MESSAGE FROM THE CEO OF SIDHARTA AUCTIONEER

Dear Art Lovers & Collectors,

Welcome to Sidharta Auctioneer's Asian Modern Fine Art Auction at Jakarta Art Hub.

This season, we are pleased to present 102 lots of modern and contemporary Indonesian art, bringing together a wide range of artistic approaches and perspectives. The selection brings together figurative, abstract, landscape, and genre works from artists across multiple generations.

Affandi, Arie Smit, Sudarso, Antonio Blanco, Basoeki Abdullah, Jeiham Sukmantoro, Arifin Neif, Han Snel, Rusli, Srihadi Soedarsono, Ries Mulder, Bagong Kussudiardja, Haris Purnomo, Edi Sunaryo, Edhi Sunarso, Soedibio, Catur Binaprasetyo, Barli Sasmitawinata, S Toyo, Otto Djaya, Krijono, Nyoman Gunarsa, Wen Peor, Gung Man, Wayan Sukadana, I Wayan Munut, I Made Wianta, Nyoman Nuarta, Siau Tik Kwie, Tio Tjay, Amrus Natalsya, Abdul Djalil Pirous, Handrio, Zaini, Nashar, Catur, Darbotz, Tisna Sanjaya, Rieswandi and Dipo Andy.

Beyond paintings, the catalogue includes a variety of objects and collectibles that reflect the richness of material culture. Including a 20th century Dutch colonial writing table with a marble top, a 20th century gilt decorated wall mirror with a stand, a 20th century grandfather thermometer clock from West Germany, a 19th century Chinese stoneware water jar decorated with yellow ochre panels, and more.

Whether you are building a collection or making your first acquisition, we encourage you to take the time to explore the works featured in this auction. We hope the collection offers both familiar favorites and new discoveries.

Join us for the public live and online auction on Saturday, June 27th, 2026, and visit our preview exhibition at our gallery.

Happy bidding!

ASIAN MODERN FINE ART & COLLECTIBLES AUCTION

Auction Notification

SIDHartA Auctioneer is an officially registered auction house under the supervision of Indonesia's Direktorat Jenderal Kekayaan Negara. An Auction Registrar, Jimmy Novianto Suryadi, S.H, is present to ensure the auction runs properly, reports are submitted to the government, and payments from winning bidders are completed on time.

This is a Continental Style auction, where bidders compete until the highest bid is reached. A 22% buyer's premium is added to the hammer price and paid by the winning bidder.

Lots are presented in numerical order. Auctions typically move at a rate of 50 lots per hour, so for example, 102 lots should take about 2 hours.

Each lot includes an estimate, which reflects the current market value. Bids within that range may win the lot, though final prices can be lower (at reserve price) or higher depending on demand.

Most lots have a reserve price, the minimum at which the seller agrees to sell. Until this reserve is met, the auctioneer may place bids on the seller's behalf ("with me"). A lot is considered sold only after the reserve is met and the auctioneer strikes the hammer.

We accept Written, Phone, and Online Bids. Phone operators will bid on behalf of remote bidders. Absentee (written) bids are pre-registered and executed by the auctioneer up to the specified limit. Online bids are processed automatically. Floor bidders compete with all of these.

All lots are sold as is. Condition reports are available upon request. Any corrections to catalog descriptions will be posted in Sale Room Notices.

We do not issue certificates unless explicitly stated in the catalog.

Invoices, including the 22% buyer's premium added to the hammer price, will be issued by Tuesday or Wednesday. Please be informed that there is a buyer's premium of 22% on top of the hammer price applied to the winning bidder. Payment is due within three days via bank transfer or credit card. Lots may be picked up with proof of payment or delivered at an additional cost.

Thank you and happy bidding!

Catur Binaprasetyo creates paintings where circuitry becomes landscape. In one of his most striking works, the intricate geometry of a motherboard transforms into the pulse of a cosmopolitan city—its copper pathways resembling illuminated highways, data ports echoing crowded intersections, and layered components rising like towers in a futuristic skyline. Through this fusion of technology and urban life, Binaprasetyo suggests that modern cities function much like living machines: interconnected, restless, and constantly transmitting human energy. His work blurs the boundary between electronic systems and civilization itself, inviting viewers to see the hidden architecture that powers contemporary existence

The movie talks about Frank Abagnale Jr., a cunning con-artist in the '60s running away from the authorities. However, this painting is Shawnee's comedic depiction of how time constantly tries to catch her. Time, as depicted by the figure on the right, seems taken aback by how brazen she is. She often paints using abstraction, with minimal details but rich in personal reflection.

Barli Sasmitawinata was trained as a realist painter. He often depicts images of everyday life in Indonesia. As a painter he has incorporated abstract elements into his paintings, even so, it is rare that he paints a true abstract work.

In this painting he uses bold colors, pink, green, yellow, and purple. Colors that are direct complementaries of each other. Here, he paints an octopus, its big round head and 8 tentacles. This painting was possibly an experimentation piece by him in trying his hand in abstraction.

Octopus | 1972 | oil on canvas | 100 x 90 cm
 signed and dated (lower right): "Barli 1972"
 Rp. 20 - 30.000.000 | USD 1,113 - 1,670

Barli sketches a woman, seated with her hands on her lap, her posture relaxed as if she was resting. With the woman as the sole subject matter, Barli invites the viewer to pay attention to the details he has incorporated. Here we see signs of age, starting from the white accents in her black hair, lines on her forehead and around her eyes as they gaze into the distance, deep in thought, and her hands on her lap also sketched with accentuated wrinkles.

She wears her kain and kebaya, clothing fairly common amongst Indonesian women. Barli's pieces are always exciting, as an artist possessing the skills to work in different genres, this sketch shows Barli's art practice was always rooted in realism.

Bancakan by Barli Sasmitawinata

Lot #613

Bancakan is a popular tradition amongst Javanese people, where a massive feast is usually prepared for celebrations such as birthdays. Families will invite neighbors and friends to participate in prayers for a better year followed by all the guests dining together. A Bancakan spread would include rice, eggs, vegetables, and many others. The variety of dishes are served on top of banana leaves for everyone to eat communally.

Barli painted four figures in hijabs with the Bancakan spread in their midst. The walls are painted in pastels and their clothes all in bright colors inviting the viewers to celebrate along with the subjects. Even if this is painted with minimal details, there are enough details for the viewer to make out a story of this work. As a viewer, we are reminded to feel the atmosphere inside this painting, the warmth and togetherness shared amongst the four figures. The motif incorporated on the women's garbs is not necessarily a realistic depiction of the garb that they are wearing but intended as an expression of festivity that emanates from the Bancakan. Bancakan is usually a time for friends and family to catch up amongst their busy schedules. He painted two ladies on the left chitchatting, the lady in blue about to put food on her plate, and the lady on the right seated beside the spread.

Barli continuously explores different genres and media throughout his career and is known to make works revolving around Indonesian everyday life.

Dalang by Gunarsa, Nyoman

Lot #624

In Dalang, Nyoman Gunarsa draws upon the rich traditions of Balinese performance and wayang theatre, depicting a dramatic encounter between a stylized puppet-like figure and a female figure locked in close interaction. Rather than presenting a fixed narrative, the composition unfolds through sweeping brushstrokes, fragmented forms, and bursts of color that create a sense of movement and theatrical energy. The figures seem to emerge from and dissolve back into the surrounding field of marks, blurring the distinction between character and space. As in much of Gunarsa's work, gesture and rhythm take precedence over precise representation, transforming cultural motifs into a highly expressive visual language. Painted in 2015, during the final years of the artist's life, the work retains the vitality, spontaneity, and deep engagement with Balinese storytelling that defined his mature practice.

Nyoman Nuarta, renowned for his monumental sculptures and expressive metalwork, reveals a quieter psychological depth in Insecure. The sculpture portrays a thin hound gazing upward, its fragile posture suspended between longing and uncertainty. Through the animal's lean form and searching expression, Nuarta captures a deeply human emotion—the vulnerability that hides beneath survival and instinct. The work transforms the hound into a mirror of insecurity itself: alert, exposed, and silently seeking reassurance in a world larger than itself

Siauw Tik Kwie seems to love painting animals, and he did so spontaneously, without the need to frame his subject matter in a sophisticated composition. Here, he painted a clowder of cats loosely huddling together. The mother cat at the centre of the frame is surrounded by her kitten.

A kitten on the left side of the mother, hiding behind a wall, as if ready to give its sibling a scare. There are two kittens right by the mother cat, one playing with her tail and the other sleeps, as cats do after being fed. The clowder look like they are stray cats, sleeping on the ground in front of a doorstep.

This painting depicts a working horse eating grass before starting work. It has an empty cart strapped to its back. Surrounding the horse, he painted a village with a couple of houses and other animals such as a chicken and a duck. He makes the horse the focal point of the painting, depicting his usual subject of everyday life and painting his subjects as they are. Siauw Tik Kwie is a realist painter, painting his subjects as the way he sees them. In this painting, his composition is simple, a main subject surrounded by a scene.

In Fishing, Tio Tjay presents a quiet waterscape defined by simplicity, balance, and contemplation. A lone fisherman sits in a narrow boat gliding across calm blue waters, positioned beside dense reeds that occupy the edge of the composition. Above, a flock of birds moves across the horizon, their rhythmic formation echoing the gentle movement of the water below. Dominated by luminous shades of blue, the painting creates an atmosphere of serenity and stillness, while the sparse arrangement of elements emphasizes the solitude of the figure within the vast landscape. Tio Tjay's careful control of space and color transforms an everyday scene into a meditation on harmony between human activity and the natural world. Painted in 1993, the work reflects the artist's ability to evoke tranquility through restraint, clarity, and a deeply poetic sense of place.

In Landscape in Bali, Arie Smit transforms the Balinese countryside into a vibrant tapestry of color and movement. Rolling hills, lush vegetation, and winding pathways unfold across the canvas through bold outlines and expressive brushwork, creating a landscape that feels both observed and imagined. Small human figures appear within the scene, reinforcing the connection between daily life and the natural environment, while a rustic stone gateway anchors the composition in Balinese culture. Smit's distinctive palette—rich with luminous greens, blues, purples, and warm oranges—elevates the landscape beyond straightforward representation, infusing it with a sense of joy and vitality. Painted in 2004, the work reflects the artist's enduring fascination with Bali's scenery and his ability to translate its atmosphere into a highly personal and celebratory visual language.

The Accusing Finger by Blanco, Antonio

In The Accusing Finger, Antonio Blanco presents a striking interaction between two figures. On the left, a hunched figure points emphatically toward the silhouette of a woman, whose elongated form occupies the center of the composition. The scene is rendered with loose, economical strokes that allow the figures to emerge gradually from the largely open surface. Blanco's light handling of line and color gives the work a sense of immediacy, while the sparse composition directs attention to the relationship between the two figures and the tension implied by their gestures. Rather than defining every detail, the artist relies on suggestion, allowing expression and body language to carry the narrative. The work demonstrates Blanco's confidence as a draftsman and his ability to create a compelling image through minimal means, transforming a simple encounter into a study of human interaction and emotion.

In Arc de Triomphe, Paris, Srihadi Soedarsono captures one of the French capital's most recognizable landmarks through a remarkably restrained and economical composition. The monument is defined by delicate, almost sketch-like outlines that establish its architectural form without excessive detail, while subtle washes of color suggest light, atmosphere, and activity within the surrounding urban landscape. Large areas of untouched paper play an important role in the composition, creating a sense of openness and allowing the structure to emerge naturally from the surface. Rather than focusing on precise architectural description, Srihadi emphasizes the experience of place through suggestion and observation, using minimal marks to convey both scale and presence. The work reflects the artist's mastery of watercolor and his ability to balance structure with spontaneity, transforming a familiar monument into a lyrical study of light, space, and atmosphere.

In Boats, Ries Mulder transforms a harbor scene into a carefully structured arrangement of intersecting lines, geometric forms, and shifting planes of color. Sailboats and their reflections are rendered through simplified shapes and angular divisions, creating a composition that emphasizes rhythm and balance rather than strict realism. Dominated by cool greens, blues, and muted earth tones, the painting captures the changing effects of light across the water, where reflections fragment and merge with the surrounding forms. The hard outlines and clearly separated areas of color lend the work a geometric quality, yet the composition remains firmly rooted in observation, reflecting Mulder's interpretation of the visual complexity of boats, masts, and water within a marina setting. Painted in 1955, the work demonstrates the artist's ability to distill a familiar subject into an ordered and harmonious composition, balancing structure, atmosphere, and the interplay of light and reflection.

Bagong Kussudiardjo, a revered choreographer and a painter, often paints dance performances. He paints two dancers, both appearing to be Balinese Legong dancers. He has choreographed over two-hundred Indonesian dances spanning across different traditional dance genres. His passion for movement is clearly conveyed in this painting. Balinese dances are angular and sharp, as depicted in the way the dancers are posed in this painting. They both seem to dance almost in synchronicity with each other.

The dancers are made to be the focal point of this painting. They are painted in bold colors to accentuate their poses among the playful pastel brushstrokes in the background.

Putriku Asti by Soedibio

Soedibio painted his daughter, Asti, as the sole subject on the canvas surrounded by bright yellow buds with leaves and two houses on her right. The bright colors emanate her childlike innocence. By painting the houses, he possibly connects Asti as a part of his family.

Years later, in 1980, he made another version of this portrait on a larger canvas, currently a collection of the Indonesian National Gallery. Here, his daughter appears to look a few years older, kneeling in front of a piece of paper. In this painting, she is surrounded by taller trees and lush greenery, a symbol of her growth. On the right side of the background, he painted similar houses to the one in the earlier painting.

The 1973 painting seems to be a predecessor of the 1980 painting, now a collection of the Indonesian National Gallery.

Nyanyian Hidup by Soedibio

Soedibio is well known for his surrealistic style in his paintings. Here, he depicts two figures, one in front holding a conductor's baton, and behind him a larger figure resembling a wayang character holding a violin. At the bottom of the two figures, two hands appear holding a musical instrument.

The background depicts a city landscape in the top left corner and a village at the right side. The figure at the centre holds a conductor's baton surrounded by green landscape and gazing far away to the village, donned in clothes in similar tones used to compose the scene on the right. They look like they are reflecting on the village upbringing that had shaped them in their quest as they move to the city to pursue their dreams in music.

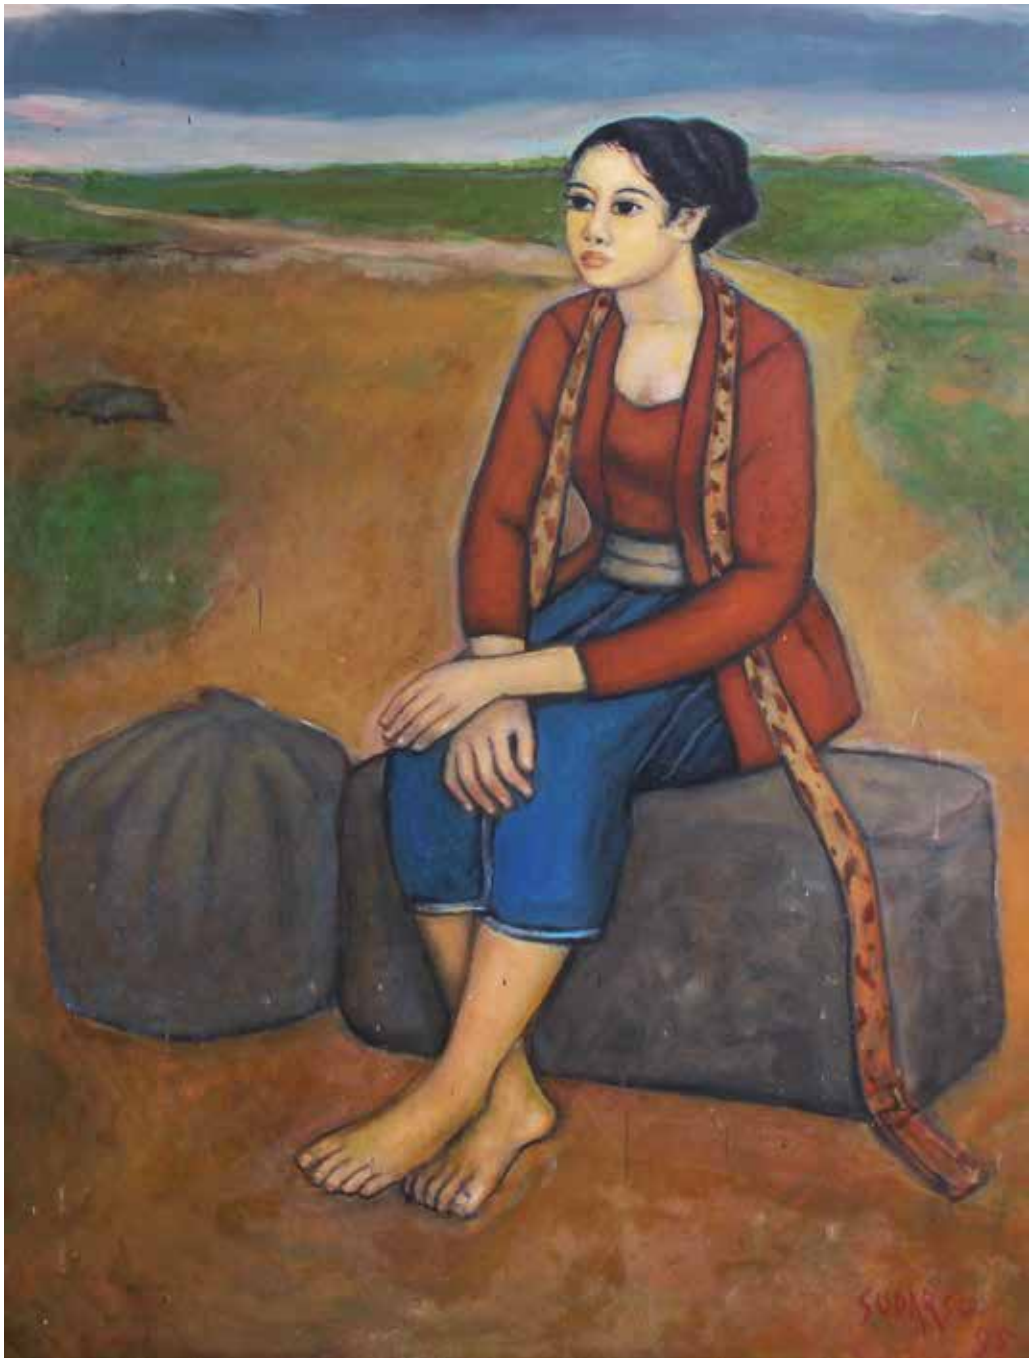

The wayang character and the two hands holding a musical instrument are possibly a representation of their ancestral influences from the village.

Potret Novelis La Rose by Basoeki Abdullah

Lot #661

La Rose was an Indonesian novelist and columnist. A woman of many talents, she was also a painter, a speaker and an announcer. As a close friend of Basoeki Abdullah, she revered his works, and considered them to be a good representation of the world of visual arts. She always admired his dedication to his art, as he painted with a well rounded academic understanding of art.

Basoeki had always wanted to paint La Rose, however, she always declined. She said to him that she is a realist, undeserving of being painted in an idealistic and romanticized rendition as Basoeki would have painted her. This is possibly why he painted her in a sketch-painting style, seemingly unfinished while completing her face in great detail. This makes Basoeki's portrait of La Rose a unique work in his oeuvre.

Erotica by Affandi

In this painting we see a woman engulfed by a large black figure hugging her naked body. The female figure seems to surrender to the grip of the black figure around her body as she holds the figure closer to her body. This scene is an expression of lust taking over the woman as they merge and she loses form and control as her yellow skin blends with the black.

The black figure emerges from the bottom left corner, swooping around her like a ghost and groping her from behind. This painting is an expression of Affandi's lust, and humanizes him as a painter. He wants to tell the viewer that as a person he is not a saint and is capable of such emotions. He is expressing how strong lust can take over a person's body by painting the black figure's leg a human skin tone and then transitioning to black as if it has consumed it entirely.

Arifien Neif explores intimacy and emotional warmth in Husband And Wife a work that captures two lovers suspended in a private moment within their red-velvet apartment. Bathed in rich crimson tones, the scene radiates both passion and tenderness, transforming the interior into a sanctuary removed from the noise of the outside world. Through soft gestures and close proximity, Neif portrays love not as spectacle, but as quiet companionship—an atmosphere where affection lingers in every shadow, fabric, and glance.

Darbotz, the graffiti artist who rose from Jakarta's underground walls to become a defining figure in contemporary Indonesian fine art, channels raw urban energy in Former #1. The painting presents a towering monument of his iconic monochromatic characters, crowded together like a living mass emerging from the city itself. Across the composition, his signature elongated hands unfurl and stretch through the scene—grasping, reaching, and intertwining like restless extensions of collective emotion. Through this chaotic yet rhythmic imagery, Darbotz transforms street culture into mythic form, reflecting the ambition, noise, and survival instinct embedded within metropolitan life.

This finely carved nineteenth-century Chinese gilt wood wall panel presents a lively gathering of twelve human figures accompanied by two animals, arranged in a layered composition rich with narrative and symbolism. Executed in high relief, the figures occupy a shallow architectural space, their flowing robes, expressive gestures, and varied postures creating a sense of movement across the panel. The warm traces of gilding accentuate the intricate carving, drawing attention to the folds of drapery and the individuality of each character. Set against a dark recessed background, the sculptural forms emerge with striking depth, while the inclusion of mounted figures and attendants suggests themes associated with folklore, courtly life, or traditional Chinese legend. Preserved within a glass frame, the work functions both as a decorative object and a testament to the craftsmanship of Qing-period woodcarving, reflecting the enduring appreciation for narrative detail, technical skill, and symbolic imagery in Chinese decorative arts.
