In 1956, he moved to Bali to fully dedicate himself to painting and later became an Indonesian citizen. He also taught painting at the Bandung Institute of Technology (ITB), inspiring many young artists.

Smit's paintings are known for their vibrant colors and expressive compositions, often depicting the natural beauty of his surroundings. His creative energy was relentless, reflected in his bold use of colors, patterns, and textures.

He is also widely regarded as a pioneer of pointillism in Indonesia, a technique that uses small dots of color to form an image. Throughout his career, Smit held several solo exhibitions, including at the Bandung Institute of Technology, the Honolulu East-West Center, and the Center for Strategic and International Studies in Jakarta.

His contributions to Indonesian art were recognized with the prestigious "Dharma Kusuma" art award from the Bali provincial government. In his final years, despite his failing eyesight, his mind remained sharp, and he continued to find peace in his home in Ubud, Bali. Arie Smit passed away in 2016.

Jeihan Sukmantoro

Jeihan Sukmantoro never allowed himself to be confined by a single artistic tradition. Although he studied at the Bandung Institute of Technology during a period dominated by Western artistic principles, he forged a visual language rooted in his own philosophy and deep engagement with Indonesian culture. His paintings often balance simplification with symbolism, revealing an inner world that extends beyond physical appearances. This distinctive vision established Jeihan as one of Indonesia's most recognisable modern artists.

In Music at Borobudur Temple, Jeihan turns to one of Indonesia's greatest cultural monuments. Inspired by the ancient reliefs of Borobudur, the composition presents stylised figures that seem to emerge from the temple walls, as though fragments of history have come to life. Rendered almost entirely in luminous shades of green, the painting possesses a meditative stillness that recalls the spiritual atmosphere of the sacred site. Bold black contours and expressive brushstrokes, hallmarks of Jeihan's distinctive visual language, give the figures a quiet monumentality while unifying the composition.

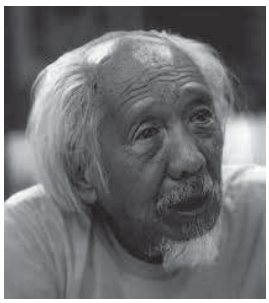
Affandi



Affandi remains one of the most foremost maestros of modern Indonesian art, renowned for his intensely expressive style and emotional approach to painting. Throughout his prolific career, he produced more than 2,000 works and exhibited internationally across India, Europe, England, and the United States.

His paintings are instantly recognizable through their energetic swirling brushstrokes and direct application of paint. This technique transforms landscapes, people, and everyday scenes into deeply personal emotional experiences.

Bridge under the Bamboo Trees (1972) exemplifies Affandi's signature expressionist style through a dense and immersive forest landscape. Towering bamboo trees twist and sway across the composition in vigorous swirling strokes. At the center, a small wooden bridge stretches across a dark stream, while hints of sunlight emerge through tangled foliage above. Dominated by earthy greens, browns, yellows, and deep shadows, the painting evokes the humid atmosphere of a tropical forest. Although the forms initially appear chaotic through Affandi's energetic brushwork, the landscape slowly reveals itself with striking clarity, balancing abstraction with recognizable natural forms.

Srihadi Soedarsono

Srihadi Soedarsono was one of Indonesia's most celebrated modern artists. Known for his expressive use of colour and movement, he transformed familiar scenes into poetic compositions that captured both their physical beauty and emotional resonance. Throughout his distinguished career, Srihadi received numerous national and international accolades while also making significant contributions to Indonesian art education.

Inspired by the graceful movements of Oleg Tambulilingan, a Balinese dance portraying the courtship of two bumblebees, Spirit of Life – Oleg Tambulilingan captures a fleeting moment suspended between performance and imagination. The dancers glide effortlessly across the canvas. Their flowing costumes dissolve into luminous brushstrokes of white, punctuated by vibrant accents of red, yellow, and black. Beside them emerges the majestic figure of Barong, the revered guardian spirit in Balinese tradition

For Srihadi, colour was never merely decorative. White suggested purity and patience, red embodied energy and courage, black conveyed strength and steadfastness, while yellow evoked hope and optimism. Together, these colours enrich the emotional depth of the composition, transforming a traditional dance into a poetic reflection on the many facets of life.

Theo Meier

Theo Meier (1908–1982) was a Swiss painter whose adventurous spirit and bold style left a lasting mark on Balinese Modernist art. A graduate of the Basel School of Art, he lived in Bali from 1934 to 1955, immersing himself in local culture and becoming both a friend and patron to Balinese artists. His extensive body of work from this period, spanning pre- and post-World War II, documents the evolution of the movement while celebrating the island's beauty and traditions.

Meier led a nomadic life that took him from Switzerland to the South Pacific, Bali, and Thailand. His paintings, infused with vibrant color and dynamic form, reflect the richness of the cultures he embraced and the vitality of the places he called home.

Lee Man Fong

Lee Man Fong spent his life moving between artistic traditions. Born in Guangzhou, raised in Singapore, and later settling in Indonesia, he became known for uniting the refinement of Chinese brush painting with the richness of Western oil techniques. His mastery earned him international recognition and led to his appointment as palace painter to President Sukarno. Many of his earlier oil paintings reveal the influence of Rembrandt, particularly in their dramatic treatment of light and broad, expressive brushwork. Yet Lee remained an artist in constant search of new ways to see and paint.

A journey through India in 1971 marked a profound turning point in Lee Man Fong's artistic practice. As he travelled through cities, temples, and historic sites, he filled his canvases with the people, monuments, and sacred places he encountered along the way. The country's ancient architecture, weathered stone sculptures, and deeply spiritual atmosphere inspired a quieter and more introspective visual language. His sweeping brushstrokes gave way to countless short, layered marks that built dense, textured surfaces while retaining a remarkable softness.

Dancing Shiva (Elephanta Cave) belongs to this remarkable body of travel paintings. Inspired by the sculpture of Shiva at the Elephanta Caves near Bombay, the deity gradually emerges from deep browns and warm ochres, as though carved from the rock itself. The painting captures not only the grandeur of the site, but also the quiet reverence Lee Man Fong experienced during his journey.

Ahmad Sadali

For Ahmad Sadali, abstraction was never an exercise in form alone. It became a language through which he expressed spirituality, contemplation, and the relationship between humanity and the divine. As one of the leading figures of the Bandung School (Mazhab Bandung), Sadali brought a quiet, meditative quality to Indonesian abstraction, balancing geometric structure with textured surfaces and luminous fields of colour.

Beyond his artistic practice, he was also a respected educator at the Bandung Institute of Technology (ITB), where he played a pivotal role in shaping generations of Indonesian artists. His enduring contribution to Indonesian art was recognised with the Anugerah Seni Indonesia in 1972.

Painted in the same year, The Shiny Brown reflects Sadali's mature visual language. A deep brown field forms the backdrop, from which layered abstract forms quietly emerge. Textured passages of gold, pale turquoise, and ivory are enriched with delicate green accents and thick impasto. The composition evokes the weathered beauty of ancient walls or sacred architecture, where every layer seems to preserve the passage of time. Rather than depicting a recognisable scene, Sadali invites viewers into a contemplative space where texture, light, and geometry become quiet expressions of spiritual reflection.

INDONESIAN MODERN ART

Adrien-Jean Le Mayeur De Merpres

Adrien-Jean Le Mayeur de Merprès was a Belgian Impressionist painter whose artistic journey eventually led him to Bali, where he found the setting that would define his later work. After briefly studying engineering and serving as a wartime painter and photographer during the First World War, he spent the 1920s travelling across Europe, Africa, and Asia in search of new landscapes and light. He arrived in Bali in 1932 and was captivated by its tropical scenery, culture, and everyday life.

There, he met Ni Pollok, a young Legong dancer who became his wife and lifelong muse. From then on, Balinese women, gardens, and beaches became recurring subjects, expressed through his characteristic interest in light, colour, and atmosphere.

These qualities come together in Women by the Lotus Pond. Four women gather around a pond filled with lotus leaves and delicate white flowers. One bends towards the water while the others sit nearby, creating the feeling of a quiet afternoon shared among friends. Their colourful sarongs enliven the lush green surroundings, while Le Mayeur's loose, lively brushstrokes bring the garden to life.

More than simply depicting Bali, the painting captures the warmth and beauty of a moment, revealing the distinctive qualities that made Le Mayeur's Balinese works so enduring.

"Dancer II"

Throughout his career, Srihadi Soedarsono explored the relationship between movement, memory, and the human spirit. Although well-known for his landscapes, dancers, and depictions of Indonesian culture, he continually sought new ways to distil these subjects into increasingly simplified forms.

Painted in 1980, Dancer II reflects Srihadi's enduring fascination with movement through abstraction. A warm brown field envelops the canvas, from which a sequence of geometric forms gradually emerges. They hint at the silhouettes of dancers, yet remain deliberately ambiguous, allowing rhythm to take precedence over representation. Delicate layers of ochre, rose, ivory, and pale blue create a gentle luminosity, while the softened forms appear to sway in quiet unison.

"Cows"

Lee Man Fong possessed a rare ability to bridge artistic traditions. Drawing from both Chinese ink painting and Western oil painting, he developed a highly personal visual language. By the early 1970s, he was working prolifically on hardboards, creating hundreds of paintings that beautifully balanced the poetic atmosphere of Chinese art with the naturalism of the Western tradition. Animals became recurring subjects during this period.

There is no sense of urgency in Cows. The animals graze, rest, and move at their own gentle rhythm, enveloped by a landscape softened with mist and warm earth tones. Gnarled trees rise quietly in the background, while the absence of a defined horizon recalls the poetic atmosphere of classical Chinese painting. Yet the cattle themselves are rendered with remarkable naturalism. Their forms are carefully modelled through light and shadow in the Western tradition.

Arifien Neif

Arifien Neif was born in Surabaya in 1955. A self-taught artist, he became widely recognized for his slightly naïve style and distinctive figurative compositions.

Before pursuing art full-time, Neif worked as a mason. His artistic talent, however, led him to assist with interior design projects for a friend. This experience inspired him to dedicate himself fully to painting in 1980.

Neif's paintings are deeply influenced by everyday life, transforming ordinary moments into imaginative and romantic compositions. His unique style blends impressionism and romanticism, elevating simple scenes with a dreamlike, slightly surreal quality.

He held solo exhibitions at Bin House, Jakarta (1989), and the Lorin & Kristy Art Gallery, Singapore (1995). Since 1989, he has participated in various solo and group exhibitions, including Tresor International Fine Art Exhibition in Singapore (1993 & 1994), Yayasan Seni Rupa Indonesia / Bradbury International Fine Art Exhibition in Jakarta (1994), and Gallery Santi (1995–1997).

“Fruits Sellers”

Hendra Gunawan's Fruit Sellers feels like a moment caught in the middle of a lively day. Two women sit among baskets of tropical fruit, their conversation unfolding quietly as they tend to their goods. One leans forward while the other turns towards her, surrounded by bananas, fruit, and broad green leaves. Their colourful clothing, rich with batik patterns, adds another layer of movement to the scene. Beyond the market, the world seems to drift into a dream. Twisting trees, distant figures, and a soft horizon create a landscape that feels both familiar and imagined. Hendra's bold colours move freely across the canvas, from deep purple and fiery red to turquoise, green, and warm yellow. With his expressive brushwork, an ordinary scene of women selling fruit becomes a lively glimpse of Indonesian life, full of colour, conversation, and quiet poetry.

I Gusti Ayu Kadek Murniasih

For I Gusti Ayu Kadek Murniasih, painting was more than a creative practice. It was a way of reclaiming her voice, her body, and her sense of self. Drawing from deeply personal experiences, she created an intensely original visual language filled with distorted bodies, fantastical creatures, and dreamlike forms.

Through these unconventional figures, Murniasih explored womanhood, desire, vulnerability, and the complexities of living in a body shaped by both personal memory and social expectations. What was once considered provocative has since become one of the most significant contributions to Indonesian contemporary art, culminating in her becoming the first Balinese artist whose work entered the collection of Tate Modern.

In I Am Double-Bodied (Aku Berbadan Ganda), Murniasih imagines the body not as something fixed, but as something fluid and ever-changing. A solitary pink figure, with an elongated body, oversized limbs, and a blooming white flower in place of hair, emerges against a warm orange ground. Its surreal form evokes both fragility and resilience, while the title hints at the coexistence of multiple selves within a single body. Rather than seeking to explain identity, Murniasih embraces its contradictions.

Emiria Soenassa

Emiria Soenassa, often regarded as Indonesia's first female modern artist, lived an adventurous and unconventional life that defied the expectations of her time. Born in Tanawangko, North Sulawesi, to the royal family of Tidore, Emiria initially trained as a nurse and later managed a plantation before devoting herself to painting. A free spirit, she traveled widely across Europe, studying ballet in Brussels, Amsterdam, and Vienna, before returning to Indonesia, where her artistic journey began in earnest. Her work was first recognized in the late 1930s when she joined PERSAGI (Persatuan Ahli Gambar Indonesia), Indonesia's pioneering modern art movement founded by S. Sudjojono and Agus Djaja.

Emiria's paintings are expressive, spontaneous, and deeply personal, often depicting scenes of everyday life, ethnic traditions, and strong, independent women. Rejecting idealized beauty and academic rules, she painted with raw emotion and bold color, presenting subjects from across the archipelago such as Dayak brides, Balinese dancers, and Papuan landscapes. S. Sudjojono once called her a "genius" for her courage to paint as she lived, freely and honestly. Emiria Soenassa passed away in Tanjung Karang, Lampung, in 1964, leaving behind a legacy that continues to inspire generations of Indonesian women artists.

“Boat”

Srihadi Soedarsono's artistic practice was remarkably diverse, moving effortlessly between landscapes, dancers, still lifes, and abstract compositions while maintaining a visual language that was unmistakably his own.

Boat (1989) reveals another facet of his artistic vision. A vast expanse of deep blue sky stretches above a quiet shoreline, where a narrow band of pale blue sea meets a luminous beach of textured white sand. A row of traditional boats rests gently along the coast. The work demonstrates Srihadi's masterful command of colour, using bold contrasts and restrained tones to evoke a profound sense of calm.

I Nyoman Masriadi

I Nyoman Masriadi has long filled his canvases with larger-than-life figures whose oversized muscles and exaggerated expressions are as amusing as they are revealing. Behind the comic-book aesthetics lies one of the sharpest voices in contemporary Indonesian art, using humour to question power, ambition, and the roles people choose to perform.

Since emerging in Yogyakarta in the late 1990s, Masriadi has developed a distinctive visual language that has earned him international recognition while remaining firmly rooted in everyday life.

In Hero Audition, the towering figure wears a bright red cape, pink briefs, and carries a superhero's shield with complete confidence. Yet the speech bubble, "angkat kakinya!" ("lift your leg!"), turns the heroic pose into an amusing audition rather than a triumphant moment. Handwritten notes and playful sketches fill the background, giving the painting the feeling of an artist's sketchbook where ideas are still taking shape. With his signature wit and humour, Masriadi reminds us that heroism is often less about extraordinary powers and more about the roles we choose to perform.

Agus Suwage

Agus Suwage has long explored the complexities of identity through images that are at once deeply personal and universally resonant. Since emerging as one of Indonesia's leading contemporary artists in the 1990s, he has drawn upon philosophy, popular culture, politics, and art history to construct layered visual narratives. Rather than treating his works as fixed statements, Suwage often returns to earlier ideas, reinterpreting familiar imagery through new media and perspectives, allowing the past to evolve into something entirely different.

In I Lick Therefore I Am (2025), Suwage presents a luminous X-ray-like skull extending towards a slender white cylinder, rendered as though viewed through a photographic negative. The translucent anatomy contrasts sharply with the dark background, while bold gestures of blue, green, orange, and crimson punctuate the composition with bursts of energy. The interplay between scientific precision and expressive brushwork creates a striking visual tension, inviting viewers to look beneath the surface of both the image and themselves.

“ Flower”

From the darkness, the flowers slowly reveal themselves. Crimson blossoms, pale roses, and a radiant yellow bloom emerge from a deep black vase, their colours glowing against the shadowed background. The composition feels less like a carefully arranged still life than a fleeting moment, as if the bouquet has been caught in a beam of light before fading back into the dark. Sudjojono's expressive brushwork gives each flower a remarkable vitality, reflecting his lifelong belief that a painting should capture not merely outward appearances but the jiwa ketok, or visible soul, of its subject

"The Estuary (L'Estuaire)"

Long before Bali became the defining inspiration of his career, Adrien-Jean Le Mayeur de Merprès found endless fascination in the waterways of Europe, particularly those of his native Belgium. Trained in the Impressionist tradition, he was captivated by the changing effects of light upon rivers, harbours, and coastal towns, where reflections transformed ordinary scenes into luminous compositions.

The Estuary (L'Estuaire) captures the quiet threshold where a river meets the sea. Boats rest gently along the waterfront as calm waters mirror the surrounding buildings and pale sky, creating a scene filled with stillness and light. Rather than recording the landscape with topographical precision, Le Mayeur evokes its atmosphere through loose, expressive brushstrokes and delicate colour harmonies.

Hendra Gunawan

For Hendra Gunawan, Indonesia was an endless source of inspiration. Whether portraying market vendors, fishermen, dancers, or scenes from classical epics, he approached every subject with the same vitality and affection. His paintings are instantly recognisable for their elongated figures, rhythmic compositions, and luminous colours, qualities that have secured his place among the leading figures of Indonesian modern art.

Today, his works are held in major museum collections, including the Neka Art Museum and the Singapore Art Museum. His international significance was further affirmed through his inclusion in the Foreigners Everywhere exhibition at the 60th Venice Biennale in 2024.

Measuring an impressive 200 x 120 cm, Hanuman and Goddess Sita draws inspiration from the Ramayana, one of the most celebrated epics in Hindu literature. The story follows Sita, the devoted wife of Prince Rama, who is abducted by the demon king Ravana. Hanuman, the loyal monkey warrior, embarks on a perilous journey to find and protect her, becoming a symbol of unwavering courage and devotion.

Hendra reimagines these legendary figures through his unique visual language. Hanuman, traditionally portrayed in white, is rendered in a vibrant spectrum of colours, while Sita is equally radiant, her complexion composed of layered hues. She is adorned with an elaborate headdress, a vivid red blouse, and a richly patterned wrap skirt. Rather than illustrating the Ramayana with strict fidelity, Hendra transforms the epic into a dreamlike world that invites the viewer's imagination to wander.

Sunaryo

Sunaryo has spent decades exploring the many possibilities of artistic expression. Trained as a sculptor at the Bandung Institute of Technology before continuing his studies in Italy, he later expanded his practice to include painting, printmaking, installation, and monumental public art. His sensitivity to form, material, and space established him as one of Indonesia's leading artists. Beyond his own practice, he also founded Selasar Sunaryo Art Space, an institution that has played a vital role in the development of contemporary art in Indonesia.

In Dancing Preparation, Sunaryo captures the quiet anticipation before the performance begins. One dancer sits in contemplation while the other stands beside her, holding a fan as though rehearsing the next graceful movement. Their elaborate ceremonial attire and intricate headdresses lend the scene a sense of splendour and refinement. Fiery reds illuminate the heart of the composition, while deep blacks and luminous blues envelop the figures in dramatic contrast. The colours evoke opposing elements of fire and water, yet remain perfectly balanced, creating a powerful visual harmony.

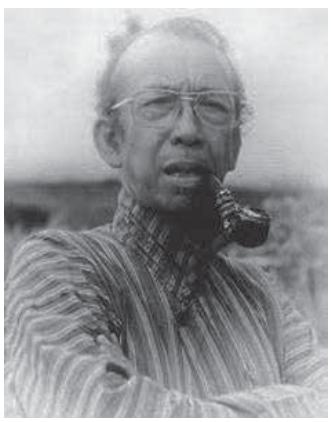
S. Sudjojono



S. Sudjojono is widely regarded as the father of Indonesian modern art. Beyond his achievements as a painter, he was also an influential art critic, writer, and co-founder of PERSAGI (Persatuan Ahli Gambar Indonesia) and Seniman Indonesia Muda. Both organisations played a pivotal role in shaping a distinctly Indonesian artistic identity. Rejecting romanticised depictions of the Indies, Sudjojono encouraged artists to paint with honesty and emotional conviction. He described this philosophy as jiwa ketok, or the visible soul.

In Orchid and an Angel, Sudjojono draws viewers into a deeply personal world. A vase of blooming orchids emerges against a luminous spectrum of greens, yellows, and deep reds, while an ethereal angel hovers quietly in the upper left. In the opposite corner, a handwritten verse lends the painting the intimacy of a personal diary, reflecting on the fragile balance between beauty and hardship. Together, the flowers, the angel, and the poem transcend the conventions of a floral still life. Instead, they become a poetic meditation on hope, faith, and the resilience of the human spirit.

“Three Women - Dialogue on the Beach”

Throughout his career, Srihadi Soedarsono returned repeatedly to the figure of the Indonesian woman, portraying her with quiet dignity and timeless elegance. In Three Women – Dialogue on the Beach, three women stand gracefully along the shoreline, dressed in white kebaya blouses and vibrant wrap skirts in shades of yellow and lavender. Behind them, the brilliant blue sea meets the warm brown shore, creating a composition of striking simplicity.

Srihadi's masterful command of colour allows each hue to resonate in perfect harmony, lending the painting both vibrancy and serenity. The elongated figures and their gentle gestures evoke a quiet moment of conversation, transforming an everyday scene into a poetic reflection on femininity, companionship, and the enduring beauty of the Indonesian coast.

Awang Damit

Born in Kuala Penyu, Sabah, in 1956, Awang Damit Ahmad is one of Malaysia's leading abstract expressionist painters. He graduated in Fine Arts from Universiti Teknologi MARA (UiTM) in 1983 before pursuing a Master of Fine Arts at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., graduating in 1989. He later returned to UiTM, where he served as a lecturer and held several important positions, including Curator of the Art Gallery and Head of the Fine Arts Department. He was appointed Associate Professor in 2000. His artistic practice developed alongside his academic career, resulting in acclaimed bodies of work including Marista (2002), Iraga (2011), and the later Paya Ramahe series.

Awang Damit belongs to the second generation of Malaysian abstract expressionists, who expanded the possibilities of landscape and nature through a more personal visual language. In his paintings, recognisable forms are reduced to their essential elements, with colour, line, and gesture taking centre stage. Earthy tones and broad, confident brushstrokes create abstract spaces that often combine geometric forms with expressive lines. His work has been exhibited extensively in Malaysia and internationally, including in China, Taiwan, Japan, and London. Notable exhibitions include Intipati Budaya – Satu Sintesis at the National Art Gallery, Kuala Lumpur, and Bentuk dan Makna at the UiTM Gallery.

“Self Portrait”

Throughout his career, Affandi returned repeatedly to the subject of himself, using self-portraiture as a means of recording not only his appearance but also his emotional and psychological state. Painted in 1971, Self Portrait exemplifies the expressive power of his mature style.

His face emerges through vigorous ribbons of brown, black, and golden ochre, set against a warm ivory ground. Thick impasto and sweeping gestures dissolve the boundary between portrait and abstraction. Executed using his signature technique of squeezing paint directly from the tube and manipulating it with his hands, the work demonstrates a mastery that is uniquely Affandi's.

Abdul Aziz

At first glance, the figures in Couple appear almost three-dimensional. Framed within painted wooden niches, they seem to emerge beyond the surface of the canvas, their bodies projecting into the viewer's space. By painting a frame within the frame itself, Abdul Aziz creates a remarkable trompe l'oeil effect, a Renaissance technique that transforms a flat surface into a convincing illusion of depth. His command of anatomy, developed through his studies at ASRI and later at the Accademia di Belle Arti in Rome, allowed him to render the human figure with extraordinary realism.

After returning to Indonesia in 1965, Aziz settled in Ubud, where Balinese life became a lasting source of inspiration. In Couple, a man and woman dressed in traditional Balinese attire stand in quiet proximity, their subtle gestures revealing an intimate dialogue. The woman gently cradles a small flower while meeting the viewer's gaze, as the man turns towards her with quiet affection. More than a portrait of two figures, the painting becomes a memorable treatise on love and romance, something that continues to resonate across cultures and generations.

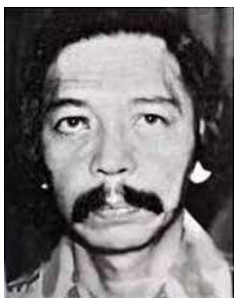
But Muchtar



But Muchtar, born Broertje Muchtar Soebandi in Bandung, was one of Indonesia's prominent modern artists and educators. The seventh of eleven children from a Banten family, he belonged to the first generation of fine arts graduates from Institut Teknologi Bandung (ITB) and later continued his studies in the United States. In 1963, he returned to Indonesia to help prepare the establishment of the Department of Sculpture at ITB alongside Rita Widagdo and G. Sidharta. After the Sculpture Studio officially opened in 1964, he built a long academic career, serving in key leadership roles, including as Rector of ISI Yogyakarta for two terms from 1984 to 1992.

Known as both a sculptor and painter, But developed a strong modernist foundation. Under the guidance of Ries Mulder, his paintings were often associated with the "Bandung School," characterized by formal exploration, structural clarity, and engagement with modern art principles.

Ang Ah Tee

Ang Ah Tee is a veteran Singaporean artist known for his bold and expressive landscapes. He studied at the Nanyang Academy of Fine Arts under influential artists Cheong Soo Pieng and Georgette Chen before becoming a full-time artist in 1977. His early works often focused on familiar Singaporean landmarks, particularly the Singapore River.

As his practice developed, he travelled widely and began drawing inspiration from cityscapes, towns, and villages around the world. Around 1978, he turned to acrylic, attracted by its ability to combine the transparency of watercolour with the texture of oil paint.

By the early 1990s, Ang had moved towards a more semi-abstract approach, using vivid colours and energetic brushwork to capture the character of a place rather than simply reproduce it. Over the course of his career, he produced more than 2,000 paintings. His contribution to Singapore's art scene was recognised with the Cultural Medallion in 2009, the country's highest honour for the arts.

Tran Luu Hau

Born in Ninh Binh, Vietnam, in 1928, Tran Luu Hau was one of the country's pioneering expressionist painters. He was among the first 22 graduates of the Vietnam Fine Arts College and later studied at the Surikov Fine Arts Academy in Moscow, specialising in stage design.

Although trained in the Soviet academic tradition, Hau gradually developed a highly personal approach to painting. His favourite subjects included landscapes, still lifes, flowers, and nudes, which he transformed through bold colours and expressive brushwork. He became particularly recognised for his use of colour in abstract and semi-abstract works.

Hau remained remarkably active throughout his long career. He participated in numerous national exhibitions and received major honours, including a Silver Medal in 1980 and a Gold Medal in 1985. His paintings are now held in collections and museums in Vietnam, Russia, Poland, and beyond. Even in his later years, he continued to travel and paint, often working on large canvases with broad, energetic strokes. His enduring commitment to painting helped establish him as an important figure in Vietnamese modern art and an inspiration for later generations of artists.

Eko Nugroho

Growing up in Yogyakarta, Eko Nugroho came of age during a period of major change in Indonesia. He was 20 when the New Order regime fell in 1998, opening a new space for artistic and political expression. His practice grew from Yogyakarta's vibrant street-art and community scene, combining Indonesian traditions such as batik and wayang with comics, graffiti, and popular culture. After studying at the High School for Fine Arts and the Indonesian Art Institute in Yogyakarta, he developed a multidisciplinary practice spanning painting, drawing, embroidery, murals, sculpture, installation, and video.

His colourful worlds are populated by strange hybrid figures, aliens, and imaginary creatures. Playful at first glance, these characters often carry deeper questions about democracy, religion, urban life, and the environment. Eko Nugroho's use of humour and absurdity allows serious subjects to feel accessible while leaving room for interpretation. His work has been exhibited internationally at institutions including the Musée d'Art Moderne de la Ville de Paris, Asia Society Museum in New York, and the Singapore Art Museum, establishing him as one of Indonesia's most active voices in contemporary art.

Alit Sembodo

Alit Sembodo had a short but striking career in Indonesian contemporary art. His paintings often draw viewers into worlds of chaos, destruction, and exaggerated human behaviour, filled with muscular figures, dramatic action, and unexpected humour. He developed a bold and imaginative visual language that earned recognition through awards such as the Pratisara Affandi Adhi Karya, Indonesian Art Awards, and Philip Morris ASEAN Art Awards. Although he passed away in 2003 at only 30, his relatively small body of work continues to attract attention for its distinctive energy and rarity.

The story behind Sumo vs Umit Davala begins with a real sporting moment. On 18 June 2002, Turkey faced co-hosts Japan in the Round of 16 of the FIFA World Cup at Miyagi Stadium. In the 12th minute, Umit Davala scored the only goal of the match with a header following a corner kick. Turkey went on to defeat Senegal in the quarter-finals and eventually finished third, earning the bronze medal.

Alit takes this moment and sends it somewhere completely unexpected. Davala appears high above the scene, riding a winged horse beneath a bright blue sky, while a huge crowd of sumo wrestlers crashes together below, surrounded by flying footballs. Red goalposts, colourful figures, and tangled bodies make the match feel as though it has exploded into one giant spectacle. Rather than simply recording the event, Alit interprets it through his own imagination, transforming a real moment in football history into a fantastical scene filled with movement, humour, and chaos.

Hasan

Hasan was born in Sumenep, Madura, and currently resides in Klaten, Central Java. He is an artist who earned both his undergraduate and master's degrees from the Indonesian Institute of the Arts in Surakarta. With over two decades of experience in the art world, he has established himself as a prominent figure in contemporary Indonesian art.

Throughout his career, Hasan has participated in numerous prestigious exhibitions, including the KONTRAKSI Nusantara Fine Arts Exhibition at the National Gallery of Indonesia and Sepayung Indonesia at Keraton Mangkunegaran Surakarta. His achievements include being selected for the Grand Art Exhibition organized by the Indonesian Ministry of Education and Culture and receiving a nomination for the BAZAAR Art Award in 2010.

For Hasan, painting is not only a form of artistic expression but also a medium to convey his feelings about various issues affecting the world, both directly and through different media. He addresses profound and personal issues, translating them into imaginative and symbolic visual forms such as symbols of monsters, fire, tree trunks, stones, heads, eyes, mountains, and human figures. Collectively, his artworks create a contemporary surrealistic atmosphere.

Abdullah Soeriosoebroto

Abdullah Soeriosoebroto is regarded as one of Indonesia's first modern painters of the 20th century. The son of nationalist figure Wahidin Sudirohusodo and father of painters S. Abdullah and Basoeki Abdullah, he was initially sent to the Netherlands to study medicine but chose to pursue painting instead. He studied at a preparatory drawing school in Leiden and continued at the Academy of Fine Arts in Amsterdam. Upon returning to Indonesia, he worked briefly in Yogyakarta Palace and later in a soap factory in West Java before fully dedicating himself to art.

Renowned for his serene landscapes, particularly of West Java, Abdullah became associated with the Mooi Indie style in the late 1930s. His paintings often captured the beauty, tranquility, and lushness of rural scenes around Bandung. He spent much of his career there before moving to Yogyakarta, where he lived until his death in 1941.
