HENDRA GUNAWAN

Hendra Gunawan was one of the most distinctive figures in Indonesian modern art. Known as the “people’s painter,” he often portrayed the daily lives of Indonesians as well as the beauty of Indonesia’s landscapes and nature through his highly personal visual language. His paintings are instantly recognizable for their flowing forms, dynamic compositions, and vibrant palette filled with bold, expressive colours.

Painted in 1975, Beautiful Sea World is one such example. The work transports viewers into an underwater realm where reality gives way to imagination. Coral formations bloom like fantastical gardens, while tropical fish drift through shimmering currents rendered in Hendra’s signature teal tones. Fish and corals of varying colours, shapes, and sizes animate the composition.

All of them evoke the richness and diversity of marine life beneath the sea. Rather than depicting nature realistically, Hendra transforms it into a dreamlike spectacle filled with rhythm, movement, and wonder.

SRIHADI SOEDARSONO

Srihadi Soedarsono was one of Indonesia's most celebrated modern artists, renowned for his abstract landscapes and depictions of Javanese and Balinese dancers. Beyond his achievements as a painter, he also played a major role in shaping art education in Indonesia. He taught at Institut Teknologi Bandung and contributed to the development of Institut Kesenian Jakarta. Throughout his long career, he received numerous prestigious recognitions, including the National Award for Contemporary Art (1971) and a Fulbright Grant from the United States Government (1980).

In The Rhythm of Legong (1991), Srihadi captures the elegance and dynamism of the Balinese dance tradition through sweeping movement and luminous colour. Legong itself is a classical Balinese dance known for its refined gestures, expressive hand movements, elaborate costumes, and fan choreography performed with graceful precision. Here, the dancer appears almost weightless, suspended within radiant yellow and white tones that fill the composition with warmth.

Her flowing costume is rendered with rich decorative details, echoing the intricacy of traditional Balinese attire. The painting radiates warmth and vitality, brightening the space around it like a stage illuminated at the height of performance.

AFFANDI

Affandi remains one of the most celebrated maestros of modern Indonesian art, renowned for his intensely expressive style and emotional approach to painting. His paintings are instantly recognizable through their energetic swirling brushstrokes and direct application of paint. Throughout his prolific career, he produced more than 2,000 works and exhibited internationally across India, Europe, England, and the United States.

Guardian of the Rice Fields (Memedi Sawah) presents Affandi's interpretation of the traditional Indonesian scarecrow-like figure commonly found in rice fields. In local farming culture, the memedi sawah functions as a visual deterrent used to frighten birds and pests that threaten the harvest.

Here, however, Affandi transforms it into something far more mystical and dramatic. The rice fields twist violently through swirling green strokes, while the sky is engulfed in heavy dark tones and black paint that create an oppressive and haunting atmosphere. Emerging from this darkness, the memedi sawah appears almost like a spiritual guardian standing between protective and terrifying forces, as if defending the fields from unseen evil presences. Both the guardian figure and the looming dark forms evoke the silhouette and dramatic presence of wayang characters, grounding the painting deeply within Indonesian visual tradition and mythology. Affandi's vigorous brushwork intensifies the emotional tension of the scene.

CHEN WEN HSI

Chen Wen Hsi is one of the most important pioneers of Singaporean modern art after settling in Singapore in 1949. He became a lecturer at the Nanyang Academy of Fine Arts during the 1950s and played a significant role in shaping the development of the Nanyang Style, a movement that blended Eastern artistic traditions with modern influences. He was also a leading master of Singapore's Chinese brush painting.

Deeply inspired by nature, Chen became especially well-known for his depictions of animals, plants, and landscapes executed through expressive ink techniques and refined compositional balance. In Calabash, Chen portrays hanging calabash fruits surrounded by dense foliage through a striking contrast of luminous yellow and bold black ink. On the left, a delicate blue dragonfly quietly appears, adding a subtle focal point and gentle balance to the painting.

Through this harmonious interplay of colour, ink, and empty space, Chen transforms an everyday natural subject into a composition that feels both modern and timeless. The work also reflects Chen's mastery of the traditional xieyi style, characterized by expressive and spontaneous freehand brushwork that emphasizes spirit and vitality over precise detail.

GREGORIUS SIDHARTA SOEGIJO

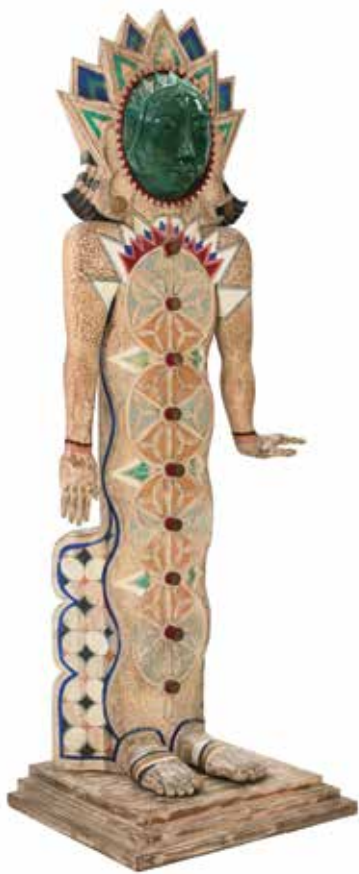

Gregorius Sidharta Soegijo was one of Indonesia's most important modern sculptors, known for combining traditional spirituality with modern artistic sensibilities. Born in Yogyakarta in 1932, he studied at Akademi Seni Rupa Indonesia (ASRI) and later at the Jan Van Eyck Academy in the Netherlands. Throughout his career, he exhibited internationally and created numerous public monuments across Asia.

Eastern Goddess of Happiness by Gregorius Sidharta Soegijo stands as a unique piece within the artist's painted wood sculpture series. Crafted from teakwood and standing two meters tall, the figure exudes a sacred and ceremonial presence, reminiscent of indigenous and ancient spiritual icons.

The stylized body is adorned with geometric floral motifs and earthy pigments, while the smooth green face, encircled by a pointed crown-like halo, adds a striking contrast. The piece blends folk art aesthetics with spiritual symbolism, offering a sense of rooted cultural reverence and quiet joy through its form, color, and stance.

WIDAYAT

Widayat was born in Kutoarjo, Central Java, in 1919 and became one of the most influential figures in Indonesian modern art. He studied at the Indonesian Fine Art Academy (ASRI) in Yogyakarta before continuing his studies in ceramics and landscape art in Nagoya, Japan. After returning to Indonesia, he joined ASRI as a lecturer and developed a highly distinctive decorative style that set him apart from his contemporaries.

His works often combine mythological, spiritual, and natural motifs through symbolic forms, intricate patterns, and rhythmic compositions. Over the course of his career, Widayat received numerous awards and exhibited internationally across Asia, Europe, and the United States.

Deep Sea Fish reveals Widayat's imaginative approach to nature through the portrayal of a fantastical fish constructed from fragmented geometric forms and intricate textures. Small floating motifs surrounding the fish further enhance the dreamlike underwater atmosphere. Through this richly decorative visual language, Widayat transforms a simple marine subject into a symbolic and otherworldly image filled with mystery and fantasy.

SUNARYO

Sunaryo is one of Indonesia's most respected contemporary artists, widely known not only for his paintings but also for his achievements as a sculptor, educator, and founder of Selasar Sunaryo Art Space in Bandung. He studied at Bandung Institute of Technology (ITB) and later in Italy, where he developed a multidisciplinary practice spanning sculpture, painting, printmaking, and installation.

While many recognize him through his monumental public sculptures, Sunaryo's paintings reveal a quieter and more intimate sensitivity, particularly in his recurring depictions of dancers and traditional performance culture. In Preparing Before Performance (2025), Sunaryo portrays three dancers captured in a fleeting moment before stepping onto the stage. Rather than emphasizing the spectacle of the performance itself, the artist focuses on the intimate interaction between the figures.

The warm glowing brown background contrasts dramatically with the darker tones of the dancers' costumes, while vivid splashes of red introduce a sense of energy and theatrical tension into the composition. At the same time, the richly patterned cloths reveal Sunaryo's attention to decorative detail, echoing the visual beauty of traditional textiles and stage attire.

EMIRIA SOENASSA

Emiria Soenassa, often regarded as Indonesia's first female modern artist, lived an adventurous and unconventional life that defied the expectations of her time. Born in Tanawangko, North Sulawesi, to the royal family of Tidore, Emiria initially trained as a nurse and later managed a plantation before devoting herself to painting.

A free spirit, she traveled widely across Europe, studying ballet in Brussels, Amsterdam, and Vienna, before returning to Indonesia, where her artistic journey began in earnest. Her work was first recognized in the late 1930s when she joined PERSAGI (Persatuan Ahli Gambar Indonesia), Indonesia's pioneering modern art movement founded by S. Sudjojono and Agus Djaja.

The Refugees portrays a group of villagers seemingly fleeing or leaving their homeland, carrying belongings and moving together through a tense and uncertain atmosphere. Among the figures are a farmer wearing a conical hat, a mother carrying her child, and a horse burdened with goods, suggesting displacement and survival during difficult times. Emiria Soenassa fills the composition with heavy reddish-brown and dark earthy tones that create a suffocating and emotionally charged mood, almost as if the environment itself is burning or collapsing around them.

“Jukung Boat”

At the center of Jukung Boat (1986) stands the traditional Balinese fishing boat, or jukung, rendered through vigorous strokes of red, blue, yellow, and white that make it emerge dramatically from the dark shoreline. The work portrays Kusamba Beach in Bali, an area known for its black volcanic sands, salt production, and fishing ports. Affandi emphasizes this atmosphere through sweeping layers of black, brown, and grey paint across the beach, contrasted by luminous skies and turbulent ocean currents above.

Additional boats, fishermen, dogs, and scattered figures animate the composition, yet everything appears fused together through Affandi’s signature swirling technique. Rather than depicting the landscape realistically, he captures the energy, movement, and rhythm of coastal life itself.

BUT MUCHTAR

But Muchtar, born Broertje Muchtar Soebandi in Bandung, was one of Indonesia's prominent modern artists and educators. He belonged to the first generation of fine arts graduates from Institut Teknologi Bandung (ITB) and later continued his studies in the United States. In 1963, he returned to Indonesia to help establish the Department of Sculpture at ITB alongside Rita Widagdo and Gregorius Sidharta Soegijo.

As a student of Ries Mulder, But absorbed strong modernist influences, particularly Cubism and geometric abstraction associated with the "Bandung School." His works emphasized formal exploration, structural clarity, and the relationship between colour, space, and form.

Optical Composition reveals But Muchtar's characteristic. The composition is dominated by a large triangular form resembling a stylized mountain, referring to Aspen, Colorado, as written at the lower part of the painting. The work may reflect the artist's encounter with mountainous landscapes during his time abroad. Constructed from interlocking geometric shapes in vibrant reds, blues, oranges, and purples, the mountain-like structure contrasts with the flowing green and turquoise waves above it. The painting reflects both Cubist influence and But's interest in optical balance, transforming landscape into a harmonious arrangement of colour and form.

“Dialogue at the Beach”

In Dialogue at the Beach (1990), Srihadi Soedarsono reveals another characteristic of his artistic practice: his ability to transform vast landscapes into poetic spaces filled with emotion and atmosphere. The expansive white shoreline and distant blue sea demonstrate his masterful use of colour, where minimal tones are enough to evoke light, warmth, and the serenity of the coast.

Against this quiet setting stand two women engaged in conversation. Bare-chested and draped in sarong-like cloths, the figures reflect a traditional Indonesian coastal atmosphere often found in Srihadi's works. Their presence creates an intimate and timeless quality, while the openness of the composition allows the painting to feel both contemplative and deeply connected to nature and Indonesian cultural life.

LEE MAN FONG

Born in Guangzhou, Lee Man Fong (1913–1988) spent his early years in Singapore before moving to Jakarta in the 1930s. He mastered both Chinese Lingnan brush painting and oil painting, becoming the first non-Dutch artist to exhibit with the Dutch East Indies Association in 1936.

A Malino scholarship took him to the Netherlands (1949–1952), where Dutch art influenced his style. He later exhibited in Paris, Amsterdam, and The Hague before returning to Indonesia. From 1955 to 1961, he led Yinhua Meishu Xiehui (Society of Chinese Artists in Indonesia) and served as a palace artist for President Sukarno for five years.

After Sukarno's fall in 1967, Lee moved to Singapore, where he embraced the Nanyang style, blending Chinese ink painting with Western modernism. He returned to Jakarta in 1986, where he lived until his passing in 1988.

RIES MULDER

Ries Mulder (1909–1973) was a Dutch painter and educator who played a pivotal role in shaping modern Indonesian art. He was invited to Indonesia in 1948 to teach at Institut Teknologi Bandung, where he introduced Western modernist ideas, particularly Cubism, to a new generation of Indonesian artists. Some of his students were Ahmad Sadali, Mochtar Apin, But Muchtar, Rita Widagdo, A.D. Pirous, Srihadi Soedarsono, and Popo Iskandar.

Beyond his influence as a teacher, Mulder's own works reveal his fascination with structure, abstraction, and the transformation of landscape into rhythmic geometric forms. In Boats (1959), Mulder transforms the coastal landscape into a carefully orchestrated arrangement of geometric planes and vibrant colour fields. Hills, fields, and shoreline dissolve into angular patches of green, ochre, brown, and blue, creating a composition that feels both structured and dreamlike.

The stylized trees, rendered with crystalline foliage, echo the rhythmic geometry of the land, while several boats drift quietly across the calm sea in the distance. Despite its cubist fragmentation, the painting retains a remarkable sense of serenity.

ADRIEN-JEAN LE MAYEUR DE MERPRES

Adrien-Jean Le Mayeur de Merprès (1880–1958) was a Belgian Impressionist painter who spent the later part of his life in Bali and became one of the earliest European artists to gain recognition in Southeast Asia. Born into an artistic family, he initially studied engineering before ultimately dedicating himself to painting.

His travels brought him across Europe, North Africa, India, Cambodia, Burma, and Madagascar, yet it was Bali that captivated him most deeply when he arrived in 1929. Drawn to the island's light, landscapes, and cultural life, Le Mayeur developed paintings that combined Western Impressionist sensibilities with a deep admiration for Balinese beauty and traditions.

This charcoal and pastel work portrays Ni Nyoman Pollok, the legendary Balinese dancer who became Le Mayeur's muse and later his wife. She is depicted seated in a calm and intimate pose, with long flowing hair and traditional Balinese attire of the period, where women often appeared topless while wearing wrapped cloth around the lower body.

AUKE CORNELIS SONNEGA

Auke Cornelis Sonnega was a Dutch artist deeply influenced by Indonesian culture, particularly Bali. Educated in Amsterdam, he became renowned for his spiritually-charged paintings.

Arriving in Indonesia in 1935, Sonnega eventually settled in Ubud, Bali, after World War II, taking over Rudolf Bonnet's former studio. His style, initially Art Deco-influenced, evolved dramatically after 1951 following spiritual visions, leading to emotionally heightened works inspired by Balinese music and portraits.

Despite President Sukarno collecting his art, political pressures forced Sonnega to leave Indonesia in 1957. He returned to the Netherlands but struggled to regain his equilibrium, passing away in 1963.

“Morning in Bali”

Morning in Bali captures the vibrant atmosphere of Balinese daily and ceremonial life through Le Mayeur’s loose yet expressive visual language. Executed in gouache and charcoal on coloured paper, the work portrays four Balinese women gathered within a temple-like setting surrounded by flowing organic lines and architectural forms. Despite its relatively small size, the composition feels lively and richly detailed. Accents of turquoise, pink, orange, and white animate the surface, creating a festive atmosphere filled with movement and warmth.

ROEDYAT MARTADIREDJA

Born in Bandung in 1932, Roedyat Martadiredja began painting in 1948 and later studied at Institut Teknologi Bandung. Throughout his career, he developed a distinctive style that often blurs the boundary between representation and abstraction, transforming natural forms into expressive arrangements of colour, texture, and rhythm. His works have been exhibited internationally, including in Honolulu, Hawaii, and today reside in private collections across Europe and the United States.

His painting Wijayakusuma captures the mysterious beauty of the legendary night-blooming flower long associated in Javanese culture with rarity, spirituality, and quiet power. The flower is said to bloom only briefly at night and often regarded as a symbol of fleeting beauty and sacred revelation. Derived from Sanskrit, wijaya means “victory” while kusuma means “flower.”

Roedyat evokes this mystical atmosphere through a deep blue-violet background that suggests the stillness of night, from which leaves and blossoms emerge in luminous shades of green, white, and pink. The flowers appear to glow softly within the darkness, creating a dreamlike composition that feels both intimate and transcendent.

Rather than focusing solely on formal performances, Pardoli is also drawn to candid and intimate moments surrounding daily activities and cultural rituals.

Getting Ready for the Performance (2020) captures a lively backstage moment as dancers prepare themselves before stepping onto the stage. Some adjust costumes and accessories, while others sit quietly or help one another dress, creating a scene filled with interaction and anticipation. Richly detailed textiles, ornate headdresses, and glowing tones of yellow, red, and gold bring warmth and festivity into the composition. Through this intimate portrayal, Pardoli highlights not only the beauty of traditional Indonesian dance, but also the sense of togetherness and ritual behind the performance itself.

I GUSTI KETUT KOBOT

I Gusti Ketut Kobot was born in Pengosekan, Ubud, in 1917 and became one of the most distinctive members of the influential Pita Maha painters group, active between 1936 and 1942. While many Balinese artists of his generation absorbed strong Western influences, Kobot maintained a highly personal approach rooted in Balinese tradition.

His works often drew inspiration from epic narratives such as the Ramayana and Mahabharata, interpreted through intricate compositions rich with movement, ornamentation, and imagination. In recognition of his artistic achievements, he received the Wijaya Kusuma Art Award in 1978.

Bird Fighting Dragon (1983) demonstrates Kobot's ability to transform mythological themes into richly decorative visual spectacles. A majestic bird confronts a dragon-like creature in a scene charged with symbolism and tension, yet the work feels more poetic than violent. Feathers, scales, clouds, and foliage dissolve into intricate rhythmic patterns that create a hypnotic sense of movement across the surface. Executed in delicate monochromatic tones, the painting recalls the refined aesthetic of traditional Balinese drawings while revealing Kobot's modern sensitivity to composition and flow.

He was renowned for his unique ability to portray simple village women against natural landscapes, capturing their psychology with striking authenticity, especially their hands and feet. Sudarso held solo exhibitions from 1961-1969 and participated in numerous group shows, including "19 Indonesian Painter" in Singapore and Malaysia (1967). UMI DACHLAN

A key figure in the Bandung School of painting, Umi Dachlan was renowned for her textured abstract canvases, often layered in deep maroon, gold, and her signature purple. Rooted in Islamic philosophy, her works reflect a spiritual connection to nature and music. She studied at Institut Teknologi Bandung (ITB) under Ahmad Sadali, a leading figure in modern Islamic art in Indonesia, graduating in 1968 as only the third female artist to do so.

In 1969, she broke barriers by becoming ITB's first female lecturer, teaching there until 1999. Over the years, she moved beyond her mentor's influence to establish her own iconography, earning a place in the discourse of Indonesian abstraction alongside artists such as Mochtar Apin, Popo Iskandar, and A.D. Pirous.

Her abstraction distilled forms from nature into symbolic rather than representational elements, allowing religion and nature to become her strongest creative impulses. Through abstraction, she found the freedom to express the sensations of spiritual reflection and the beauty of the natural world.

THEO MEIER

Theo Meier was a Swiss artist who lived in Bali for more than two decades between 1934 and 1955. During this period, he became deeply immersed in the development of Balinese Modernist art, not only as a painter but also as a friend, supporter, and collector of local artists. A graduate of the Basel School of Art, Meier lived a nomadic and adventurous life that brought him from Switzerland to the South Pacific, Bali, and later Thailand. His works often reflect the richness of the cultures he encountered, combining expressive brushwork with a strong emotional atmosphere.

Farmer presents a powerful portrait of a farmer. The figure, dressed in a wide hat and holding a farming tool across his shoulder, emerges through earthy tones mixed with striking green and reddish accents. Loose brushstrokes and layered textures give the painting a raw emotional intensity, while the farmer's contemplative expression conveys both resilience and weariness. Rather than idealizing the subject, Meier captures the dignity and humanity of everyday labour.

BATARA LUBIS

Batara Lubis (b. 1927, Hutagodang, North Sumatra) studied at the Indonesian Fine Arts Academy (ASRI) Yogyakarta from 1952 to 1958, after training under prominent artists Affandi, Hendra Gunawan, and Trubus Soedarsono. A member of Sanggar Pelukis Rakyat (People's Painters Studio) founded by Hendra Gunawan and others, he often painted outdoors, capturing the social life of Yogyakarta in scenes from Pasar Ngasem, Beringharjo Market, and Parangtritis Beach. His early spontaneous style contrasted with the realism of his mentors, yet he persisted in developing his own approach.

Since 1955, Batara Lubis actively participated in exhibitions in Yogyakarta and beyond. He also produced batik paintings that were presented in Bali, Jakarta, the Netherlands, and Italy, establishing his reputation as a versatile artist whose works bridged traditional Indonesian themes with a modern sensibility.

TIO TJAY

Tio Tjay was an Indonesian painter who spent much of his life in Brazil. From a young age, he showed a keen interest in Chinese painting and calligraphy, with his artistic talent recognized early on. In 1967, he immigrated to Brazil with his family, later exhibiting his work across São Paulo, Rio de Janeiro, Brasília, and Paraguay. Between 1971 and 1975, he lived in Manaus, where he formed close connections with local communities.

Tio Tjay developed a distinctive style that fused the bold, vibrant colors of Latin America with oriental aesthetics—creating works that reflected both the spirit of Indonesia and the exoticism of the Amazon.

HASAN

Hasan was born in Sumenep, Madura, and currently resides in Klaten, Central Java. He is an artist who earned both his undergraduate and master's degrees from the Indonesian Institute of the Arts in Surakarta. With over two decades of experience in the art world, he has established himself as a prominent figure in contemporary Indonesian art.

Throughout his career, Hasan has participated in numerous prestigious exhibitions, including the KONTRAKSI Nusantara Fine Arts Exhibition at the National Gallery of Indonesia and Sepayung Indonesia at Keraton Mangkunegaran Surakarta. His achievements include being selected for the Grand Art Exhibition organized by the Indonesian Ministry of Education and Culture and receiving a nomination for the BAZAAR Art Award in 2010.

For Hasan, painting is not only a form of artistic expression but also a medium to convey his feelings about various issues affecting the world, both directly and through different media. He addresses profound and personal issues, translating them into imaginative and symbolic visual forms such as symbols of monsters, fire, tree trunks, stones, heads, eyes, mountains, and human figures. Collectively, his artworks create a contemporary surrealistic atmosphere.

KOEMPOEL SUJATNO

Koempoel Sujatno (1912-1987) was a prolific Indonesian painter born in Ngawi, East Java. He was a student of Dutch artists Gerard Pieter Adolfs and Willem van der Does, and is associated with the Mooi Indie ("Beautiful Indies") style. His talent was first recognized by his headmaster at a Dutch school, who introduced him to Adolfs.

From 1928 to 1932, Adolfs taught Koempoel realistic representation techniques that would become central to his success. Koempoel had a strong preference for painting outdoors, capturing scenes under natural light. This is reflected in the bright and harmonious colors of his work, which exude a graceful charm. Though many of his estimated 2,500 paintings have been lost or damaged, his legacy as a master of the Mooi Indie style endures. He passed away in Batu, East Java, in 1987 due to severe throat cancer.
