MESSAGE FROM THE CEO OF SIDHARTA AUCTIONEER

Dear Art Enthusiast & Collector,

This August, we are proud to present the ArtFordable and Collectibles Auction, featuring 89 lots that highlight the rich spectrum of Indonesian art, from emerging talents to well-established masters

Among the senior artists featured, we are pleased to showcase works by Abas Alibasjah, Amrus Natalsya, Erizal, Faizal, Faizin, Gunawan Hanjaya, Jeihaan Sukmantoro, and Ibnu Nurwanto, whose contribution to this auction stands out for his shift in medium. Known for his sculptural work in wood, Ibnu steps into new territory with Women, an abstract painting born from a period of exhaustion and reinvention. The result is both unexpected and deeply personal, a rare moment in an artist's transformation.

Also included are works by Irawan Prasetyo, Joko Gundul, Kartika Affandi, Ketut Lekung Sugantika, Krijono, Mozes Misdy, Pande Giri Ananda, PraPONCO Suprpto, Rabet MS, I Made Supena, Soeroso, Sodick, Sjafriz, Srihadhy, Taat Djoeda, Wenas Heriyanto and Yani Halim.

Our collectibles and vintage selection includes a beautifully carved brown gilt teakwood Chinese Peranakan bed frame, and a rare five-tiered Chinese Peranakan gilt medicine box shaped like the Botekan temple (candi). These Peranakan pieces reflect the rich cultural legacy of the Peranakan community, descendants of Chinese traders who settled in the Malay Archipelago and blended traditions with local cultures.

Also featured is a group of five Shiwan green-glazed covered jars from the late Qing Dynasty, a mid-20th century Art Deco teak bedside cabinet, a 19th-century Chinese oval jardinière with dragon motifs, and a hexagonal storage jar adorned with birds and floral patterns in yellow ochre.

To view and bid on these unique pieces, you are welcome to visit our gallery from Tuesday to Sunday, 11:00 to 18:00, or by appointment. Please be sure to request a condition report for any artwork you are interested in. Bidding options include online, in person, written, and phone bids.

Our team is happy to assist with any inquiries.
Enjoy the selection, and we look forward to welcoming you at the gallery.

Happy bidding!

Warm regards,
Syanda Kunto-Prabowo

Auction Notification

SIDHartA Auctioneer is an officially registered auction house under the supervision of Indonesia's Direktorat Jenderal Kekayaan Negara. An Auction Registrar, Chitra Mukhsin, is present to ensure the auction runs properly, reports are submitted to the government, and payments from winning bidders are completed on time.

This is a Continental Style auction, where bidders compete until the highest bid is reached. A 22% buyer's premium is added to the hammer price and paid by the winning bidder.

Lots are presented in numerical order. Auctions typically move at a rate of 50 lots per hour, so for example, 89 lots should take about 1 hours and 47 minutes.

Each lot includes an estimate, which reflects the current market value. Bids within that range may win the lot, though final prices can be lower (at reserve price) or higher depending on demand.

Most lots have a reserve price, the minimum at which the seller agrees to sell. Until this reserve is met, the auctioneer may place bids on the seller's behalf ("with me"). A lot is considered sold only after the reserve is met and the auctioneer strikes the hammer.

We accept Written, Phone, and Online Bids. Phone operators will bid on behalf of remote bidders. Absentee (written) bids are pre-registered and executed by the auctioneer up to the specified limit. Online bids are processed automatically. Floor bidders compete with all of these.

All lots are sold as is. Condition reports are available upon request. Any corrections to catalog descriptions will be posted in Sale Room Notices.

We do not issue certificates unless explicitly stated in the catalog.

Invoices, including the 22% buyer's premium added to the hammer price, will be issued by Tuesday or Wednesday. Please be informed that there is a buyer's premium of 22% on top of the hammer price applied to the winning bidder. Payment is due within three days via bank transfer or credit card. Lots may be picked up with proof of payment or delivered at an additional cost.

Thank you and happy bidding!

In Caged, Setiawan Suhud captures a quiet yet profound moment: a woman with an umbrella stands before a window, her gaze fixed on a solitary bird beyond the glass. The composition evokes a delicate tension between interiority and freedom, desire and distance. The umbrella, an object of shelter, becomes symbolic of barriers—both physical and psychological—while the window itself serves as a fragile threshold between confinement and the world outside. Suhud's restrained palette and contemplative mood invite viewers to reflect on the unseen cages we inhabit, even within the spaces we call home.

Penari di B'Wangi & Made Ni by Krijono

Lot #821 & 822

Krijono (1951–2011) was an influential Indonesian artist known for his flamboyant use of bold lines and pure, vibrant colors. His dynamic and theatrical style reimagined Indonesian cultural elements through a contemporary lens, often drawing on folklore, mythology, and the natural world. Although he studied at the Indonesian Academy of Art (ASRI) Yogyakarta, his artistic roots ran deep. His father ran Harris Art Gallery in South Jakarta, and his mother owned a batik factory. This early exposure to the decorative arts, particularly batik, may have shaped his instinct for striking contrasts and layered patterning. Through his work, Krijono bridged tradition and modernity with a visual language that resonated with audiences both in Indonesia and beyond.

These two paintings are a clear example of Krijono's signature style: vibrant, stylized, and expressive. Krijono shifts focus here to close-up portraits of dancers. The flat side profile, decorative detailing, and saturated colors reflect his distinct approach to the human form, simplifying it into bold lines and shapes. Instead of capturing the full scene, these works draw attention to expression and mood in a smaller format. While most of his dancer depictions are inspired by Balinese performers, Lot 821, Penari di B'Wangi, presents a rare portrait of a dancer from Banyuwangi, a town on the eastern edge of Java just across the strait from Bali.

In Bandoeng Tempo Doeloe, Anton Suhartono transports us to the storied streets of Bandung from a time long past—an era fondly remembered yet irretrievably distant. The scene is rendered with softened palettes and meticulous attention to the textures of age, where colonial facades, vintage streetcars, and fading shopfronts emerge like fragments from a sepia-toned memory. Yet beneath the surface charm, Suhartono infuses the landscape with a palpable bleakness, as if the city itself mourns the transience of its own grandeur. The streets appear hushed, the air heavy with nostalgia, evoking a sense of longing for moments that can no longer be reclaimed.

Through this delicate interplay of beauty and melancholy, Suhartono's work becomes more than a mere depiction of place—it is an elegy for the passage of time and a reflection on how cities, like memories, are shaped as much by what remains as by what has been lost.

I Gusti Nyoman Widnyana, better known as Gung Man, is a Balinese painter born in 1956 whose work reflects a deep connection to tradition and place. He studied under Dutch artist Rudolf Bonnet and learned the foundations of the Ubud style from Mangku Nyoman Lesug and later Arie Smit. His paintings are often dense with temple structures, decorative trees, and human activity, but rather than relying on fine linework, Gung Man builds detail through repeated strokes, layered blots, and the expressive use of color. This approach gives his compositions a vibrant, almost rhythmic energy, blending classical Balinese aesthetics with a more contemporary touch.

This quality is clearly displayed in Aktifitas Pagi Hari (2005), a depiction of a Balinese village nestled within a forest at the foot of rolling hills. Temple facades appear partially hidden among trees, while silhouettes of women with baskets balanced on their heads populate the scene. Gung Man captures the quiet movement of morning activity through layered textures and tones that allow the viewer's eye to wander.

Kartika Affandi is best known for her landscapes, which she does “on the spot” or in situ, wherever she went, around the globe. Here is a scene of a bird market, presumably in Java, as we can see from the shakes of the bird cages and the large terracotta roof tiles of the vendors’ huts.

Kartika borrowed the method of painting from her father, the maestro Affandi, who also painted in situ. Although she, like her father, might have also painted outlines directly from oil paint tubes, Kartika painted with brighter colors and used brushes.

Bamboo Construction by Praponco Suprpto

Lot #839

In Bamboo Construction, Praponco Suprpto weaves a spirited and intricate visual narrative of labor, craftsmanship, and collective human endeavor. Atop a chaotic yet enchanting framework of bamboo scaffolding, workers are shown collaborating in the midst of construction—climbing, balancing, and building with a palpable sense of rhythm and coordination. The scaffolding itself seems to come alive, rendered with exaggerated twists, curls, and spirals, transforming a functional structure into a whimsical, almost surreal architecture that borders on the fantastical.

Suprpto's command of composition and movement breathes vitality into the scene, blurring the line between utility and artistry. The bamboo, a material deeply rooted in Indonesian cultural and architectural heritage, becomes not just a medium of construction but a metaphor for adaptability, resilience, and the fluidity of form. Through this dynamic portrayal, Suprpto pays homage to the ingenuity of human hands and the quiet poetry of labor—where building is not merely a means to an end, but a testament to the enduring relationship between community, nature, and creative expression.

Gotot Prakosa's Impulses

Lot #857 & 858

Gotot Prakosa was a consummate Indonesian artist. He delved in visual expression in its many forms.

Often cited as a creative film maker and writer, Gotot was also a prolific painter, leaving behind over 400 canvases and an untold number of works on paper. The exact number of his cinematic creations and the film productions he was involved in is unknown. His paintings (he called them his children) are dotted around the globe, acquired by collectors who knew him personally, or were introduced to him in Indonesia or while he was on tour abroad in his capacity as an academic and practicing artist.

During his creative lifetime, even he could not answer whenever someone asked him whether his cinematic vision informed his art, or whether his artist's eye informed his filmic expression. One thing is for sure: his experimental and abstract cinematic works embody the sure eye of an artist endeavouring to capture the swirl and chaos of a glorious world in all its hues and colours.

An extreme introvert by nature, Gotot looked upon his creativity as mere impulses. He was also self-effacing, calling his paintings and film creations "pinggiran" works -- a word difficult to translate into English, because while the dictionary definition would be 'from the periphery', the way Gotot used the word could also be interpreted as 'something cast aside', 'existing only on the edges', 'not being part of the central hub'. Hailing from a simple background far from the city centre in Central Java, it could be he always felt himself as someone who stood in the margins, looking from the outside in.

Yet, when perusing his works on canvas, which if one has a penchant for boxing things into categories and periods, one somehow gets a feeling that Gotot was someone who was definitely part of the centrum. He was recruited as team member for major film productions, he attended glittery diplomatic gatherings, was called upon to document on film Indonesian troupes travelling abroad, and he hobnobbed with the beautiful and the powerful – but he always made sure nobody recalled he was there.

He used these events as fodder for his art, creating paintings large-sized and small, vivacious and subdued, rambunctious and contemplative, sometimes succeeding in portraying the very essence of Indonesian-ness. Gotot painted with the same ease a bit dancer from a Balinese village doing his makeup in minute detail, and a top model flirting with the glitterati fiddling with a champagne glass at a cocktail party in Venice.

To roughly analyse his works in periods (which somebody has yet to do), the very young Gotot started on his painterly path making sketches of people and village life in his spare time, while assisting his uncle (who ran a modest village movie theatre) threading film celluloid back onto its spools and reels. As he matured and later moved to Jakarta, he ventured onto canvas trying out abstract forms and more ambitious subjects. His wife considers his final phase to be the one wherein Gotot tried to immortalize the flashy existence of urbanites, just as Indonesia was on the brink of turning into a middle-income country.

White Bull on Black by Wenas Heriyanto

Lot #862

Wenas Heriyanto is a contemporary Indonesian painter from Pekalongan, Central Java, born in 1986. His work often centers on animal figures rendered in a bold expressionist style, using thick acrylic strokes and striking color contrasts.

In White Bull on Black, a 145 x 145 cm acrylic on canvas piece, Wenas depicts a lone bull, its form suggested through layered white strokes against a flat black background. Sharp accents of red define its tail, mouth, nose, and horns, completing the figure with a sense of force and immediacy. The composition captures both the strength and symbolism of the animal through minimal elements. Beyond its physical presence, the bull also evokes its role as a symbol in the world of finance, representing optimism, aggressive confidence, and a sustained upward trend in the market.

The Man Behind The Gun by Erizal AS

Lot #863

Erizal AS is an Indonesian painter whose practice has evolved over more than two decades, moving from figurative art into abstraction. Born in Padang Panjang and based in Yogyakarta, he studied at the Indonesian Institute of Art and developed his approach within the city's active art community. His current work explores ideas of identity, power, and emotional tension through gestural strokes, textured surfaces, and shifting forms. For Erizal, painting is both a personal process and a search for something deeper.

The Man Behind The Gun marks an early stage in Erizal's solo practice, where recognizable figures still appear alongside his growing pull toward abstraction. In this 130 x 140 cm mixed media work, two human forms flank a central abstract shape. On the left, a figure emerges through sinuous forms of brown and white, while the figure on the right is rendered in concentrated dark marks, rising from a backdrop of aggressive vertical lines. Between them stands a large, textured form resembling wood, supported by feet that peek out from underneath. Together, these elements suggest tension between presence and anonymity, an early glimpse of Erizal's evolving visual language. hip between community, nature, and creative expression.

In Figure, Martono offers a deeply psychological and emotionally charged portrayal of the human form. A solitary man is depicted kneeling, his posture heavy with defeat and introspection, as though buckling under an invisible weight. Yet what is most striking is not only the physicality of his pose, but the palpable energy that seems to course through him—conveyed through a volatile palette of searing reds, bruised maroons, and shadowed depths. These colors pulse across the canvas like a restrained blaze, suggesting a force within that is barely contained, simmering with anger, pain, or unresolved anguish.

Martono masterfully captures the duality of suppression and eruption. The figure is at once crestfallen and defiant, as though withholding an emotional tempest that threatens to break through the surface of his skin. The work evokes a state of inner conflict, where vulnerability does not equate to weakness, but rather reveals the raw tension between endurance and collapse.

Figure is less a portrait of a person than a study of human fragility under emotional siege—a meditation on the quiet violence of restraint, and the internal battles that are often fought in silence. Through stark composition and an intense, almost combustible palette, Martono reflects on the ways the body becomes a vessel for all that remains unspoken yet deeply felt.

A brown gilt teakwood peranakan carved bed

The Peranakan people, also known as Baba-Nyonya, Straits Chinese, or King's Chinese, are the descendants of Chinese traders who settled in the Malay Archipelago and married local women, creating a distinct hybrid culture that populated parts of Indonesia, Singapore, and Malaysia. Neither fully Chinese nor fully Malay, the Peranakan community developed a rich blend of customs, languages, and aesthetics that stood apart from the cultures around them. Their food, clothing, architecture, and furnishings became visual expressions of this cultural fusion, often ornate, vibrant, and symbolic. Though once in decline, Peranakan heritage is now being rediscovered and celebrated for its unique role in the region's history.

Lot 882 features a carved teakwood bed, an iconic example of Peranakan craftsmanship. Framed by three low walls with one side left open for entry, the bed features four sturdy columns, each rising to hold a top cover. The front of the canopy is adorned with an ornate carved arch, while the lower section of the bed is elevated on stilts and decorated with detailed carvings along the front panel. The combination of structural function and decorative artistry reflects the Peranakan tradition of blending beauty and utility in everyday objects.
