The GMT-Master II is recognizable by its 24-hour graduated rotatable bezel and triangle-tipped 24-hour hand, enabling the wearer to read a second time zone.

The Rolex GMT-Master II 126710BLNR, nicknamed the “Batgirl” is a modern favorite that blends versatility with elegance. Crafted in 904L stainless steel, its 40mm case is paired with a striking black and blue Cerachrom bezel, making it easy to track a second time zone using the engraved 24-hour scale. Introduced in 1956, the Rolex Milgauss was designed for scientists and engineers, capable of withstanding magnetic fields up to 1,000 gauss thanks to a protective shield inside the case. The original reference 6541 featured a distinctive lightning bolt-shaped seconds hand and a rotating bezel.

While it was not a commercial success at first, the Milgauss was reintroduced in 2007 with modern updates and has since become a notable model in the Rolex catalog. The name combines the Latin mille (one thousand) and gauss, a unit of magnetic field measurement, underscoring its scientific purpose.

The modern Milgauss, reference 116400GV (Green), was released in 2014 with its distinctive Z-Blue dial. Its bold design quickly attracted a loyal following and became a cult classic within the Rolex lineup, a status that grew even stronger after the model was discontinued in 2023.

ABDUL AZIZ

Abdul Aziz was born in Purwokerto on 27 March 1928. After graduating from the Indonesian Fine Art Academy (ASRI) in 1959, he continued his studies at the Accademia di Belle Arti in Rome, where he developed a deep interest in printmaking and the techniques of the old masters. Returning to Indonesia in 1965, he settled in Ubud, Bali, where he painted scenes of local life enriched by European influences. Abdul Aziz was also recognized as a sculptor, violinist, and violin maker.

"Jegeg" centers on a Balinese woman portrayed with striking confidence. Dressed in a yellow kebaya with a vivid red traditional sash, she carries an offering bowl gracefully on one hand. Her direct gaze and poised posture make her the clear focal point of the composition. Behind her, figures engaged in ceremonial activity create a lively backdrop, adding depth and context to the scene.

BARLI SASMITAWINATA

Barli Sasmitawinata began painting in 1935 as a member of Kelompok Lima Bandung. His artistic development continued under Jos Pluimentz and Luigi Nobili, followed by studies at the Académie de la Grande Chaumière in Paris and the Academy of Fine Art in Amsterdam. Throughout his career, he earned numerous awards in Indonesia and the Netherlands.

After returning from Europe, he founded Sanggar Rangka Gempol in 1958, taught at the Bandung Institute of Technology (ITB), and later helped establish the Fine Arts Department at IKIP Bandung, now Universitas Pendidikan Indonesia (UPI). In his later years, he focused on informal art education and established the Barli Museum in 1992.

"Jamu Seller (Pedagang Jamu)" depicts a lively, realistic market scene from everyday Indonesian life. A woman carrying bottles of jamu, the traditional herbal drink, stands at the center, dressed in a brightly colored kebaya and batik. Around her, other vendors sit among baskets of fruit and goods, creating a bustling backdrop of conversation and activity. Barli captures both the visual richness and the familiar social warmth of a traditional market, making the scene feel timeless and deeply rooted in Indonesian culture.

GERARD PIETER ADOLFS

Gerard Pieter Adolfs (1897–1968) was a Dutch painter celebrated for his vivid portrayals of life in the Dutch East Indies. Born in Semarang, he initially trained as an architect in Amsterdam before turning fully to painting. Known for his expressive, impressionistic style, Adolfs captured Indonesia's landscapes, city scenes, and daily activities with dynamic brushwork and a keen sense of atmosphere. Although he traveled widely across Europe and Asia, his deep connection to Indonesia remained central to his work.

"A Long Java's North Coast Road near Pekalongan" highlights Adolfs' characteristic approach to landscape painting. He depicts a familiar rural scene with tall trees lining a quiet path, stretches of rice fields, farmers at work, and distant mountains forming the backdrop. These elements reflect a landscape commonly found in Java and in Indonesia more broadly. Through soft, textured brushstrokes and gentle light, Adolfs creates a dreamy, atmospheric impression of everyday life along Java's northern coast.

I MADE WIANITA

I Made Wianta is one of Indonesia's most influential living artists, known for his dynamic and highly versatile approach to painting. A graduate of ASTI Yogyakarta, he emerged during the vibrant artistic climate of the early 1970s and later became recognized for his inventive depictions of Balinese spirits, symbols, and abstract forms.

Over the years, Wianta evolved into a multidimensional creator whose works span painting, performance, and installation. His art has been widely exhibited in Indonesia and abroad, earning him distinctions such as the Art Academia Intern "Greci Marino" award from Italy.

"Full Moon" reflects Wianta's interest in geometry, color, and the interplay between structure and atmosphere. The painting features a soft pink gradient sky with a glowing full moon at its center, framed by precise linear forms. Floating triangular shapes move rhythmically across the composition. The balance of sharp geometric elements against the calm, luminous background evokes both cosmic harmony and subtle dynamism.

JEIHAN SUKMANTORO

Jeihan Sukmantoro was born in Solo in 1938 and received his early artistic training at Himpunan Budaya Surakarta before continuing his studies at Institut Teknologi Bandung (ITB) from 1960 to 1966. In 1978, he co-founded Studio Seni Rupa Bandung with Dr. Sudjoko, helping shape the development of modern art in Indonesia. Over the decades, he held numerous exhibitions in Bandung, Paris, Bali, and Jakarta, and became widely recognized for his distinctive portrait style that blends Eastern mysticism with Western analytical clarity.

“Lady (1971)” reflects Jeihan’s most iconic hallmark: the deep, hollow black eyes or mata bolong that define his portraits. The seated woman, painted in simplified blocks of blue, green, and purple, exudes a quiet yet magnetic presence. Jeihan’s decision to render the eyes as stark black voids is more than a stylistic choice; it is his philosophical statement on the mystery of the human soul. By withholding expression from the eyes, he invites viewers to confront the figure’s inner stillness and unknowability.

A Malino scholarship took him to the Netherlands (1949–1952), where Dutch art influenced his style. He later exhibited in Paris, Amsterdam, and The Hague before returning to Indonesia. From 1955 to 1961, he led Yin Hua Meishu Xiehui (Society of Chinese Artists in Indonesia) and served as a palace artist for President Sukarno for five years.

After Sukarno's fall in 1967, Lee moved to Singapore, where he embraced the Nanyang style, blending Chinese ink painting with Western modernism. He returned to Jakarta in 1986, where he lived until his passing in 1988.

POPO ISKANDAR

Popo Iskandar was an influential Indonesian modernist painter, art critic, and writer. He began painting in 1944 and later graduated from Universitas Indonesia and Institut Teknologi Bandung (ITB), where he also lectured at IKIP Bandung.

Popo's works often feature animals, most notably roosters, tigers, and especially cats, which became his most recognizable and iconic subjects. His unique style and artistic contributions earned him an art award from the Indonesian government in 1980. Throughout his career, Popo exhibited widely in Indonesia and internationally, cementing his legacy as a master of modern art.

"Black Cat (1991)" reflects Popo's distinctive style. The cat dominates the canvas in deep, velvety black, its form built with thick, expressive textures. Two bright green eyes glow sharply against the darkness, creating an immediate focal point. The red and orange background heightens the intensity, while a large fiery orb, resembling a sun yet placed beneath the cat, adds a surreal, unexpected element. Through this bold use of color, contrast, and texture, Popo transforms a simple animal into a powerful symbolic figure, both mysterious and visually compelling.

WILLEM GERARD HOFKER

Born in Den Haag in 1902, Willem Gerard Hofker received formal training at the Academy of Fine Arts in The Hague and later at the Rijksakademie in Amsterdam. His early talent was affirmed when he won the second prize at the prestigious Prix de Rome in 1924, giving him the confidence to establish himself as an independent artist in Amsterdam soon after graduation. Portrait commissions became his primary source of income, and his reputation as a skilled draughtsman continued to grow.

In 1930, Hofker married Maria Rueter, daughter of the respected artist George Rueter. Deeply devoted to one another, the couple shared their artistic lives closely, and Willem portrayed Maria's refined features many times throughout his career.

In 1938 they moved to Ubud, Bali, where they immersed themselves in the island's cultural life and where Hofker created many of his most celebrated works, capturing both the grace and spirit of Balinese people and traditions. I NYOMAN MEJA

I Nyoman Meja is a traditional Ubud-style painter who gained wide recognition after meeting Rudolf Bonnet, whose influence encouraged him to focus on warm, intimate depictions of childhood and everyday Balinese life. His detailed, narrative compositions blend Balinese tradition with a gentle personal sensitivity, earning him acclaim both in Indonesia and internationally. Since the 1980s, Meja has been one of the most celebrated painters of his generation in Ubud.

“Baris Dance (1983)” showcases I Nyoman Meja’s mastery in presenting cultural rituals with rich detail and storytelling depth. The central figure, a Baris dancer, stands in a dynamic pose, adorned in elaborate patterned garments, a striking headdress, and symbolic ornaments.

His wide-eyed expression and commanding stance reflect the essence of the Baris dance, a traditional Balinese war dance that embodies the courage, pride, and heightened emotion of a young warrior preparing for battle. Surrounding him, villagers observe with awe, creating a lively context that situates the ritual within community life.

Rolex created the Sea-Dweller in 1967 to answer the demands of professional divers, and it has conquered the depths ever since. The reference 126603 continues this legacy with a bold two-tone design that blends Oystersteel and 18k yellow gold. Its 43 mm case, black Cerachrom bezel, and luminous dial highlight the model's tool-watch heritage, while water resistance to 1,220 meters and a helium escape valve secure its place as a true deep-sea companion. Driven by the caliber 3235 with a 70-hour reserve, the 126603 combines Rolex's tradition of underwater innovation with contemporary elegance.

The Rolex GMT-Master II, introduced in 1982, is an evolution of the original GMT-Master, created for pilots and travelers who need to track multiple time zones. It features an independently adjustable 12-hour hand, allowing local time to be changed without affecting the other timekeeping functions. The model is instantly recognizable for its 24-hour graduated rotatable bezel and triangle-tipped GMT hand, which make it easy to read a second time zone. The version known as the “Batman” pairs a sleek black dial with a distinctive black and blue Cerachrom bezel, giving it both a stealthy and modern look. This bold two-tone color scheme has made it one of the most sought-after GMTMaster II variations among collectors and enthusiasts alike.

THEO MEIER

Theo Meier (1908–1982) was a Swiss painter whose adventurous spirit and bold style left a lasting mark on Balinese Modernist art. A graduate of the Basel School of Art, he lived in Bali from 1934 to 1955, immersing himself in local culture and becoming both a friend and patron to Balinese artists. His extensive body of work from this period, spanning pre- and post-World War II, documents the evolution of the movement while celebrating the island's beauty and traditions.

Meier led a nomadic life that took him from Switzerland to the South Pacific, Bali, and Thailand. His paintings, infused with vibrant color and dynamic form, reflect the richness of the cultures he embraced and the vitality of the places he called home.

UMI DACHLAN

A key figure in the Bandung School of painting, Umi Dachlan was renowned for her textured abstract canvases, often layered in deep maroon, gold, and her signature purple. Rooted in Islamic philosophy, her works reflect a spiritual connection to nature and music. She studied at Institut Teknologi Bandung (ITB) under Ahmad Sadali, a leading figure in modern Islamic art in Indonesia, graduating in 1968 as only the third female artist to do so.

In 1969, she broke barriers by becoming ITB's first female lecturer, teaching there until 1999. Over the years, she moved beyond her mentor's influence to establish her own iconography, earning a place in the discourse of Indonesian abstraction alongside artists such as Mochtar Apin, Popo Iskandar, and A.D. Pirous.

Her abstraction distilled forms from nature into symbolic rather than representational elements, allowing religion and nature to become her strongest creative impulses. Through abstraction, she found the freedom to express the sensations of spiritual reflection and the beauty of the natural world.

MOCHTAR APIN

Mochtar Apin was a painter, illustrator, writer, and educator at Institut Teknologi Bandung (ITB). He explored cubism and abstract expressionism, studied at the École Nationale Supérieure des Beaux-Arts in Paris (1953–1957) and the Deutsche Akademie der Künste in Berlin (1957–1958), and later received a Cultural Award from the Australian government in 1974.

HERMÈS

The Hermès Himalaya Niloticus Crocodile Birkin 30 is often regarded as one of the maison's most exceptional creations because it brings together the finest material selection, craftsmanship, and finishing. Introduced in the early 2000s, the Himalaya concept was developed to highlight Hermès' most advanced dyeing techniques. Made from select Niloticus crocodile with clean, even scales, the bag features a distinctive gradient that moves from a soft, warm brown along the edges to a clear, luminous white at the center. This natural transition recalls the gentle contrast of earth tones and snow-bright surfaces found in the Himalayan landscape, a result that only a small group of master artisans can achieve.

Its refined character comes from the harmony between texture, color, and the cool sheen of palladium hardware. Rather than dramatic contrasts, the Himalaya Birkin stands out through subtlety, purity, and precision. Collectors value it not only for its rarity but also for the calm, understated elegance that has made this model one of the most desired pieces in Hermès history.

I GUSTI KETUT KOBOT

Born in Pengosekan, Ubud in 1917, I Gusti Ketut Kobot was a member of the influential Pita Maha painters group from 1936 to 1942. Unlike many of his contemporaries, his style remained highly individualistic, often depicting scenes from the Ramayana and Mahabharata.

While many Balinese artists of the 1920s were influenced by Western painters like Rudolf Bonnet and Walter Spies, Kobot uniquely combined traditional themes with modern techniques. He held a solo exhibition at Museum Puri Lukisan in 1975 and participated in a group show in Sydney the same year alongside emerging Pengosekan artists. He was honored with the Wijaya Kusuma Art Award (1978) from the Gianyar government and the Dharma Kusuma Award from the Bali provincial government. Kobot passed away in 1999.

I NYOMAN TJOKOT

I Nyoman Tjokot was born in Jati village, Tegalalang, Ubud, Bali, where he also served as a pemangku (temple priest). Deeply spiritual, he often drew inspiration from reading sacred Hindu texts inscribed on lontar leaves and meditating at Pura Agung Taro. His art embodied a distinctly Balinese essence, expressed through hauntingly powerful carvings of beasts and demons. Unlike many sculptors, Tjokot never began with outlines; he relied purely on imagination and instinct, allowing the natural shape of the wood to guide his creative process.

Tjokot showed his respect for nature by never cutting down living trees. He chose instead to work with abandoned or weathered pieces of wood, often collected from riversides. In 1969, the Indonesian Government recognized his achievements with the Wijaya Kusuma Prize.

I GEDE MAHENDRA YASA

I Gede Mahendra Yasa studied at the Denpasar Art Institute and has taken part in key exhibitions such as Democracy in Visual Expression (2000), CP Open Biennale (2003), Cooking & History at Cemeti Art House (2004), Membaca Realisme at Nava Gallery (2005), CP Biennale 2005 at Museum Bank Indonesia, and the Langgeng Contemporary Art Festival (2006).

Mahendra Yasa builds his paintings through lines, textures, and precise compositions, then enlarges small details into dense, sensory surfaces that invite viewers to question what they see. His strong curiosity for materials leads him to constant exploration and experimentation, allowing him to use abstraction as a way to convey history, context, and experience.

SUDJONO ABDULLAH

Sudjono Abdullah was born in Yogyakarta in 1911. He was the son of Abdullah Suriosubroto, a renowned landscape painter, and the brother of Basoeki Abdullah. As a child, he would help his father clean paint palettes, sparking his own passion for becoming a painter. Sudjono completed his education at the HIS (Hollandsch-Inlandsche School, an Indonesian-Dutch school) and later worked as a poster artist for Rex Theater in Yogyakarta.

During the Japanese occupation of Indonesia, he retreated to Parangtritis and Parangkusumo, where he continued his painting practice. In the 1970s, Sudjono moved to Kertosono, East Java, where he lived until his passing in 1993.
