Gerard Pieter Adolfs

Gerard Pieter Adolfs (1897–1968) was a Dutch painter celebrated for his vibrant depictions of life in the Dutch East Indies (now Indonesia). Born in Semarang, Java, he initially trained as an architect in Amsterdam but later devoted himself to painting.

Known for his expressive, impressionistic style, Adolfs captured Indonesia's landscapes, urban life, and traditions with dynamic compositions and rich use of light and color. Though he traveled widely across Europe and Asia, his deep connection to Indonesia remained central to his work, offering a vivid glimpse into early 20th-century life in the archipelago.

Batara Lubis

Batara Lubis (b. 1927, Hutagodang, North Sumatra) studied at the Indonesian Fine Arts Academy (ASRI) Yogyakarta from 1952 to 1958, after training under prominent artists Affandi, Hendra Gunawan, and Trubus Soedarsono. A member of Sanggar Pelukis Rakyat (People's Painters Studio) founded by Hendra Gunawan and others, he often painted outdoors, capturing the social life of Yogyakarta in scenes from Pasar Ngasem, Beringharjo Market, and Parangtritis Beach. His early spontaneous style contrasted with the realism of his mentors, yet he persisted in developing his own approach.

Since 1955, Batara Lubis actively participated in exhibitions in Yogyakarta and beyond. He also produced batik paintings that were presented in Bali, Jakarta, the Netherlands, and Italy, establishing his reputation as a versatile artist whose works bridged traditional Indonesian themes with a modern sensibility.

Dullah

Dullah was an Indonesian realist painter renowned for his lifelike portraits and historical scenes depicting the struggle for independence. Born in Surakarta to a family of batik makers, he developed an early appreciation for art and later joined Seniman Indonesia Muda (SIM), where he studied alongside leading figures such as S. Sudjojono and Affandi. In 1950, President Soekarno appointed him as the official artist and curator of Istana Merdeka, a position he held for nearly a decade.

Dullah's Water Apple showcases his meticulous approach to still life, depicting a cluster of ripe fruits, delicate blossoms and lush green leaves. The guavas appear almost three-dimensional, with subtle gradations of colour and carefully rendered highlights that give each fruit a convincing sense of volume and texture. Their warm reddish tones contrast with the deep greens of the foliage, while the soft white blossoms introduce a delicate brightness to the composition.

Fadjar Sidik

Born in Surabaya, Fadjar Sidik studied English literature at Gadjah Mada University before shifting to fine arts at ASRI Yogyakarta. His time in Bali (1957–1961) shaped his transition from semi-abstract to pure abstraction, influenced by his response to the commercialization of Balinese culture.

A key figure in modern Indonesian art, Sidik was a lecturer at ASRI from 1961, later serving as Head of the Painting Department (1967–1983) and Assistant Rector (1984–1992). His teachings were enriched by his interactions with senior artists like Hendra, Affandi, and Sudjojono.

In recognition of his contributions, the Indonesian Institute of the Arts (ISI) inaugurated a gallery in his honor in 2017. Today, he is remembered not only as a pioneer of abstraction but also as a transformative educator.

Ahmad Sadali

Ahmad Sadali was a leading figure in Indonesian modern art and a key member of the Bandung School. Trained at the Bandung Institute of Technology (ITB) and later in the United States, he developed a distinctive abstract language that brought modernist experimentation into dialogue with Islamic spirituality. For Sadali, abstraction offered a means of exploring contemplation, beauty and the unseen.

This untitled painting reveals Sadali's thoughtful use of colour, texture and geometric forms. Layers of grey and cream create a weathered surface, while muted turquoise adds depth and touches of gold bring warmth and quiet radiance. The raised paint and fine incised lines balance roughness with a sense of order. Rather than depicting a specific subject, Sadali allows these elements to speak for themselves. The interplay of colour, texture and form invites viewers to pause and wonder, finding their own meaning within the composition.

Emiria Soenassa

Emiria Soenassa, often regarded as Indonesia's first female modern artist, lived a life that defied the expectations of her time. Born in Tanawangko, North Sulawesi, into the royal family of Tidore, she first trained as a nurse and later managed a plantation before turning to painting.

Her travels across Europe, where she studied ballet in Brussels, Amsterdam and Vienna, shaped an unconventional path that eventually led her to PERSAGI (Persatuan Ahli Gambar Indonesia), Indonesia's pioneering modern art movement. Emiria developed a bold, instinctive style that celebrated everyday life, cultural traditions and independent women.

Flowers offers a quieter glimpse into Emiria's world. Rather than depicting the people and cultural traditions often associated with her work, she turns her attention to a simple arrangement of blossoms. Red petals spread across the canvas, their vivid colour set against deep green foliage. Streaks of blue at their centres introduce an unexpected contrast. Even in this intimate still life, Emiria's expressive approach shines through, revealing the same freedom and individuality that defined her life and artistic practice.

Romualdo Locatelli

Romualdo Locatelli, born in Bergamo, Northern Italy, was a prominent Italian painter in the "Mooi Indie" Orientalist genre. After studying at the Carrara and Brera academies, he gained early success in Bergamo and Milan, leading him to establish his atelier in Rome's Via Margutta.

From 1933 to 1938, Locatelli became the official portraitist for Vatican prelates and the Italian Royal family. Seeking new inspiration, he moved to Bali in 1939, where Southeast Asia's unspoiled landscapes and rich cultures deeply influenced his most celebrated works.

Affandi

Affandi was one of Indonesia's most influential modern artists of the twentieth century. Born in Cirebon in 1907, he was largely self-taught and developed a distinctive style defined by bold colours, expressive lines and vigorous brushwork. He began painting seriously in 1935 and his work later gained many international recognition, such as honorary doctorate from the National University of Singapore in 1974 and the International Peace Prize from the Dag Hammarskjöld Foundation in 1977. His paintings were also exhibited at major international events, including the Venice and São Paulo Biennales.

Self-portraiture held a significant place in Affandi's practice, allowing him to explore his identity and trace his artistic evolution. Self Portrait II, created in 1981 when the artist was 74, reveals his raw and spontaneous approach to depicting the human face. A circular motif resembling the sun appears above his head. It's a recurring symbol in his work that he regarded as a vital life force. Rather than pursuing a faithful likeness, Affandi uses bold colour and expressive gestures to convey the intensity of his inner world.

Trubus Sudarsono

Trubus Sudarsono (1926–1966) was a self-taught Indonesian artist known for his mastery of realism in painting and sculpture. Born in Yogyakarta to a farming family, he developed artistic skills from an early age, later learning from masters Affandi and S. Sudjojono. Active in Seniman Indonesia Muda and Pelukis Rakyat during Indonesia's independence struggle, his works often depicted nature, traditional life, and the beauty of Indonesia's people with meticulous detail.

Trubus contributed to major public artworks, including the "Welcome Statue" in Jakarta, and represented Indonesia in the 1954 cultural mission to Czechoslovakia. He later established a studio in Sleman, Yogyakarta, producing notable paintings of Balinese dancers and national hero statues, such as General Oerip Soemohardjo in Magelang. His career ended abruptly in 1966 during political unrest, and his fate remains unknown.

Abdul Aziz

Abdul Aziz was an Indonesian painter born in Purwokerto in 1928. After graduating from the Indonesian Fine Art Academy (ASRI) in 1959, he continued his studies at the Accademia di Belle Arti in Rome, where he developed an interest in printmaking and the techniques of European Old Masters. He returned to Indonesia in 1965 and settled in Ubud, Bali, where he combined European artistic influences with local subjects. Women remained central to his practice, alongside his pursuits as a sculptor, violinist and violin maker.

Madonna and Child (1973) carries a story of longing that remains familiar even today. The painting depicts a mother holding her child tenderly, but its emotional roots lie in a memory from Aziz's time in Italy. He once knew an elderly woman who waited for her children to visit at Christmas, only to be disappointed year after year. Feeling sorry for her, Aziz played Christmas songs on his violin. She then began to cry and asked him to stop. The encounter stayed with him and inspired this painting. Years later, when a collector visited his studio in Ubud and asked to buy the work, Aziz was reluctant to let it go. He eventually agreed to sell it alongside another painting.

The work also reveals his characteristic use of trompe-l'œil, with a frame-within-a-frame effect that gives the figures a striking sense of depth, as though they might step beyond the canvas.

Mochtar Apin

Mochtar Apin was an Indonesian painter, illustrator, writer and educator who helped shape the development of modern Indonesian art. He co-founded the Gelanggang Seniman Muda movement in Jakarta in 1946 and later pursued his studies in Paris and Berlin, where he explored modernist approaches to painting. His encounters with Cubism and optical art, particularly the work of Victor Vasarely, informed his fascination with geometric forms.

Balinese Dancers reveals how Apin translated the energy of traditional dance into a modern visual language. The dancers emerge through angular shapes and simplified forms. Their bodies appear almost to dissolve into the surrounding composition. Yet the geometry never feels rigid. Colours shift between warm and cool tones, creating a lively interplay that gives the figures rhythm and movement.

Rather than capturing the dancers through precise outlines, Apin invites us to experience their presence through colour, shape and gesture. The result is a meeting of tradition and modernism, where the spirit of Balinese dance remains recognisable.

Nasirun

Nasirun studied at the Indonesian Institute of the Arts (ISI) Yogyakarta from 1987 to 1994. His work received early recognition through awards including the Philip Morris Indonesian Art Award and the ASEAN Art Awards in Manila.

His artistic practice is deeply rooted in local wisdom, wayang narratives, myths, legends, and mystical tales passed down by his mother. The Sufi values practised by his father also shaped his creative outlook, becoming part of a process through which spiritual traditions and inherited knowledge are reinterpreted in relation to contemporary life.

These influences emerge in paintings characterised by vivid colours, intricate ornamentation, fluid forms, and deliberate distortions, creating enigmatic worlds where traditional imagery meets present-day realities. As Nasirun has explained, the reflection and collaboration of these forms of knowledge and lived values give rise to contemporary artistic expressions.

In 2015, Nasirun was invited by the Indonesian Ministry of Education and Culture to mentor young artists through the “Belajar Bersama Maestro” programme. His sustained engagement with traditional narratives and contemporary artistic practice has established him as an important figure in the development of Indonesian contemporary painting.

Arie Smit

Arie Smit was born in Zaandam, the Netherlands, in 1916. He studied at the Academy of Arts in Rotterdam before working as a lithographer for the Dutch Colonial Army in the Dutch East Indies. His life took a new direction in 1956 when he moved to Bali to devote himself to painting. Smit became well-known for his vibrant colours and expressive compositions, and is widely regarded as a pioneer of pointillism in Indonesia. He continued painting well into his later years and passed away in Ubud in 2016, aged 99.

Entrance Gate to Shrine (2004) invites us into a colourful Balinese village, where temple gates and traditional houses sit among towering coconut palms and lush greenery. Small figures move through the scene, while mountains rise in the distance, giving the composition a sense of depth and place. Smit captures the vibrancy of the landscape through vivid yellows, pinks, greens and oranges. His characteristic pointillist approach is evident in the small dabs of colour scattered across the canvas, creating a lively, almost mosaic-like surface.

What makes the painting especially remarkable is that Smit created it in his late eighties. Even then, his palette remained radiant and his brushwork playful, reflecting a lifelong fascination with Bali and its everyday surroundings.

Srihadi Soedarsono

Srihadi Soedarsono was a prominent Indonesian artist renowned for his expressive depictions of Javanese and Balinese dancers, as well as his mastery of colour and form. His achievements include the Cultural Award from Australia (1973), recognition at the Third Jakarta Biennale (1978) and a Fulbright Grant (1980). He also contributed significantly to art education in Indonesia. He developed the Jakarta Institute of the Arts and served as Professor of Fine Arts at the Bandung Institute of Technology from 1992.

Bedhoyo Hamardika – The Spirit of Freedom captures the grace and collective spirit of the Bedhaya, a classical court dance associated with the Surakarta Palace. The title evokes freedom and independence, with hamardika referring to liberty and self-determination. Traditionally, Bedhaya dancers were the female palace warriors who trained in both dance and physical discipline.

In this painting, five dancers in vivid red dresses and flowing pink sashes move in unison, their sweeping gestures brought to life through expressive brushstrokes. The dark background sets off the dancers, drawing attention to their poised movements and vibrant costumes.

Harijadi Sumadidjaja

Harijadi Sumadidjaja was a self-taught realist painter and a key member of Seniman Indonesia Muda (SIM), a group led by S. Sudjojono. His works often portrayed the lives of ordinary Indonesians, bringing their experiences and struggles into the visual narrative of the Indonesian Revolution. Through his commitment to realism, Harijadi demonstrated how everyday subjects could become meaningful records of Indonesian life and society.

Girl in a Yellow Dress (Gadis Baju Kuning) reflects Harijadi's close observation of his surroundings through its precise rendering of the human figure and everyday objects. A young woman sits on a woven mat, dressed in a yellow kemben and a red patterned skirt. The intricate textile motifs, floral hair ornament, ring and creases on the soles of her feet reveal the artist's remarkable attention to detail. A carved wooden table with a small offering sits nearby, grounding the scene in its domestic setting. Beyond its technical precision, the painting celebrates the richness of ordinary life, inviting viewers to look more closely at the people, objects and details that might otherwise go unnoticed.

Harijadi Sumadidjaja was an Indonesian painter known for his realist approach and sensitive portrayals of everyday life. The Princess (Sang Putri) captures a quiet moment as an Indonesian woman sits gazing into the distance, seemingly lost in thought. She wears a green kemben and a richly patterned batik skirt, with a small flower tucked into her hair. Roosters, a carved wooden stool and white frangipani flowers surround her, grounding the scene in its Indonesian setting.

Harijadi renders her figure with remarkable realism, while loose, expressive brushstrokes transform the green and blue background into an almost abstract setting. This contrast brings the woman into focus while preserving the lively atmosphere around her.

Sudjono Abdullah

Sudjono Abdullah was born in Yogyakarta in 1911. He was the son of Abdullah Suriosubroto, a renowned landscape painter, and the brother of Basoeki Abdullah. As a child, he would help his father clean paint palettes, sparking his own passion for becoming a painter. Sudjono completed his education at the HIS (Hollandsch-Inlandsche School, an Indonesian-Dutch school) and later worked as a poster artist for Rex Theater in Yogyakarta.

During the Japanese occupation of Indonesia, he retreated to Parangtritis and Parangkusumo, where he continued his painting practice. In the 1970s, Sudjono moved to Kertosono, East Java, where he lived until his passing in 1993.

Frederik Kasenda

Frederik Kasenda was born in Remboken, Minahasa, on 31 May 1891. He showed a natural talent for drawing from childhood. His abilities drew the attention of John Ernest Jasper, a civil servant who encouraged him to study art in Java. Kasenda became known for his landscapes of Java and Bali, as well as cityscapes of Singapore. Newspapers of his time described him as sometimes playful, sometimes gentle, and at other times romantic or complex. His works often depict rice fields, rivers, and Balinese temples at night, capturing both everyday life and the beauty of Indonesia's natural scenery.

Adam Lay

Adam Lay was born in Wonosobo, Central Java, on September 25, 1949. He began painting during his elementary school years and is celebrated as a self-taught artist. His first solo exhibition was held in 1979 at Hotel Indonesia, Jakarta, and he went on to participate in numerous exhibitions in Indonesia and Australia.

Known for his animal paintings, particularly doves and horses, Adam Lay often depicted wild horses running freely across vast landscapes, symbolizing unbridled freedom. After suffering a stroke in 2005, he decided to stop painting horses, expressing a desire to break free from any creative constraints. Just as his horses embodied freedom, he believed the artist should also be free to explore subjects without limitation.
