WIDAYAT

Widayat was born in Kutoarjo, Central Java, in 1919, and studied at the Indonesian Fine Art Academy (ASRI) in Yogyakarta, graduating in 1954 before later serving as a lecturer there. Between 1960 and 1962, he continued his studies in Japan, focusing on ceramics, garden design, ikebana, and graphic arts, an experience that profoundly shaped his artistic direction.

After returning to Indonesia, his style shifted toward a more decorative and semi-abstract approach. Over the course of his career, Widayat received numerous awards, including the BKPM Award in 1953, a Cultural Award from the Indonesian government in 1972, Best Painting at the Yogyakarta Biennial in 1986, and the ASEAN Award in Brunei Darussalam in 1993.

Painted in 1990, Cherry Blossoms shows the clear influence of his time in Japan. The composition is structured by large, dark tree trunks in the foreground, their textured surfaces contrasting with the dense clusters of blossoms that fill almost the entire canvas. The flowers are rendered in small, repeated strokes of pink and warm ochre, creating a layered and decorative surface. Through this approach, Widayat combines the visual memory of sakura with his signature style, resulting in a landscape that is structured, detailed, and visually rhythmic.

HENDRA GUNAWAN

Hendra Gunawan, an Indonesian modern master from Bandung, began painting in the 1930s. He blended traditional themes with bold color, and his works continue to gain international recognition, including at the Venice Biennale 2024.

Barong and Keris Dancer vividly captures the spirit of the traditional Balinese Barong dance. At its center, the Barong, a symbol of good, is rendered in striking detail with a red face, orange eyes, and ornate gold adornments in textured impasto strokes of pink, green, and blue. Its flowing black body anchors the scene, surrounded by vibrant ceremonial elements.

In the foreground, two dancers, in a moment of trance, plunge their keris into their chests, symbolizing the triumph of good over evil. Hendra's use of teal blues, bright pinks, and thin, flowing brushstrokes creates a dynamic, immersive composition. The perspective places the viewer in the front row, emphasized by a woman in blue observing the ritual.

SUDJANA KERTON

Sudjana Kerton was born in Bandung in 1922 and became known as one of Indonesia's leading expressionist painters. He is known for documenting the struggle for independence through sketches, paintings, and sculptures exhibited in Yogyakarta and across Java. His artistic journey took him traveling and studying abroad, including in Amsterdam and Paris through a fellowship, and later at the Art Students League of New York, experiences that broadened his international outlook.

Sydney Harbour presents the iconic landscape in bright, striking colors and animated forms. The deep turquoise water dominates the composition, framed by the sweeping white arc of the bridge and warm-toned buildings. Boats glide across the harbour, while in the foreground a street vendor, passersby, and couples animate the scene, adding a lively urban atmosphere. On the left, a small jazz ensemble with visible instruments adds a festive rhythm to the composition. Through these vivid colors and dynamic arrangement, Kerton transforms the harbor into a bustling, narrative scene full of movement and energy.

AHMAD SADALI

A pioneer of Indonesian modernism, Ahmad Sadali studied at ITB and later in the United States, where he encountered Abstract Expressionism while deepening his commitment to Islamic philosophy. His work is known for merging modern abstraction with spiritual contemplation, positioning him as a central figure in Indonesian modern art. In 1972, he received the Anugerah Seni Indonesia in recognition of a career that united formal experimentation with metaphysical inquiry.

Brown Field is structured around a central mass of reddish-brown planes layered with thick, cracked textures that evoke parched earth or weathered walls. A horizontal band of deep crimson separates this dense field from a lighter expanse above. Through restrained composition and tactile surfaces, Sadali creates a quiet balance between material weight and spiritual stillness.

PANG MAOKUN

Pang Maokun was born in Chongqing in 1963 and received his formal training at the Sichuan Fine Arts Institute, where he completed his master's degree in 1988. He is a significant figure in contemporary Chinese oil painting. He has held numerous leading positions in national and regional art institutions, including serving as President of the Sichuan Fine Arts Institute. Pang is known for his sustained exploration of classical oil painting language within a contemporary context, combining technical refinement with subtle reflections on social reality.

Painted in 1992, Girl Holding Yellow Umbrella demonstrates Pang's mastery of classical realism and his sensitivity to light and atmosphere. The young woman is rendered with soft modeling and delicate tonal transitions, her calm expression and downward gaze conveying quiet introspection.

The muted grey background contrasts with the luminous yellow umbrella, which casts a warm glow and becomes the compositional focal point. Her traditional attire is carefully detailed, yet treated with painterly restraint, emphasizing texture and structure without excess ornament.

AFFANDI

Affandi (1907–1990) stands as one of Indonesia's most influential modern artists. Born in Cirebon, he was largely self-taught, studying anatomy and perspective independently before forging his own intensely personal style. For Affandi, painting was a direct emotional act rather than a faithful reproduction of reality.

Beginning his full-time artistic career in 1935, he later became associated with Kelompok Lima Bandung and gained international acclaim. His expressive manner, often compared to Van Gogh, brought him global recognition, including participation in major exhibitions such as the Venice Biennale and the São Paulo Biennale, as well as numerous international honors.

Fish Drying depicts a scene commonly found in coastal areas of Indonesia, where fish are laid out under the sun to dry. Rows of fish dominate the foreground, outlined with bold, dark strokes and filled with layered tones of yellow, brown, green, and black. The paint is applied thickly, creating a textured surface that reinforces the heat and activity of the setting. In the background, loosely defined rooftops and structural forms suggest a seaside village.

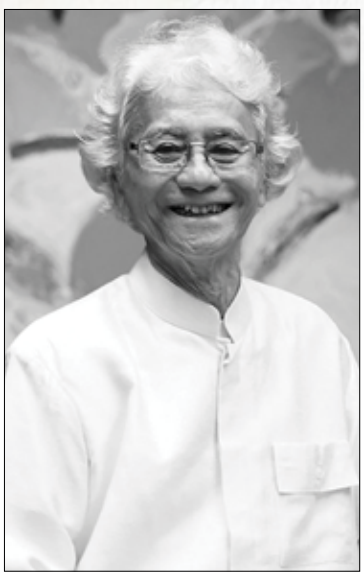
SRIHADI SOEDARSONO



Srihadi Soedarsono (1931–2022) was one of Indonesia's leading modern painters, known for his lyrical landscapes and refined sensitivity to color. Educated in Indonesia and later in the United States, his exposure to international modernism deepened his exploration of abstraction while retaining a spiritual undertone. Throughout his career, he received numerous honors, including the National Award for Contemporary Art in 1971 and Australia's Cultural Award in 1973. His works are known for transforming natural scenery into expressive, contemplative compositions.

Beach presents a distilled vision of sky, sea, and shore through layered fields of color. Gradations of blue dominate the upper section, while earthy browns and muted ochres define the shoreline below. Thick, textured brushstrokes add material depth, preventing the surface from appearing flat. Through subtle tonal transitions and controlled composition, Srihadi reduces the landscape to its essential elements, creating a quiet and balanced abstraction.

LEE MAN FONG

Born in Guangzhou, Lee Man Fong spent his early years in Singapore before moving to Jakarta in the 1930s. He trained in Chinese Lingnan brush painting and oil painting, becoming the first non-Dutch artist to exhibit with the Dutch East Indies Association in 1936.

A Malino scholarship brought him to the Netherlands from 1949 to 1952, where European art influenced his style. He later exhibited in Paris and Amsterdam, led the Society of Chinese Artists in Indonesia, and served as a palace artist to President Sukarno. After 1967, he lived in Singapore and embraced the Nanyang approach before returning to Jakarta in 1986. He passed away in 1988.

Gold Fishes shows one of his most frequent subjects. Several goldfish swim across a soft, muted background, their bright orange bodies and flowing fins becoming the focus of the composition. Lee uses controlled, fluid brushwork to suggest gentle movement in the water. In Chinese culture, goldfish symbolize prosperity and good fortune, giving the painting an auspicious meaning while maintaining a calm and elegant atmosphere.

HAN SNEL

Han Snel was born in Scheveningen, the Netherlands, in 1925. He arrived in Indonesia as a Dutch soldier but later chose to remain and pursue a career in art. Settling in Bali in 1950, he eventually became an Indonesian citizen. Known for his bold colours and geometric abstraction, Snel developed a distinctive style that merged modern structure with Balinese themes. He exhibited internationally, including at Itoh Gallery in Tokyo in 1965, and became one of the prominent foreign-born artists associated with postwar Balinese modernism.

Balinese Girls portrays two women standing side by side, each balancing a basket on her head. Draped in sarongs, their bodies form a strong vertical composition against a textured, layered background. The dominant blue palette creates a moody atmosphere, while the simplified forms reflect Snel's modern, structured approach to traditional Balinese subjects.

"Bamboo Bridge in Muntilan"

Bamboo Bridge in Muntilan (Jembatan Bambu di Muntilan) depicts a rural scene in Muntilan, Central Java, rendered through Affandi's vigorous, expressive strokes. Spring Pool captures a tranquil landscape. A slender tree rises at the center, its light yellow foliage glowing against the cool turquoise water behind it. Gentle layers of green, pink, and muted earth tones suggest blossoming shrubs and distant hills, while the surface remains airy and fluid rather than tightly defined. Through restrained composition and subtle color harmony, Su Tianci conveys the freshness and quiet vitality of early spring.

HONG LING

Born in Beijing in 1955, Hong Ling studied oil painting in the years following the Cultural Revolution. Although trained in a Western medium, he turned to the mountains of rural China as his main inspiration. By combining oil techniques with the spirit of traditional Chinese landscape painting, he developed a distinctive style characterized by dense foliage, layered textures, and rich tonal variations. His works reinterpret the classical shan shui tradition in a contemporary and immersive way.

Cave Valley and Spring present landscapes built from overlapping layers of trees and vegetation in varied greens and muted hues. Forms merge into one another through clustered brushstrokes, creating depth without rigid outlines. Rather than emphasizing precise detail, Hong Ling conveys the atmosphere and vitality of nature, drawing the viewer into a lush and enveloping environment.

TU HONGTAO

Tu Hongtao is a Chinese painter known for blending elements of classical Chinese painting with contemporary visual language. He studied at the Sichuan Fine Arts Institute and later graduated from the China Academy of Art in Hangzhou in 1999. After years of experimentation, including an early Neo-Pop phase, Tu returned to Chengdu in 2008, where the rural environment near his hometown reshaped his artistic direction. Drawing from literati traditions, calligraphy, and Western abstraction, he developed a style that bridges historical Chinese aesthetics with post-war modernist influences.

Seeking Lost Things presents a surreal, theatrical scene set against a nocturnal urban skyline. A doll-like female figure with exaggerated eyes stands in the foreground, her detached arm hanging by a spring, while two smaller figures search the ground with a flashlight. The contrast between the vast cityscape and the oversized, fragile character creates a sense of dislocation and psychological tension.

UMI DACHLAN

A key figure in the Bandung School of painting, Umi Dachlan was renowned for her textured abstract canvases, often layered in deep maroon, gold, and her signature purple. Rooted in Islamic philosophy, her works reflect a spiritual connection to nature and music. She studied at Institut Teknologi Bandung (ITB) under Ahmad Sadali, a leading figure in modern Islamic art in Indonesia, graduating in 1968 as only the third female artist to do so.

In 1969, she broke barriers by becoming ITB's first female lecturer, teaching there until 1999. Over the years, she moved beyond her mentor's influence to establish her own iconography, earning a place in the discourse of Indonesian abstraction alongside artists such as Mochtar Apin, Popo Iskandar, and A.D. Pirous.

Her abstraction distilled forms from nature into symbolic rather than representational elements, allowing religion and nature to become her strongest creative impulses. Through abstraction, she found the freedom to express the sensations of spiritual reflection and the beauty of the natural world.

DULLAH

Born in Surakarta to a family of batik makers, Dullah was immersed in artistic traditions from an early age. He was an active member of Seniman Indonesia Muda (SIM) and studied under influential figures such as S. Sudjojono and Affandi. Widely known as the "Revolutionary Painter," Dullah documented scenes of struggle and resistance during the Dutch colonization, a body of work that later earned him the trust of President Soekarno. In 1950, he was appointed official artist and curator of Istana Merdeka, a position he held for nearly a decade, contributing significantly to Indonesia's visual and cultural history.

In Landscape, Dullah presents a tranquil view of the Indonesian natural environment, marked by rolling hills, vegetation, and a distant mountain dominating the horizon. This work reveals a quieter side of Dullah's practice, emphasizing harmony between land and space, and highlighting the enduring beauty of Indonesia's landscape as an integral part of national identity.

I DEWA PUTU MOKOH

I Dewa Putu Mokoh was a pioneering Balinese artist who redefined the art of Pengosekan, Ubud, by blending traditional wayang-inspired techniques with contemporary, often personal and emotional themes. Despite limited formal education and early resistance from his family, he trained under his uncles—renowned artists I Gusti Ketut Kobot and I Gusti Made Baret.

Encouraged by Dutch artist Rudolf Bonnet to move beyond classical epics, Mokoh developed a distinctive style marked by gentle colors, clean lines, and intimate depictions of Balinese life. His bold exploration of human emotion and taboo subjects gained international acclaim, including shows at the Venice Biennale (1993) and Fukuoka Art Museum (1995). Mokoh remains a key figure in the evolution of modern Balinese art.

HANDRIO

Handrio was born in 1926 in Purwakarta and began his painting career under Basuki Abdullah. During the Japanese period, he studied with Sudjojono and Agus Djaja at Keimin Bunka Shidoso and Poetera in Jakarta. Initially, his works reflected realism and surrealism, but by the 1950s, he shifted to a semi-abstract style, breaking shapes into geometric planes. This approach set him apart from Yogyakarta painters of the time, who focused on populist themes. His semi-abstract works often analyzed still life objects and musical instruments.

By the late 1960s, these forms evolved into dynamic and complex geometric spaces. In the 1980s, Handrio's abstract style reached its peak, characterized by a masterful use of space, planes, and color. His works from this period convey rhythm, complexity, balance, and a dynamic visual harmony.

TIO TJAY

Tio Tjay was an Indonesian painter who spent much of his life in Brazil. From a young age, he showed a keen interest in Chinese painting and calligraphy, with his artistic talent recognized early on. In 1967, he immigrated to Brazil with his family, later exhibiting his work across São Paulo, Rio de Janeiro, Brasília, and Paraguay. Between 1971 and 1975, he lived in Manaus, where he formed close connections with local communities.

Tio Tjay developed a distinctive style that fused the bold, vibrant colors of Latin America with oriental aesthetics—creating works that reflected both the spirit of Indonesia and the exoticism of the Amazon.

JIM ALLEN ABEL

Born in 1975 in Luwu, Indonesia, Jimbo developed an interest in landscape while studying interior design at the Modern School of Design Yogyakarta. He later pursued photography at the Indonesia Institute of the Arts Yogyakarta between 1997 and 2005. In 2002, he co-founded Ruang MES 56, an art collective and nonprofit space focusing on experimental photo-based art, alongside his peers Angki Purbandono, Wimo Ambala Bayang, and Rangga Purbaya.

Approaching landscape not as static phenomena but as unstable and fraught terrains, Jimbo worked across photography and video through what he described as "criticism through the eye," at times inflected with humor. His practice examined the remnants of history embedded within contemporary environments, tracing how human intervention, urban infrastructure, and natural forces shape these spaces. In his 2019 solo exhibition, "Vertikal Horizon," at ArtSociates in Bandung, he presented landscapes as social events where artificial structures—building facades, factories, and tenement blocks—stage a contest of power with nature.

Throughout his career, Jimbo's work was featured in exhibitions in Indonesia and abroad, including the fifth Makassar Biennale (2023), the Chennai Photo Biennale (2016), and multiple editions of ARTJOG (2018, 2017, 2016, 2015). He was a finalist of the Second Bandung Contemporary Art Awards (2012).
